For years the wife of a certain prominent Brooklyn official has been troubled with a dyspepsia for which no doctors' prescriptions, no old-fashioned remedies or any drug store preparations had ever given even temporary relief. Finally she was induced to try Ripans Tabules. After six weeks' use of the Tabules in accordance with the directions, taking one after each meal, she said: "My constitution is such that most medicines fail to affect me in the least, but with Ripans Tabules it was so different that I thought I felt better after I had taken the first one. They seemed to be doing something for me, and this strengthened me in my resolve to continue their use and follow the directions strictly. The effect which Ripans Tabules had on me was simply marvelous. The gastronomic feats I can now perform with their aid has delighted the household and paralyzed my doctor. I soon dispensed with his services. I took Ripans Tabules faithfully for six weeks, but they did me good from the start. I still continue taking them, because my case is one of such long standing that I realize time will be necessary to permanently cure me."

Sec. 3. Every person to whom a license shall be granted as the keeper of a junk shop shall enter into bond to the Mayor and Common Council of the City of Plainfield, with good and sufficient surety to be approved by the Mayor, in the penal sum of Two Hundred Dollars, conditioned for the due observance of all such ordinances of the City of Plainfield as may be passed or in force, respecting junk shops and the keepers of junk shops, at any time during the continuance of such license. Every license which shall be granted any keeper of any junk shop shall designate the house and place in which the person receiving such license shall be authorized to carry on said business.

Sec. 4. Every keeper of a junk shop so licensed as aforesaid, shall be authorized to keep at such house or place, what is commonly called a junk shop, for the purchase and sale of junk, rags, old ropes, old iron, brass, copper, tin, lead and other old materials, old bottles, old glass, old tinware, or other second-hand articles, and it shall be lawful for any keeper of a junk shop so licensed as aforesaid, to keep, use and drive a cart or carts, wagon or wagons in the City of Plainfield for the purchase and sale of junk, rags, rope, old iron, brass, copper, tin, lead and other old metals, old bottles, old glass or old tin-ware; provided that such cart or wagon so kept, used and driven by or for him shall be duly and separately licensed and that every such cart or wagon shall be marked with the name at length, the street and number of his place of business and the number of his license in plain letters and figures.

Sec. 5. No person shall keep what is commonly called a junk shop for the purchase and sale of the articles enumerated in the preceding section of this ordinance, and no person shall drive or draw or cause or procure to be used, or driven or drawn, any cart, wagon or other vehicle for the purchase or sale of either of such articles without first being licensed by the Common Council as hereinbefore provided under the penalty of not less than Ten nor more than Twenty Dollars for each and every offense, but the full penalty of Twenty Dollars to be imposed upon conviction for a second offense.

Sec. 6. No keeper of a junk shop shall receive in the line of his business any article or thing by way of pledge or pawn nor shall he loan or advance any sum of money on the security of any such article or thing under the penalty of Twenty Dollars for each and every offense.

Sec. 7. No keeper of a junk shop shall receive or purchase any goods, articles or thing whatsoever from any minor, apprentice or servant, knowing or having reason to believe him or her to be such, under penalty of Twenty Dollors for each and every offense.

Sec. 8. Sec. 10. The said book shall be at all reasonable times open to the inspection of the Mayor, Chief of Police, and City Judge, or any of them, or of any person who shall be duly authorized in writing for that purpose by any one of them who shall exhibit such written authority to such keeper of a junk shop.

Sec. 19. It shall be the duty of the Chief of Police to cause the provisions of this ordinance relating to fines and for failure to comply with the provisions thereof, to be carried strictly into effect.

Sec. 20. It shall also be the duty of the City Clerk to keep a register of all licenses granted under the provisions of this ordinance, wherein shall be stated the number of the license, the locality and such other data as may be necessary.

Sec. 21. Any person or persons who shall purchase or sell any of the goods, wares or merchandise mentioned in this ordinance without first taking out a license therefor, or after their license has expired, or when revoked, shall for each such offense be subject to the penalty mentioned above in section five.

WILL RULE PORTO RICO.

Charles H. Allen, Assistant Secretary of the Navy, to Be Civil Governor of the Island.

President McKinley has signed the Porto Rican tariff and civil government bill and immediately after offered the position of civil governor of Porto Rico to Charles H. Allen, assistant secretary of the navy. Mr. Allen, after a personal conference with the president, accepted the post.

He will put himself in touch with Gen. Davis, now military governor of the island, and spend a short time in acquainting himself with the insular affairs and in studying the character of the men who present themselves to his notice as proper material for membership of the new cabinet. The organic act prescribes that at least seven members of the council shall be Porto Ricans. While the actual appointment of these officials will devolve upon the president, Mr. Allen's observations while in Porto Rico are expected to assist materially in the selections.

CHARLES H. ALLEN.
(First American Civil Governor of the Island of Porto Rico.)

So soon as he shall have established himself and gained the knowledge he seeks Gov. Allen will return to the United States. He may leave Gen. Davis in charge during his absence, but in case it shall have been found possible to complete the formation of the cabinet, or even if only one member shall have been appointed, then that person will act as temporary governor.

Mr. Allen was born in Lowell, Mass., in 1848, and graduated at Amherst. He has had, in addition to his business experience, a great deal of legislative training. First a member of the Lowell school board, he entered the lower house of the Massachusetts legislature in 1881, went to the state senate in 1883 and then became a member of the national house of representatives. He served through the Forty-ninth and Fiftieth congresses, and might have continued in legislative work had he not declined a renomination.

At the close of his congressional career Mr. Allen resumed the active control of his business interests, and, although he became assistant secretary of the navy May 9, 1898, succeeding Theodore Roosevelt, he has managed to maintain his business connections, notwithstanding the volume of important duties that fell to his share in the Spanish-American war.

At present he is the head of a firm manufacturing wood preservative, a president of one bank, a director in another, and is largely interested in the manufacture of high-grade papers.

GEORGE B. CORTELYOU.

Appointed Private Secretary to President McKinley, to Succeed John Addison Porter.

George Bruce Cortelyou, of New York, has been appointed to the position of secretary to the president in the place of John Addison Porter, who has been compelled to resign owing to persistent ill health. Mr. Porter has not been a well man for more than a year, and although he retained his post, much of his work has been done by Mr. Cortelyou, who held the position of assistant. The new secretary is 38 years old and is a scion of one of the oldest and most prominent families of New York. He has held political places almost continuously since 1884. In that year he was in the appraiser's office in New York, and since 1889 was connected with the post office department. In 1895 he was made private stenographer to the president, and two years ago was given the place he now holds. He is a graduate of the Georgetown and Columbia law schools. Mr. Cortelyou will assume his new and important duties on May 1.

GEORGE B. CORTELYOU,
(Mr. Porter's Successor as Secretary to the President.)

The Efficacy of Yawning.

It is healthy to yawn, according to a French physician, who says it is as efficacious in its way as gargling the throat in cases of sore throat, buzzing of the ears, catarrh and like troubles.

A FEMININE LIMIT.

Where the Halting Line Is Drawn in Friendship by Many Women.

There was a woman in a car the other day who was talking to another woman so earnestly that she forgot there might be eavesdroppers, says the Baltimore News.

"Of course I'm her friend," she said, indignantly; "she never had a warmer friend than I am in her life, but I certainly am not going to lend her my Paris hat to copy. There's a limit to human affections." And she looked so determined and fierce and so thoroughly as if she had reached that limit that her friend acquiesced meekly and began to talk about Thoreau and peaceful subjects generally.

Clothes seem a rock on which feminine friendships go to pieces very often. Perhaps those that do were never of the iron-bound character; but then, perhaps, also, few friendships between women are of this sort. At all events, in this absurdly machine-made world, when the slightest evidence of individuality in dress is hailed with acclamations by the multitude and prized by her who has thought it out, a poaching upon the preserves of another maid's ideas is regarded as a little less heinous sin than stealing her jewels.

Only the other day an ingenious maid was driven almost to saying forcible words by an accident that happened to her. She is very artistic, is the ingenious maid, so she sketches herself a design for a frock that was worthy a Felix or a Paquin.

After she had the details to suit her she took the design to a couturiere and had it made up in handsome materials.

When it came home, so the story runneth, it was so very good looking that the ingenious girl never even gave a thought to the bill for $150 that accompanied it, but donned the gown at once and went to call on a friend.

The friend immediately became ecstatic over the beauties of the costume. She talked of the novelty, of its cut, of the originality of its garniture, and finally she insisted that her seamstress must see it also, she was so interested, poor girl, in pretty things. So the seamstress examined it critically.

Well, a week later, when the ingenious girl walked into a friend's drawing-room where a reception was in progress, wearing the pride of her wardrobe, the first person she spied was her friend, who had on its counterpart.

This counterpart was developed in wash silk that cost about 25 cents a yard, and the trimmings were inexpensive ones, but otherwise it was an exact imitation of the frock upon which the ingenious maid had spent so much time, thought and money.

Relations are strained between the friends now—they're merely cold acquaintances, indeed. And who can blame the first girl for resenting such theft of ideas?

No woman will, certainly. As the lady in the car said: "There's a limit to human affection."

ONE KIND OF SPRING FEVER.

An Outing with Rod and Reel in Most Cases Effects a Speedy Cure.

The first symptoms of the fisherman's fever come swooping down on one while glancing through the window of a sporting goods store, where the canny proprietor has placed an attractive exhibit of split bamboos, lancewoods, some patent landing nets and hundreds of artificial flies, minnows and and spoon hooks, flanked by enameled silk lines and reels of many sizes. The sportsman goes home and during the evening meal manifests an uneasiness foreign to his usual placid temperament. The wife smiles and says nothing, knowing from past experience what is coming. It remains for the eldest daughter to break the ice by remarking: "Father is as uneasy as a fish out of water to-night." He has felt a bit nervous of late, and thinks perhaps a bottle of spring tonic would do him good. His wife, who knows the only elixir that will cure his case, says: "Nonsense! papa is tired. He needs an outing in the woods." Papa grins sheepishly and says he has quite made up his mind not to go fishing this spring, says the Chicago Chronicle.

No more is said until, later on, Johnny, aged nine, suddenly opening the door to the study, where, according to custom, pa should be reading, finds his sire kneeling on the floor, rod case and fly book open before him and an expression of perfect satisfaction on his face. Johnny, a wise child who knows his father, is silent until he has been in the room for upward of three minutes. Then, pointing to a lancewood trolling rod, he innocently asks: "Pa, is that the rod you caught that big land-locked salmon with last year?" Paterfamilias looks up and answers: "Hello, my boy, where did you come from? Yes, that is the rod." "Tell a fellow about it," pleads the astute youngster, and then, perhaps for the fiftieth time, the story of the battle with a nine-pound fish is retold, and the eyes of both shine, while their hearts beat faster and faster until the salmon is safely landed in the canoe.

Father stands it just 24 hours, and then tells his wife that a party of friends want him to go to Wisconsin for a week.

A LAND OF SUNSHINE.

Spain Is the Sunniest Country in Europe—Sunshine and Corn in Canada.

The importance of sunshine to agriculture has led some governments to collect data as to the number of hours of sunshine their countries receive on an average. The quantity of sunshine the atmosphere receives is very nearly constant from year to year, but the proportion that reaches the surface of the earth varies according to the distribution of cloudiness. Sunshine is now recorded automatically at 68 of the regular stations of our weather bureau. Every month the Monthly Weather Review prints a map showing the distribution of sunshine throughout the country. For example, the map for March last shows that the northeastern United States, including most of the region of the great lakes, had sunshine for less than one-third of the daylight hours. There was a much larger amount of sunshine in most of the southern states and on the great plains. Of course, the part of the country that always has the greatest amount of sunshine is the subarid regions of the southwest, says the New York Sun.

The amount of sunshine, measured in hours, is automatically recorded by various instruments. Some observers use a sphere of glass by which the sun's rays are focused on a curved sheet of paper at all hours of the day. Others secure a photographic print of the track of a fine solar ray that falls through a minute aperture on sensitive paper. When there is even a faint cloudiness over the sun it may be recognized by the faintness of the record, and when heavy clouds cover the sun there is, of course, no record at all. Thus the number of hours of sunshine is ascertained and it is easy to reach a mathematical statement of the prevalence of clear or cloudy weather.

If it were not for the many hours of sunshine during the summer months on the western plains of Canada, she could not ripen her great crop of wheat. There are three reasons why that region gets an uncommon amount of sunshine. In the first place, there is not very much cloudy weather. Then the circumference of the earth is so much less where the Manitoba wheat fields are than it is at the equator that the pace of the daily revolution is also much less. Any given area of land in Manitoba passes from under the sun's rays much more slowly than at the equator. Moreover, as everybody knows, the farther north one goes the longer is the summer day until at the north pole the day lasts for six months. So the length of the day in Manitoba, the slow passage of the sun over the wheat and the absence of cloud, make the ripening of the grain very continuous, rapid and perfect. For the same reason, corn may be raised in Canada in the high latitude, for that grain, of 54 degrees north.

To be sure, Manitoba, being so far north, receives its sunshine more "slantwise" than it would nearer the equator, but the advantages above enumerated fully compensate for the lesser intensity of the sun's rays.

In Europe, however, there is a great deal more cloudy weather in the north than in the south and so the duration of sunshine increases rapidly from north to south. It is smallest in northwest Europe and greatest in Spain. Scotland has, on an average, only 3.3 hours of sunshine daily the year round, Ireland has about 3.7 hours, England nearly four, Germany 4.5 to five, France five to six, Austria five to seven and Spain seven to eight hours daily. Thus Madrid has 2,930 hours of sunshine every year, Viennn 1,810 hours, Hamburg 1,240 hours and London 1,030 hours.

There is a good deal more cloud and rain in west than in east England, because the mountains in the west condense the clouds and cause heavy rains. So it happens that the grass lands of the country, which require a great deal of rain, are found chiefly in the west, while the grain and fruit regions are in the sunnier and drier part of the country east of the mountains, for they mature best in a relatively dry and clear climate.

HETTY GREEN AT WORK.

Early and Late She Toils, Adding More Gold to Her Many Millions.

"At the farthest end of the long, narrow room, over in a corner by a window, in the Chemical bank, New York, Hetty Green, 'The Richest Woman in America,' has her desk," writes Leigh Mitchell Hodges, in Ladies' Home Journal. "When the dozens of bookkeepers come and take their places they form a human screen, behind which she is completely hidden. When anyone calls to see her—and she sees most of those who do call—she comes to the brass grating near the assistant cashier's desk and carries on the conversation as if she were a prisoner behind golden bars. She never opens the little door. All day long she is in and out of the bank. Sometimes she carries a little satchel in which valuable papers are stowed. Frequently she is recognized by one in the long line of depositors. Then there is a whispered word on the part of that one, and a line of heads is turned to watch her until she walks out of the door. But her plain dress and heavy veil serve well their purpose, and it is not often that she is recognized. If she has time at noon she stops in any restaurant convenient to where she is and hurriedly eats a little. There is no lull in her day until after dark. She is always among the last to leave the bank, and among the first to be there of mornings."

SCHOOL AND CHURCH.

Munster, Germany, has a high school which has been in existence 1,100 years.

The University of Berlin will soon have three chairs of anthropology and ethnology.

According to Salt Lake City figures, the number of Mormons now in existence is 360,000.

The imposing buildings of the Gordon Memorial college, at Khartoum, are almost completed, but the preparations for putting them to practical account are still in their very early stages.

An oil painting of Frederick Stearns, of Detroit, who gave the Stearns collection of musical instruments to the University of Michigan, has been placed in the Stearns room in the museum building. The painting was a gift to the University from Mr. Stearns' son.

Edward C. Delano, the new superintendent of schools of Chicago, first became attached to the city's public school system 44 years ago as an assistant teacher. He has since continued in the service of the board of education, working his way step by step to his present position.

If the church treated her ministers generously in the matter of holidays she would reap all the gain. For every new idea which comes to the minister's mind, and every new book he reads, and every new sight he sees, and every new gallery he visits during his holidays pass into his words and into his life, and the thoughtfulness and generosity of congregations would come back to their own souls with usury of reward. —Ian Maclaren, in Ladies' Home Journal.

The Russian orthodox congregation in New York contains 500 persons. The congregation decided last year to build a new permanent church, and the Russians bought a lot 75 by 100 feet for $36,000, of which amount $22,000 has been paid. The balance, $1,000, will be paid as soon as more funds arrive from Russia. The czar has contributed 5,000 roubles. The new church will cost $60,000. This amount will be covered by the pan-Russian collection on Sundays in all Russian churches throughout the empire, also by subscriptions raised in St. Petersburg, Moscow and other large Russian cities.

AN EMPRESS AT HOME.

China's Ruler Does Not Seem the Terrible Woman She Is Painted.

Most people who have read of the sanguinary disposition of the dowager empress of China have pictured her as a veritable tigress with an inordinate appetite for human blood. To a casual visitor at her palace, however, she appears much as other women. Recently the wives of foreign representatives and several other European women were entertained by her at Peking. From the entrance gate of the palace grounds they were carried in imperial sedan chairs over the marble bridge; the rest of the way to the reception hall they traveled in a tram drawn at a fairly rapid pace by palace eunuchs. In the reception hall the dowager empress, a benevolent-looking old lady of 64, and not at all the relentless virago she is commonly depicted, was seated on a raised dais, and on a slightly lower seat sat the emperor, who looked more cheerful than ever, but was evidently in very feeble health.

After the formal reception the ladies were conducted to an adjoining room, where tea and refreshments were served, and soon after the imperial pair came in and mingled unceremoniously with their guests, saying a few words to each and shaking hands. Every time the dowager empress made a remark her Chinese interpreters fell prostrate on the ground. Young Prince Pu'hun, a well grown, strong and healthy-looking boy of 14, who has been recently selected as successor to the throne in default of a direct heir, was brought forward and introduced to the ladies, whom he saluted by suddenly throwing out his hand at right angles on a line with his face, probably his idea of shaking hands. The dowager empress presented each lady with a pearl ring and some handsome brocades and each of the Chinese secretaries received four rolls of silk.

Sunflowers in Chicago Alleys.

Sunflowers will cover a multitude of sins, according to the plans of a newly formed "Woman's District Improvement association" in Cuyler, which aims to plant these flowers around garbage boxes. It is proposed to obliterate evidence of refuse receptacles and ash boxes behind a screen of big yellow blossoms. The association which proposes this unique plan for beautifying back alleys is composed of 35 women living in that residence part of Lake View bounded by the Northwestern railway on the east and stretching west to Western avenue between Addison and Berteau avenues. They organized recently with the aim of improving and regulating the sanitary condition and appearance of the thoroughfares in the district. It is proposed to see that streets are kept clean and to suppress disturbing noises.—Chicago Evening News.

Celebrated Russian Painter.

The town of Feodosia, on the Black sea, gave a public funeral to its great citizen, the celebrated marine painter, Aivazofsky, who died there in his eighty-third year, soon after returning from St. Petersburg. No contemporary Russian painter, except Verestchagin, has enjoyed a wider reputation, and most of the great picture galleries of Europe possess examples of Aivazofsky's work.—N. Y. Sun.

THE CHILDREN'S ROOM.

It Should Be Made a Place of Beauty Instead of for Cast-Off Furniture.

If there be any room in the house which is destined to receive the overflow of furniture, broken and mismatched odds and ends, you may depend upon it that room is the nursery or "children's room," says the San Francisco Chronicle.

Many mothers wonder why their little sons and daughters are so fond of running the streets, preferring always to be out of the house and away from home. Exercise in the open air is the best exercise, but everything can be overdone, and the children should be taught that some part of each day must be spent indoors.

It does not always occur to parents that the simplest explanation of their children's desire to be forever on the go is because they have no place at home sufficiently attractive to hold them there.

The nursery should be made a place of beauty to the little ones. Instead of half-worn and cast-off furniture it should be furnished with an entirely new set. Oak furniture is never expensive, and is bright and cheerful in a living room.

One of the prettiest adjuncts to a child's room is a picture screen. Make the screen of plain blue or red denim on a light wood frame and fasten the pictures on it with small brass paper clamps. Every child has its own collection of photographs and picture cards, and when these are arranged artistically the effect is dainty.

A toy closet with ample shelf room is another requisite of the nursery. The children should be taught that this closet must be kept in order or it will soon show an accumulation of litter. A weekly renovating will keep it fairly clean.

If there be cushions in the nursery they should have good strong covers of denim fastened on by buttons and button holes so that they can be readily removed and laundered when soiled.

The draperies for the small toilet tables, curtains, etc., should be of fine white muslin, capable of enduring innumerable washings. It is well to have two sets if possible, so that they may be changed every week or so and kept in spotless cleanliness.

There is no color so valuable in decoration as blue, nor one from which so many schemes may be evolved. For a sunny room blue may be used entirely, as far as wall papers, carpets or draperies are concerned, or blue and green.

A blue and green room looks best with green stained furniture, and is more appropriate for a library or bedroom, but as this furniture is found sometimes in dining-rooms and halls it may be used there also. For a hall blue "Delamere" paper lends itself well to a blue and green scheme, but the green must be carefully chosen, as far as curtains are concerned.

An artistic though inexpensive dining-room for a small house can be well carried out in blue and green. As there will be but little space the walls may be painted in pale blue, and the woodwork should be in a deeper shade.

COULD SEE NO WAY OUT.

Management of the Lunch Room Had Made Provisions for Collecting All Checks.

The man with the retreating forehead walked into the bakery lunch joint just as if he intended to "hang up" his check and climbed on a stool in a scared way, says the Chicago Chronicle. The polite Ethiopian wiped off a little spot in front of the customer, spread out his hands on the counter and said:

"What'll be yours?"

"Whatever I get," said the man with the retreating forehead. The waiter blinked as if he did not belong to the Repartee club, and was dazed by the persiflage.

"I mean what do you want?" asked the waiter meekly.

"It would take too long to tell you," said the man with the Aztec make-up, glancing down at his misfits. "I will reveal part of the secret, though."

"Which is those?" asked the waiter, bending an attentive ear.

"I would the deadly cocoanut and the unostentatious gob of fresh dairy milk."

They were placed before him, and he hid them in a manner showing habits of promptness. He received a yellow check for ten.

"What do I do with this?" he asked, looking at it curiously.

"Well, most people hand it to the blonde near the door, there, and she makes the change. You might keep it for a souvenir," said the waiter, who was not busy and had time to be sarcastic. The man with the retreating forehead sighed and picked up the check.

"Is there no escape?" he asked.

"There is a rush exit at the side, there, but it is guarded," explained the waiter. Seeing what he was up against, the man with the reluctant brow sighed again, mingled with the crowd near the blonde person and gave her his last dime, after which he went away thoughtfully.

Strawberry Marmalade.

Rub four quarts of well-cleaned strawberries through a sieve, one fine enough to retain the seeds. Put the pulp in a kettle over the fire and boil till reduced to one-half. At the same time put three pounds of sugar with one and a half cupfuls water over the fire and boil until when a little is dropped in cold water and on taking it up between the fingers it can be rolled into a ball; add the sugar to the fruit; stir; remove all scum, and boil till a drop on a plate will retain the shape of a bead; then fill in small glass jars and cover when cold.—Housekeeper.

MIXED IN COLORS.

He Forgot His Wife's Orders and Came Near Being Gobbled by the Copper.

The man with the deep expression of worry on his face had been leaning against the iron railing for over 30 minutes. At intervals he would mutter incoherent words and then tug at his mustache. The policeman on the corner eyed him for some time and then decided he was a suspicious character, says the Chicago Evening News.

"What are you standing here for?" demanded the bluecoat, abruptly.

"I can't remember," murmured the man, mysteriously.

"Can't remember what?"

"It may have been emerald green, but—"

"Sure, and he has been out on the town. He's ramblin' about the last creme de menthe, I guess."

"I think it was violet, but I am not certain."

"Never mind the color, sporty; it put you out of the business all right. Brace up and tell me—"

"Rose or azure blue?"

"He's been monkeying with posa caffas. What club did you wander from, sporty?"

"And yet it may have been royal purple."

"Stop! Any man that puts any such liquor as that under his belt ought to get two years in the 'gold' ward."

"Pronounced heliotrope, or—"

"Heliotrope! Sure, and the drinks must have been made to order. But brace up and tell me—"

"Pale—"

"I'll not hear any more of them. They make my head dizzy. Tell me what club you come out of and if you have the price of a cab I'll send you back to straighten out. Come, now?"

"I've named every color in the rainbow, and yet—"

"You've named a dozen rainbows. But loosen up, or I'll have to call the wagon."

"She told me three times."

"So there is a woman mixed up in the mixed drinks? Well, hurry up, now?"

"If I only had the memory I used to have."

"Sure, and French drinks will paralyze the memory of a detective. But hurry now!"

For the first time the troubled man seemed to hear the policeman's voice.

"Why, officer, I haven't done anything. I only forget the color and number."

"The number of your house or the club?"

"Why, the number of the embroidery silk my wife wants. She is going to work a cushion."

"And you haven't been talking about French cafe drinks?"

"Certainly not, officer! I was—"

"Move on, or I'll run you in. I thought I was up against a real sport."

SUFFERING OF HORSES.

Those Engaged in Military Operations to Receive International Protection.

A movement to lessen suffering on battlefields has been begun in England which must interest all those who feel for lower animals in the direst misery. It is intended to bring under international protection, such as the Red Cross now affords men who labor for the relief of the wounded soldiers, an adequate corps whose duty would be the killing of horses so badly hurt that they must die, either quickly and humanely or by lingering torture, as is often the case under existing conditions, says the Chicago Leader.

Now there is no protection for soldiers or other persons who may undertake to put wounded horses out of misery, after a battle or during a lull in an engagement. They risk their own lives, and their operations are liable to be forbidden entirely by commanders fearing trickery. So great numbers of wounded horses linger many hours in agony and then perish miserably. They might be put out of pain very quickly if a small body of men were free to do the work, under such shelter as the Red Cross gives to those who minister to wounded men.

At best war involves fearful sufferings for horses and other animals. In the stress of battle or the crisis of a campaign there is no question of avoiding the suffering or exhaustion of any of the lower animals. They simply have to die under the strain of intolerable crowding forward, under a burning sun and without water, it may be, or taxed beyond their endurance. They go hungry, thirsty, and uncared for, and in many cases, when their need is greatest. So they die miserably by thousands. One of the best newspapers in England asserts that since Lord Roberts began his campaign for the relief of Kimberley and the capture of Bloemfontein he has lost 11,000 horses. The death of those animals means an untold and immense amount of the direst pain and misery.

Whatever can be done to lessen this burden of agony loaded upon the animals that man involves in his quarrels must appeal to the best instincts of humane men and women, in all lands.

Poor But Honest.

Clerk—Please, sir, may I have my next month's salary in advance?

Employer—That would be very unbusinesslike. How do I know that you will not die to-night?

Clerk (in proud scorn)—Sir, I may be in need, but I am too much of a gentleman to do anything like that.—Collier's Weekly.

Too Engrossed.

People who are most ready to embrace delusions are usually the least apt to embrace facts.—Chicago Democrat.

SPORTING.

GOLF

The Hillside golf team will play the Madison team at Madison Next Saturday afternoon, and the following Saturday will play at Elizabeth. No events are scheduled for the Hillside course these two Saturdays.

Wyckham W. Beekman has been a regular attendant at the Park Club links this season and has made much progress in his game. He will spend much of his time while at Bethlehem, N. H., on the links there, where he played quite a little last summer.

A match is being arranged between teams from the Park Golf Club, of this city, and the Town and Country Club, of Elizabeth. The Elizabeth players put up a strong game and are likely to give the Plainfielders a hard fight, particularly on the Elizabeth links.

This is the slack season at the course of the Hillside Tennis and Golf Club. The lack of rain has had its effect on the course which is, however, in better condition now than at a like time during any previous year. Many of the players are absent from the city and the attendance these warm July days has been small.

There will be the usual play for the president's cup at the links of the Park Golf Club Saturday afternoon. Morgan T. Townsend still leads for that trophy with William R. Faber a close second and Senator Charles A. Reed third by half a point. Behind him are a large bunch of players who are likely to figure more or less in the contest before the season in over.

The team match which was arranged some time ago between representatives of the Hillside Tennis and Golf Club and the Somerset County Country Club was called off and will not be played until fall. Much difficulty has been found in getting a team together for a week day during the summer, and the Hillside Club has other matches arranged for Saturdays. The match will therefore be put off until the members return in the fall and the Somerville players can have a strong team to meet them.

Among the young men of the Park Golf Club who have come to the front so rapidly of late is William M. McCutchen. He only took up golf a year ago, but soon discovered the knack of the game and has now developed into one of the best players of the club. One day last week he made an 88, a 45 and a 43, in company with Club Expert Blair. McCutchen beat Blair eleven up. Last Saturday McCutchen broke the course record over at McCutchen by two strokes. He has also come within one of the amateur records for these four of the Town and Country Club at Elizabeth, making it in 41. McCutchen has always been good in all kinds of athletic sports and won his Y while at Yale by his fast wheel riding. He is now a member of the Park Golf Club team and is considered one of the best players of the club.

The green committee challenge trophy was again competed for on the the links of the Park Golf Club Monday afternoon. Gustavus W. Faber, holder of the trophy, succeeded in retaining his hold on the medal by defeating Edgar I. Serrell, challenger, 3 up and 1 to play. Both players were a trifle erratic in their game and are capable of making a better showing than they did. In the first round Faber gained the lead, making 46 to Serrell's 50. In the second round they both scored a 50. The match was close enough to be exciting. The trophy will probably be played for next on Saturday afternoon when Morgan T. Townsend is the next on the long list of challengers. He has already won the trophy three times to Faber's twice.

The career of the Cranford Golf Club since it was first opened last year has been a fairly successful one. The links are located just outside of Cranford and close to the line of the trolley. The club numbers among its members quite a number from Westfield and Roselle who are enabled to reach the course without trouble, thanks to the trolley. The course is a new one and consequently not in the best of condition. It has improved rapidly, however, and has the promise of being an excellent one after a little more time is devoted to improving the turf. Nothing out of the ordinary in the line of competitions has yet been held as most of the members are comparatively new at the game and need plenty of practice. As soon as they become a trifle more skilled matches will be arranged with outside clubs.

ON THE DIAMOND

The St. Mary's will go to Brooklyn Saturday to play a return game with the Carlton Athletic Club.

The Arion baseball team will play the Perfectos on the former's grounds next Saturday. The following week they will play the St. Mary's team.

A new baseball nine has been organized at the C. and C. Electric Works at Garwood. F. W. Morse, superintendent of the land company, has offered a plot of land in the rear of the schoolhouse for a diamond and the building for a clubhouse.

The revival of interest in local baseball as developed during the interscholastic series, held here during the spring, has failed to be permanent. There is still considerable interest in the national game when the opportunity offers but there is not the general feeling that was so marked at the first of the season.

Plainfield is now better fitted to provide baseball as far as proper grounds are concerned than ever before. The extension of the trolley system in all directions has made eligible a number of sites that are well fitted for a diamond. The Arlington avenue line now passes within a short distance of the old Crescent Oval. The Washington avenue grounds, where the Leal's School boys played, are rather too cramped for good ball but the diamond there is in good shape. The diamond on Martine Common was too rough for good ball. The Clinton avenue field is in first rate condition.

At present the Arion Baseball team of Hope chapel, which was recently reorganized and put on an active basis once more, the Pond Tool Works nine, the St. Mary's nine and the Clinton avenue team are principal baseball organizations of the city. With them all, however, the game is played more with the idea of giving the players enjoyment than providing entertainment for an audience.

The Trolley League, the suggestion for which eminated from Westfield, was never formed. For good baseball on a good diamond with proper accommodations for an audience the local cranks are compelled to go elsewhere for their sport. The crowds that attended the school games in the early part of the season showed that there is still a goodly crowd of cranks who like a watch a game.

It is rather late in the season to start now, but the many lovers of the National game hope to see a local organization on the field next season that will answer to the demand. Experience has taught in past seasons that Plainfield people like to see Plainfield boys play ball, so it should be a strictly local team, with a professional battery perhaps, that makes the next bid for public patronage in Plainfield.

CYCLING COMMENT.

Arthur Philo, formerly of the borough, but now of Perth Amboy, rode his wheel to Plainfield this morning and spent the day with friends.

BICYCLE TIRES STOLEN.

Taken From John Delaney's Store, Entrance Being Obtained Through a Rear Window.

Three high grade bicycle tires were stolen from the store of John Delaney, of East Front street, last night. It is supposed that they were taken by two young men who entered through a rear window. They had been in the store during the evening and Mr. Delaney remembers that just before closing, one of them went to the rear of the store, presumably to get a drink of water. He must have slipped the catch off a window as Mr. Delaney noticed it upon opening it up this morning. They may have taken several other things as a thorough investigation has not yet been made. The parties are known and unless the goods are recovered, arrests may follow.

Had No Good Defence.

G. M. Hawkins, fish and game warden for Union county, called at The Daily Press office this afternoon and explained the circumstances of the arrest of the three Somerville men charged with violating the fish laws a few days ago, and who paid their fines Monday. Warden Hawkins stated the cost of making a defence was not what impelled them to pay their fines, but it was the knowledge that their claims were not well founded. Had they made a decided stand against paying the fine the sentence would have been more severe, as the warden was very lenient with them under the circumstances.

Buffalo Elevator Burns.

BUFFALO, July 25.—Fire last night destroyed the Eastern elevator, which was situated on the island opposite the foot of Washington street. The elevator and its contents were valued at $750,000 and are a total loss. The cause of the fire was not learned. The elevator was owned by the American Linseed Oil company, who came into possession of the building only a few weeks ago. Its oil works are situated within 100 feet of the burned elevator.

SYRACUSE, July 25.—Through the explosion of a boiler tube in the steam yacht Trilby, owned and captained by Fred L. Spink of Scriba, Oswego county, three children lost their lives, one more was frightfully scalded and three older persons were more or less burned here at 2 o'clock yesterday afternoon.

Heat Kills Many Children.

WILL ELECT NEW MAYOR

CITY OFFICES THAT WILL BE FILLED NEXT DECEMBER.

Four Councilmen and a City Collector Will Also be Chosen at That Time.

Among the city officials whose terms expire next December are Mayor Rockfellow, Councilmen Tolles, Coriell and Mellick. A member will also have to be chosen to succeed Councilman-elect Frank Randolph, who is now serving the unexpired term of Frank H. Smith, who resigned. A tax collector will also have to be selected, as Collector Smith's term is only until next December, when the people will, by vote, decide who shall continue as the official in that office. It is a little early to talk about the city election, but there is no doubt but what Collector Smith will be a candidate for the office he now holds, as he did not take the office simply for this year with no idea of continuing there.

Mayor Rockfellow has not declared himself to be a candidate for re-election, and it is not known whether he will be willing to run for the office again. As regards the retiring councilmen, neither one has announced himself as a candidate for re-election, but there is every probability that a strong effort will be made to continue them in office. There is no doubt but all have made efficient members of the Common Council, and their many friends would like to have them remain in office another term.

A special car came to this city last evening bearing a trolley party from Rahway. A run was made over the line as far as Dunellen and back. Before leaving for home most of the party went to Tier's lake house and spent a pleasant half-hour with the aid of ice cream.

Probably 5,000 people witnessed the event.

HOME FOR BABY MASON.

Governor Voorhees Thinks the Child Should Leave the Prison for a Better Place.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Trenton, July 25—Governor Voorhees was at the State House yesterday, and complained that he had been misrepresented in the case of Charles Edward Mason, the baby boy in the State prison.

"I fully realize the importance and necessity for providing a good home for the child," said the Governor, "and with the aid of the prison keeper I have been making efforts to find such a home. We are not in a hurry about the matter. The boy is in good care. The matron is looking after him, and all the stories about him running freely through the corridors and playing in the cells of the prisoners are untrue. The child is an exceedingly bright little fellow, and it would be a pity to let him grow up under the influences that his mother would undoubtedly wield over him. She is, I fear, beyond reformation. But she objects to having the child taken from her, and if he were taken against her will she would probably make trouble for the family who might adopt it.

"The child has no legal right in the prison, but the authorities are not disposed to cast him out without knowing where he is going and what training he is to receive. If he were given to any of the societies he would be apt to be labeled, so that the stigma of his parentage will follow him through life, and I am opposed to that."

The prison authorities regret that public attention has been called to the case, and will not permit visitors to interview the mother until the child has been disposed of.

FEES WOULD NOT PAY FOR DISTRICT COURT

Prominent Citizen Suggests That City Court is Really All That is Needed.

CAN TRY CIVIL ACTIONS

LOCAL LAWYERS SAY RECEIPTS WOULD NOT MEET EXPENSES.

General Belief That No District Court Will Be Established Here, Although All Would Like to See Justices' Courts Abolished.

The announcement in The Daily Press of Tuesday of the proposal to establish a district court in this city, provided the census shows that the population of the city is over 17,000, has caused no end of discussion among the legal fraternity and many other citizens as well. The almost unanimous opinion is that anything to do away with the justices' courts would be a substantial blessing to the city, but ideas concerning the advisability of a district court differ.

The cost to the city of maintaining such a court would run from $3,000 to $5,000, chiefly for the salaries of the judge, clerk and sergeant-at-arms. Proper quarters for the court would have to be considered. Of course it would not be $3,000 or $5,000 out of the city treasury without any return. The fees that now go to the justices of the peace and some that go to the District Court would go toward the support of the district court. The general concensus of opinion among local lawyers is that these returns would not meet the cost of the proposed court unless there should be a remarkable increase in that kind of legal business.

A well-known lawyer said this morning to a Press reporter that two or three years ago the justice courts did far more business than they do today. Why it was he did not attempt to explain except to simply say that people were not suing each other as much as before. Two or three years ago the fees might have amounted to $3,000 or $4,000, but today he did not believe that the year's fee would reach much above $1,500, if it did that.

A prominent citizen, who although not a lawyer, is well acquainted with the workings of the city government and courts, expressed his opinion to a Press reporter yesterday that the city would never go to the expense of establishing a district court in this city.

"I have no confidence in the efficiency of the courts of the justices of the peace," he declared, "but I cannot see the use of spending $3,000 for a district court. Why not let the City Court take up such cases as the city charter provides?"

The fact that the city charter does make such a provision is known to a very few citizens. The City Court has not tried any case of a civil nature, but has confined itself simply to the enforcement of the city ordinances.

In section 19, of the original charter of 1872, the City Judge is given power in criminal matters, the same as a justice of the peace. In section 21, of the charter, the City Magistrate is empowered to secure the enforcement of city ordinances.

In section 8, of the supplement to the charter, passed in 1873, it states "that the city judge shall have all the rights, powers, and jurisdiction that justices of the peace have for trial of civil actions before them." Furthermore that "his court shall be a court of record, the proceedings in which shall be the same as in courts for the trial of small causes and subject to the same laws as far as applicable." It also states that "judgments rendered in said court may be appealed from in all cases in which appeals are allowed in courts for the trial of small causes in the same manner."

The supplement to the charter, passed in 1874, states that "in proceedings for the enforcement of city ordinances, he (the city judge) shall have the same power as in the trial of civil actions."

Justices of the peace can only try civil actions in which the amount sued for does not exceed $200. In District Courts the limit is $300. The vast majority of the small civil actions come under the $200 limit and so could be tried in the City Court. The suggestion has been made that the salary of the City Judge be slightly increased, and that he hold court twice a week for the trial of civil actions and thus take the place of the District Court. It is believed that the return from the fees would be more than enough to make a suitable addition to the City Magistrate's salary and it would, in most cases, undoubtedly be to the best ends of justice.

NEW BRIDGE.

Somerset County Will Pay Half and Union and Middlesex One-quarter Each of the Expense.

A joint meeting of the bridge committees of the Freeholders of Somerset, Union and Middlesex counties was held yesterday in order to determine what course to pursue in regard to the Jefferson avenue bridge. There has been some differences of opinion as to whether the old structure should be repaired or replaced with a substantial and more modern iron bridge. At the meeting yesterday, which was held at the bridge, it was decided to adopt the latter course. The new structure will be a low-truss iron bridge, and will cost, it is estimated, in the neighborhood of $2,000, the expense to be borne by the three counties. Somerset is to pay one half and Union and Middlesex a quarter each. Bids for the construction will be opened at the present bridge Friday, August 3d.

PLAINFIELD GROOM.

Thomas Stephenson Weds a Middletown, N. J., Girl and Will Reside There Hereafter.

Considerable surprise was occasioned today by the announcement that Thomas Stephenson, a popular young Plainfield man, was married at Middletown, N. J., yesterday, to Miss Carrie Stillwell, of that place. The ceremony, which was a very quiet one, was witnessed only by the immediate relatives of both families and was performed at the home of the bride's parents.

Immediately after the ceremony the young couple left for Boston on a wedding trip. On returning home they will take up their residence in Middletown, where the groom has engaged in business. Mr. Stephenson has a large circle of acquaintances in this city, having lived here nearly all his life.

BASS JUMPED IN THE BOAT.

Exciting Fish Story Told By a Party of Plainfielders Boating on New Market Pond.

A party of Plainfield young people who went boating on the New Market pond Tuesday evening have a remarkable tale to relate. According to their story they had just passed the first bridge when the occupants of the boat were surprised to see some object flop over the side and land in their midst. It proved to be a large bass, measuring over twelve inches in length and weighing over two pounds. The fish had deliberately leaped into the boat where it was captured and brought back to Plainfield as evidence of the truth of the tale.

BY TROLLEY TO PHILLIE.

Company Which Proposes to Run From Trenton as a Rival to Steam Roads.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Trenton, July 26.—The New Jersey and Philadelphia Street Railway Company, which is backed by Boston capitalists, has secured the upper Delaware River bridge in this city and by January 1st next expect to be running cars over it from the centre of the city to Philadelphia. The bridge was bought for $200,000. Construction of the road will be commenced as soon as a few minor matters relating to right of way are settled. It is reported that the capitalists of the company now have in their possession a majority of the bonds of the Morrell system, which runs from Bristol to Philadelphia, with the exception of about a mile near Croyden.

It is the purpose of the concern to absorb the Morrell system and organize under the General Railroad act of Pennsylvania so as to secure the right to condemn land for the purpose for a steam railway in order to outpoint the Pennsylvania Railroad Company, which it is said has been successful in preventing the operation of a trolley connection near Croyden. When the road is built the trolley passengers will be transferred to a car run by a dummy engine or else the cars will be hauled by such an engine over the part of the road that cannot be used for trolleys. The road will be of the same gauge as the Trenton road with the view of making a traffic agreement with the local company.

WILD AND ROMANTIC TROLLEY RIDE THIS.

If it is a Sensation You're Looking for Just Travel From This City to Somerville.

BUT GET GET INSURED FIRST.

FOR THERE IS NO TELLING WHAT WILL HAPPEN TO YOU.

The Ride Said to be an Absolute Cure for Indigestion, and You Can Get Plenty of Thrills Seeing the Car Run Itself.

Among the things that should be numbered "Among the First Things in Somerset County" is the trolley that is now operated within the borders of that beautiful bailwick. It is really something to be proud of, and in view of the fact that the residents of that county were obliged to wait so many years for some means of quick travel from one place to another they are to be congratulated upon having such an up-to-date trolley with such good service. If one is really troubled to any extent with indigestion he needs only a ride on the trolley line running between Bound Brook and Somerville. This is pronounced an absolute cure for that disagreeable complaint, and this ride has even been known to cure heart trouble, especially among old people.

As one enters the car at Dunellen, which is box one and very enjoyable during the warm weather, he soon finds himself in Bound Brook, it taking about a half-hour to make the trip and giving plenty of chance to view the fine scenery along the road. At Bound Brook the passenger enters another closed car and in a few minutes he is on his way to the county seat of Somerset. If the ride happens to be at night there is a peculiar enchantment about the trip that one has to take to appreciate. Unless the moon happens to be full, the road is very dark and lonesome, and as the company does not provide straps to hold the passengers in their seats it is imperative that one should carry an accident policy. The car plunges from one side to the other and frequently it gives one the idea that they on the rolling ocean. The motorman only has one object in view—that of making his trip on time, and he makes no sacrifice for the comfort of those who ride. When a point is reached half way between Somerville and Bound Brook the lever is thrown wide open and the car, as well as the passengers, are left to the kind care of fortune. They sincerely hope and pray that they will reach their destination in safety, and very fortunately no serious accidents have thus far happened.

Recently a Plainfielder made the above trip and when the car was half way between Bound Brook and the county seat the motorman left his lever and break and for fully five minutes the car fairly flew over the tracks, while the motorman was engaged in watching a special car with a party of pleasure seekers that was following behind. The thoughts of jumping the track or striking a wagon filled some of the passengers with terror and everyone was glad when Somerville was reached.

The ride is not the only feature of this up-to-date road. The cars are to be considered. They are of the most antidiluvian style and one has a feeling that every minute they will fall to pieces throwing the occupants out in some field. To be sure there are two or three winter cars, extra long, that are more comfortable, but it is a question of chance as to whether one can catch these cars, and the chance is you don't get it. If the various boroughs and townships through which this romantic trolley runs have any power at all it certainly is time that they exercise it and bring about a much better condition of affairs. It must be that the residents in Somerset are willing to put up with any kind of a trolley, as long as they have one, and they certainly have any kind of a trolley.

A conductor on the line was asked why it cost more to ride from Plainfield to Somerville than it does to Elizabeth, and his reply was that the company had such hard work getting its franchises that they had made up their mind that the people could now pay for the trouble.

NO CAUSE FOR ANXIETY.

PRESIDENT DUMONT SAYS SEWAGE PROPLEM CAN BE SOLVED.

Other Inland Cities Have Successfully Accomplished It, So Why Not Plainfield?

According to the views of President John B. Dumont, of the Common Council, expressed to a Daily Press reporter this morning, the city need not worry greatly concerning the question of sewage disposal. While Mr. Dumont did not admit that the present system of intermittent downward filtration, as in use on the local sewage disposal beds, was not a success, he pointed out the facts that there were many cites all through this and other countries which are compelled to provide some means of sewage disposal. Inland cities could not reach the tidewater. This was being done successfully at many places and Plainfield had the advantage of these same systems.

While Plainfield might suffer a little inconvenience for a time, Mr. Dumont believed that there would be no trouble in finally providing a means of sewage disposal which would be satisfactory to all. Other cities had done so, then why cannot Plainfield?

GIRL HAZERS MUST GO.

New Jersey Board of Education Indorses Punishment of High School Juniors.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Trenton, July 26.—The State Board of Education has indosed the suspension of five young women of the State Normal School and the expulsion of three of their comrades for an escapade resembling those of lively college boys. Last June the members of the senior class gave a reception in the gymnasium to which the juniors were not invited through an oversight. The juniors were offended by the seeming slight and, bent on revenge, a score of girls made a raid on the school kitchen, armyed only in their nightgowns, and secured a supply of jellies and preserves.

Then they proceeded to where the seniors were sleeping and played all sorts of tricks on them. Pillow cases were smeared with jelly and chairs were suspended from chandeliers. It was also charged that letters were taken from the desks of the seniors. The fair marauders then marched to the lawn, where they nearly frightened the life out of the watchman, who thought there was a procession of ghosts from a nearby graveyard. He went and informed Matron Boyle, who encountered the girls while they were having a dance in the dining hall.

On her appearance the girls put out the lights and tried to escape. Several did, but those who failed were recognized and brought before the faculty. It is said by the latter that efforts to secure the reinstatement of the girls will be useless.

Rev. H. K. Carroll and family, of Westerveld avenue, will leave next week for the Catskills on their summer outing.

PLAINFIELD MAY GET COMPANY OF MILITIA

There Will Probably be a Vacancy in the State Guard by Disbandment of Newton County.

COL. COLLINS INTERESTED.

HE WILL AID THE PLAINFIELD BOYS IN THEIR AIM.

Dan Shea and Charles Peterson at the Head of the Proposed New Company—Sixty Recruits are Necessary.

Plainfield's opportunity to have a state militia company located in this city has finally arrived. From good authority comes the statement that Company I, of the Second Regiment, N. J. N. G., is to be disbanded on account of its decided inefficiency as shown at the state encampment at Sea Girt. The Second Regiment will then need another company and Plainfield is likely to have the first chance.

The idea of a militia company in Plainfield is not new. A number of attempts have been made in the past but without success. Before the Spanish War, some of the Plainfield young men belonged to Company H, of the Third Regiment, located at Somerville. There has been talk of a infantry company, a battery of light artillery and a troop of cavalry, but none were ever organized.

A movement was started in the spring that seemed to have promise of success. The State militia was to be reorganized and some of the veterans of the Spanish War saw in it the opportunity to have a company located here. Dan Shea, one of the local letter-carriers and Charles Peterson, assistant to Street Commissioner Gavett, both veterans of the Spanish War, were leaders in the movement and circulated a paper which was signed by some forty young men agreeing to join the company when it was organized.

Dan Shea was a private and clerk of the Elizabeth company of the Third Regiment, then commanded by Captain, now Lieutenant-Colonel D. F. Collins, of the Second Regiment, during the Spanish War. Peterson was a member of the First U. S. Volunteer Engineers during the war. Lieutenant Colonel Collins was very much interested in the proposed Plainfield company and promised to do all he could for it. The Second Regiment was completed in the reorganization without counting in Plainfield which had but forty of the necessary sixty men. So that chance went by.

The leaders in the movement for the Plainfield company were promised, however, an opportunity to get into the Second Regiment in case any of the present companies should disband. That chance has now arrived.

Company I, which hails from Newton, appeared at the Sea Girt camp with only thirty-four men, badly equipped, and it is reported that their drilling was far below the standard. The statement is made on good authority that the Newton company will go out of business and be disbanded at once.

Frank Marsh Finds Himself an Unfortunate Victim of an Accident on Trolley Road.

As a result of the Westfield and Elizabeth car jumping the track at Woodbridge, Saturday evening, Frank Marsh, formerly of this city, where he lived on Plainfield avenue, but now of Dunellen, will lose the sight of his left eye. Mr. Marsh was returning from Boynton Beach when the accident occurred, and was seated near the front of the car. When it jumped the track it plunged into a pole and shattered the front glass. Several pieces entered his eye, injuring it badly. On returning home he had the injured optic attended to by Dr. Ard, and yesterday went to the Eye and Ear Hospital at Newark. The doctors at the latter place informed him that there was no possible chance of saving the sight. The eye is very painful and will incapacitate him from work for some time.

TO MINE COPPER.

Deposits of Ore in East Orange Which the Owners Think It Will Pay to Take Out.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Orange, July 26.—Two copper mines in East Orange are to be worked by their owners. Martin B. Wallace, who some time ago discovered copper in an old well on his property in Grove street, has had rock from the well assayed, and the assay shows that there is enough copper in the stone to pay for mining it. Mr. Wallace expects to begin taking out ore in a short time.

Israel L. Dodd also owns land on which copper has been found, but his mine has been worked as far back as 1720. The copper was shipped to England, but when the Revolutionary War began the mine was abandoned, although so much ore had been found at that time that additional machinery had been ordered from abroad. Mr. Dodd contemplates working the old mine at once, and has bought additional land on which traces of copper have been found.

MOTHER ACCUSED.

Mrs Williams Charged With Locking Up Baby and Leaving It for Seven Hours.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Somerville, July 26—Anna Williams, a comely young woman, was brought before Squire Sutphen yesterday, charged with neglecting and starving her two-year-old child. She was accused of having locked the child up in a room and of having left it for seven hours without food or care.

Mrs. Williams had the child in her arms in court and it nestled close to its mother and viewed the proceedings from sunken eyes. Its cheeks were pale and its features pinched and a plaintive wail escaped several times from it. The mother told a pitiful story of suffering and want, and said that she would commit suicide were it not for the child. The police declared that she was unfit to have the care of the baby.

Justice Sutphen committed the woman to jail until an examination of her case could be made, the baby going with her.

The revenue stamps amounted to $240. This is the second largest mortgage ever recorded during County Clerk Somers' term of office. The largest was that of the Trenton Brewing Co., for $1,000,000.

CHILD LOST SEVEN HOURS.

Wandered From Rahway to Cranford After School.

Peter Hecker, a five-year-old son of Wm. Hecker, of Rahway, was lost yesterday for over seven hours under peculiar circumstances. Peter and an older brother, George, attend school at St. Mark's church. After Peter had recited the alphabet he was allowed to sit in the shade on the front stoop. When the older boy was ready to go home all traces of Peter were lost and the police were asked to look for the boy. All efforts failed until a bicycle rider related how he pitied a lost child he saw as he was wheeling through Cranford. The police telephoned to Cranford, and the police of that place answered that they had taken the little boy to Elizabeth. There the boy was recovered.

How the child wandered to Cranford is puzzling the police.

QUARRELED OVER DRINK OF WHISKEY.

Muldoon Now Charged With Inflicting Injuries That Caused the Death of Henning.

BOTH MEN WERE DRUNK.

WITNESS OF FIGHT TOLD THE STORY TO CORONER'S JURY.

Verdict Accusing Muldoon Brought in Late Last Night—Henning and Muldoon Had Been Carousing in New Brunswick.

The inquest into the cause of death of Jacob Henning, the canalman, was concluded last evening before Coroner Henry DeMott at his place on Somerset street. Prosecutor John L. Griggs conducted the examination before the jury, and every available point was brought out carefully and plainly. Edward A. Johnson, Jr., of New Brunswick, was present in behalf of the suspected man, John Muldoon, and he took notes throughout the hearing. Constable Totten and Dr. Wagoner, county physician, of Somerville, and Constable Wm. N. Pangborn, of the borough, who had charge of the jury, were also present.

The first witness called was John McElroy, a shantyman, whose residence is at 79 Huntington street, New Brunswick. He was with Muldoon and Henning Tuesday night, July 10th, when the quarrel and fight took place. The three men went to New Brunswick from Bound Brook early that evening, and they left New Brunswick for home about 12:30 o'clock Wednesday morning, arriving at Bound Brook a little after 1 o'clock.

These facts were brought out through the questioning of the prosecutor: That the men had been paid on July 10th, and that night the three men went to New Brunswick for a good time. Muldoon and Henning drank freely and during the evening became intoxicated. They were in this condition when they returned home. They left the car near Connor's saloon in Main street, Bound Brook, and soon afterward Muldoon and Henning were quarreling. Both had a bottle of whiskey, and the purpose of each seemed to be to have the other man take a drink out of his bottle. So persistent were each that in short order they began to fight and use much force. The fight took place in an alley nearby. McElroy was present and saw Muldoon strike Henning. He also saw him kick him. He saw Henning fall as a result of the assault. He then watched him get up and run down the bridge toward the canal bridge. Muldoon followed. Neither one of the men were running very fast on account of their condition.

McElroy testified that he walked in the same direction slowly and soon the two men were out of sight. He did not see Henning again that night, but he met Muldoon a little later on the southwest side of the canal bridge. They had a short conversation, during which Muldoon asked McElroy to have a drink of whiskey. The latter refused at that time, but took a drink later. The two men then walked down the canal to where their boat was fastened. McElroy stated that he went to bed soon after, while Muldoon remained up for a while. No conversation concerning Henning was held. The next time McElroy saw Henning was the Thursday morning following, when he came to the boat and showed his injuries. That was the first McElroy knew how badly Henning was injured. Henning made no explanation concerning the trouble at that time. Henning returned to the boat the same morning of the quarrel, but he got on the boat without meeting anyone.

John McCabe, who is also employed by the Delaware and Raritan Canal Company as foreman of this division, was the next witness. Both Muldoon and Henning were employed on McCabe's boat. He testified that the last time he saw Muldoon was at the boat about a half mile east of Ten-Mile-Run on Friday, July 13th, about 11 o'clock in the morning. He was then taking his belongings away from the boat. McCabe told him that Henning was in the Plainfield hospital. Muldoon replied that he did nothing to Henning but give him a kick, and claimed that his injuries were caused by a fall from the bunk in the boat and not the kick he gave him. Muldoon stated that he had better go away as he did not want to be arrested. He left twenty minutes later and McCabe had not seen him since. The latter testified that the men were paid in checks on July 10th, and it was generally expected that they would go

THE BICYCLE TROLLEY.

Detroit Inventor Has an Idea Which Is Interesting Even Though It May Not Be Practical.

If the dreams of a Detroit inventor are realized there will soon be a network of wires stretching across the country on which owners of bicycles will be able to travel at their ease and without paying any attention to the condition of the roads. The invention, as the Detroit man has patented it, consists of a steel frame suspended from a wire, the frame being so built that it will hold an ordinary bicycle, together with the necessary mechanism for communicating the power to the wheels running on the trolley wire.

When a bicycle is fitted into the frame of the "bicycle trolley" its rear wheel rests on a flat belt running over two small wheels. An upright steel rod with a bevel gear top and bottom transfers the power generated by riding the bicycle in the ordinary way to the wheels running on the trolley wire, so that the frame, bicycle, rider and all will be carried swiftly along beneath the wire. The inventor contemplates the formation of a national company, with toll gates, to control the wire roads and telephone service all along the route.

THE BICYCLE TROLLEY.

(A System Which Enables Wheelmen to Laugh at Bad Roads.)

Getting Even.

Gold Democrats So Decide at Indianapolis.

FUSION WITH "ANTIS" ALSO DEFEATED

Small Attendance of National Committeemen—Haldeman Declares For Bryan and Stevenson—Only One Vote For a Nomination.

INDIANAPOLIS, July 26.—By unanimous vote of the national committee of the National (gold standard) Democracy yesterday afternoon the scheme of fusion with the anti-imperialistic movement originating with the recent mass meeting at the Plaza hotel in New York city was defeated, as was also the plan to place a gold standard Democratic ticket in the field this year.

Of the 39 members of the national committee there were present 19 members. Two of the committeemen held several proxies. The hour of 4 p. m. had been appointed for the conference with the Plaza hotel committee. At that time the latter committee made its appearance, and a subcommittee presented an address setting out the proposition for fusion and a third party ticket, with the reasons set forth at the New York meeting. Upon the hearing of argument from John Jay Chapman, Thomas Osborne of the New York committee and others the gold standard men decided upon an immediate consideration of the question. The New York committeemen took back seats and listened to a discussion which continued for more than an hour. In accordance with a suggestion by Charles Tracey of New York each member of the National Democratic committee expressed his views on the matter. Eastern and western men severally opposed the proposition, taking the ground that there had been dissatisfaction and withdrawals from the ranks of the National Democracy and that the placing of a third ticket in the field this year with the new issues now before the country would in no way tend to accomplish the end and aim of the organization of the National Democratic party in 1896. It was argued that those gold standard Democrats who stand today where they stood in the campaign of 1896 on the money question and against "Bryanism" would be left free to vote in support of the Republican platform, which was unchangeably in favor of "a sound and stable monetary system."

When W. B. Haldeman, proprietor of the Louisville Courier-Journal and member of the national executive committee, arose, a sensation was sprung. The speaker declared his intention of supporting Bryan and Stevenson. Mr. Haldeman in 1896 contributed much aid in actively raising funds for the organization and maintenance of the work of the gold Democracy and was a member of the auditing committee of that party. He stood not three feet away from John P. Frenzel as he talked and apparently directed his attention exclusively to that gentleman. While he was talking a hush fell upon the gathering, and when he had concluded he took his hat and left the room.

The withdrawal of Mr. Haldeman from the meeting was understood as a withdrawal from the committee and all further connection with the National Democratic organization. Expressions of regret were made by many of those present, who praised the Kentuckian for the valuable aid he had rendered in the past.

When the vote on the question of fusion and the nomination of a third ticket was taken, Gordon Woodbury of New Hampshire proved to be the only committeeman present who favored a third party ticket. He urged his views at some length. The vote was by ballot and stood 26 to 1 against the proposition. Mr. Woodbury at once moved that the vote be made unanimous, and this was done.

Quentin, she began the work which developed into the Woman's National Indian association.

Peru Adopts Gold Standard.

WASHINGTON, July 26.—Mr. Roberts, the director of the mint, has been advised by the United States minister to Peru that the latter country has completed the reform in its monetary system in view when the free coinage of silver was suspended in April, 1897. The single gold standard has been adopted and a gold coin issued known as the libra or Peruvian pound, being identical in weight and fineness with the English pound sterling.

Epidemic of Typhoid.

WATERTOWN, N. Y., July 26.—Watertown is in the grasp of a typhoid fever epidemic. Fifty cases are said to be in charge of the physicians. At least six deaths have resulted in the last fortnight. The cause is ascribed by physicians to the germs in wells and the decayed fruits and vegetables sold in the market. Many wells have been closed up by the authorities. Twenty employees of one shop underneath which there was a well are ill.

SORRY SHOWING FOR C. F. W. NEELY

Over $130,000 Stolen—Director Rathbone Lived Beyond His Income and Appropriated Postal Funds—Details of the Gigantic Scheme.

WASHINGTON, July 26.—The following is a summary of the report of Fourth Assistant Postmaster General Bristow to the postmaster general on the frauds in Cuba:

Receiving your letter of instructions of May 16, I left Washington for Cuba and arrived at Havana on Saturday, May 19. After a conference with General Wood I decided to take immediate charge of the department of posts. Upon assuming charge I immediately began a careful inquiry as to the extent of the frauds and embezzlements and the necessity for a reorganization of the department.

On Jan. 7, 1899, Director Rathbone created a bureau of finance, to which was assigned the custody of all stamps and postal supplies, furnishing the same to postmasters and receiving remittances therefor. C. F. W. Neely was appointed chief of this bureau.

There were two classes of postmasters, bonded and unbonded. Bonded postmasters were furnished postal supplies on credit and remitted for the same periodically. Unbonded postmasters were required to pay cash for all postal supplies. Accounts were opened by the bureau of finance with bonded postmasters, but all remittances from unbonded postmasters were entered as cash sales. No accounts were kept with these unbonded postmasters. Postmasters were not required to report to the bureau of postal accounts the amount of their requisitions or remittances, so that all the information that bureau had as to the financial transactions of the bureau of finance was received from the chief of that bureau, Neely, himself. Thus there was practically no check whatever upon his transactions. As a result of the investigation I am able to submit the following summary of the financial transactions of C. F. W. Neely:

Stock received from Jan. 1, 1899, to May 19, 1900	$ 970,454 18
Cash received from all sources, Jan. 1, 1899, to May 19, 1900	556,926 80
Total	$1,527,380 98

This $1,527,380.98 is the total amount with which Neely is chargeable. His records, as he left them, show him entitled to the following credits:

Stock on hand	$ 191,032 06
Cash on hand	2,333 00
Stock furnished to postmasters	459,101 40
Amount of postal funds deposited	447,278 91
Miscellaneous credits	4,445 51
Surcharged stamps alleged to have been destroyed	392,589 37
Shortage to balance	30,600 73
Total	$1,527,380 98

That is, if Neely had balanced his own books, taking all the credits he claimed, he would have been short $30,600.73. But he is credited with $392,589.37 for surcharged stamps destroyed, which is in part a fraudulent credit. The surcharged stamps were used from Jan. 1, 1899, to Aug. 31, 1899, when the new issue of Cuban stamps was received. Neely had received $522,000 worth of these surcharged stamps. He disposed of and held receipts for $230,179.20 worth, leaving a balance on hand Aug. 31, 1899, of $291,820.80. So that if he had destroyed all of the surcharged stamps that he had on hand Aug. 31 he could not have destroyed more than $291,820.80 worth, or $100,768.57 less than he was given credit for having destroyed. It is not believed, however, that he destroyed all of the surcharged stamps that he had on hand. The minimum of Neely's embezzlements therefore may be summarized as follows.

Excess of credit by destruction of surcharged stamps definitely ascertained	101,113 16
Total	$131,713 89

This will be increased by the discovery of additional sales of surcharged stamps, but will not exceed $150,000 in the aggregate. An interesting compilation has been made from Neely's cashbook. It shows:

Cash received from all sources	$559,759 63
Cash accounted for	431,481 17
Leaving a cash shortage of	$119,278 46

His cashbooks do not show an accurate amount of cash received, because there is evidence that he did not enter on his books all the cash received from unbonded postmasters. The first computation is considered the most reliable estimate of Neely's embezzlements that can be arrived at. Numerous exhibits are submitted with the report relating to Neely's financial transactions in detail.

Neely's fraudulent transactions, however, were not confined to embezzlements only, and, while the amounts thus received by him were small as compared with the outright embezzlements, yet they show the same official depravity and utter disregard for the interests of the public service.

Neely was appointed to a position in the Cuban postal service Dec. 24, 1898, and assigned to duty in Havana Jan. 7, 1899. His salary was fixed at $1,800 per annum. He was financially embarrassed at the time of his appointment. He did his banking business with the Union National bank of Muncie, and his account was frequently overdrawn. On Feb. 6, 1899, he sent a deposit of $329.75 from Cuba to the Muncie bank, and in February and March his additional deposits aggregated $1,530. Thus Neely, with a salary of $1,800, or $150 a month, was able within three months to deposit $1,859.75, which is conclusive proof that his embezzlements began in February, 1899. In May he deposited $837.28; in June, $775.24; in July, $963; on Aug. 14, $13,125.50; on Oct. 6, $20,250, and a number of deposits of lesser amounts were made afterward.

On Dec. 21, 1898, E. G. Rathbone was appointed director general of posts. His salary was fixed at $4,000 per annum. At his earnest request the postmaster general on Jan. 30, 1899, allowed him $5 per diem for expenses in addition to his salary. Later on he claimed his salary and per diem were not sufficient, and on June 19 the postmaster general in response wrote him that his salary should be increased to $6,500 per annum and that, "with the compensation fixed at $6,500, the per diem of $5 would cease." On July 3, in answer to this letter, Rathbone, in a complaining way, stated that this increased his salary but $675 and indicated a very earnest desire that a house be furnished him as an official residence. In reply to this letter the postmaster general on July 7 wired him, "Will make full allowance for house besides salary" and on the 8th wrote, "This means that it is our purpose that provision shall be made for a suitable residence for you over and above the fixed compensation of $6,500."

On Dec. 19 the postmaster general issued the order fixing the salary at $6,500, making it effective Aug. 1. The salary of the director general therefore was from Aug. 1, 1899, $6,500 per annum without per diem. In addition to the salary he was provided with a house. The records of the department of posts show that he continued to draw $5 per diem in addition to the $6,500 as salary and when called upon by Colonel Burton for his authority for this allowance submitted the letter, suppressing that part of it prohibiting the per diem. In closing the discussion as to per diem the report says:

It appears, therefore, that Director General Rathbone drew from Aug. 1, 1899, to April 30, 1900, the sum of $1,365 as a per diem, which was unauthorized, and that the drawing of the same was fraudulent and I, therefore, recommend that he be required to reimburse the postal revenues of Cuba in that amount.

There were many large expenditures by Rathbone and Neely for which no vouchers were filed when vouchers could have been easily obtained. These expenditures were usually made by Neely and approved by Rathbone. The report says: "I do not credit Reeves' statement, however. The evidence is too strong of collusion existing between Neely, Rathbone and Reeves for the purpose of passing these unwarranted expense accounts." For some months such miscellaneous expenditures aggregated as much as $850. Such items as "repairs, $200;" "freight, $450;" "miscellaneous expenses, $78," appear without any receipts or accompanying vouchers whatever. Director General Rathbone, on being asked as to these miscellaneous expenditures, said that he supposed Neely was honest and that the accounts were right, and he therefore ordered them paid.

General Rathbone has been engaged in the government service many years and knows that such a method of presenting bills and such expenditures are wholly unwarranted and bear the strongest evidences of corruption. Therefore for him to approve such accounts renders him equally guilty with Neely. The total amount of these miscellaneous expenditures was $6,290.58. A part of this was probably legitimate, but a large part were doubtless fraudulent expenditures, for which Rathbone, Neely and Reeves are equally responsible.

In this report I have not endeavored to go into minute details, presenting as briefly as practicable the more salient features. Additional information will probably be secured, but not of such a nature as to materially change the conclusions.

Director General Rathbone maintains that he is innocent of wrongdoing; that these extensive embezzlements are the result of dishonesty on the part of subordinate officials who had been well recommended to him as honest and upright men and that he had found no cause to doubt their integrity or efficiency of administration; that the revelations brought out by the investigation were a great surprise to him and wholly unexpected; that he had believed up to the 6th day of May last that the accounts of the department of posts were kept systematically and honestly.

Granting that what Director General Rathbone states is true, he convicts himself of the grossest carelessness in the administration of the affairs of his office or of an utter incapacity to comprehend its duties and responsibilities.

From the information obtained by this investigation, which I have endeavored to set forth in the foregoing pages, it is my belief that I was justified in recommending the removal of Director General Rathbone from office, and I further believe that he should be required to answer for fraudulently and unlawfully appropriating to his own use moneys from the postal revenues of Cuba.

Italian Counterfeiter Arrested.

PHILADELPHIA, July 26.—In the arrest yesterday of Bartho Ruello, an Italian, by Secret Service Operatives Burns and Griffin on a charge of making and passing counterfeit silver dollars the secret service believe they have in custody the one man who has been responsible for the circulation of coin of that denomination throughout this city, New York and portions of New Jersey for some years past. This is not the first time Ruello has been in the custody of the government on similar charges. He was arrested in New York about 1887 and served a short term. Again in 1891 he was arrested in this city for passing a counterfeit $5 note, but was acquitted. After his arrest yesterday, which was accomplished after the secret service men had been shadowing him for many months, a search of his rooms brought to light a crucible, dipper, tongs, base metal and other paraphernalia necessary to make the bogus coin he is charged with making and passing.

Indian Trouble Averted.

WASHINGTON, July 26.—Indian Agent Mercer, in charge of the Leech Lake agency, Minn., in a mail report received at the Indian bureau, says that the Cross Lake Indians, who threatened serious trouble there a week or ten days ago, had prepared for a fight by buying up all the arms and ammunition obtainable. The Indians finally permitted the building of the new government boarding school to continue on an agreement that they would aid the school and send their children to it; that the government should not sell or give the land away, and that all hay and wood should be bought from them.

Ice Embargo Lifted.

ST. JOHN'S, N. F., July 26.—The Labrador ice embargo is at last lifted, and the floes, released, are being driven off shore by westerly winds. Hundreds of fishing vessels are now making for their destinations after having been ice-bound for six weeks. At several points fishing had already begun, and the prospects were encouraging, but now the season is so far advanced that no one expects a big fishery.

Maybury For Governor.

DETROIT, July 26.—William C. Maybury, mayor of Detroit, was unanimously nominated for governor of Michigan on the Democratic ticket. Half a dozen other candidates were presented, but they withdrew before a vote was called, and the nomination of Maybury was made by acclamation.

Dead From Mosquito Bite.

TORONTO, July 26.—J. P. Close, a prominent citizen, is dead as the result of a mosquito bite after two weeks' illness. He was 62 years old. Close was enjoying his usual health when he was bitten. Blood poisoning followed, and his condition slowly grew worse.

PORTO RICANS CELEBRATE

St. Jago's Day Kept With Great Pomp In San Juan.

SAN JUAN, Porto Rico, July 26.—From end to end yesterday the streets of San Juan were a labyrinth of glittering Spanish flags in honor of St. Jago, the patron saint of Spain. Banners and bunting suspended from house to house covered the thoroughfares, and everywhere the balconies were richly dressed. There was no attempt whatever to display the American colors. The celebration of the Fourth of July was totally eclipsed. Then the citizens were unable to raise a dollar for the purposes of demonstration. Now there was no difficulty in carrying through a programme which must have cost $5,000. Possibly six native houses displayed the stars and stripes. On the other hand, it is estimated that no fewer than 2,500 Spanish flags were flung to the breeze.

Tuesday evening there was a grand concert in the plaza, attended by 3,000 Spaniards, and this was followed by patriotic addresses, received with great enthusiasm, at the Casino.

The day dawned with the ringing of church bells, the discharge of skyrockets and roman candles, street parades and band serenades. Business was entirely suspended. An elaborate ball at the Casino last evening concluded the festivities.

The real feeling of the people was expressed by bands of hoodlums who paraded the streets in the less respectable quarters of the city carrying Spanish flags and shouting, "Vive Espanol!" The fact that the day was the second anniversary of the landing of the United States troops under General Miles seemed to be forgotten here. Although at Ponce, Mayaguez and other points there were slight observances of the anniversary, it was apparent that the local celebration had been carefully arranged to eclipse that of the Fourth of July, which was scarcely observed at all in Porto Rico.

RAIN IN INDIA.

General and Plentiful Fall In Some Provinces—Others Still Suffering.

LONDON, July 26.—The governor of Bombay presidency, Lord Northcote of Exeter, reports a general rainfall "sufficient for agricultural purposes" in Surat and southern Gujarat. He says that two and a half inches of rain have fallen since Tuesday in Godhra and Panch Mahals, an inch in several parts of Ahmadabad, over half an inch in parts of Kaira and sufficient in the portions of Baroda adjoining Surat.

In the remainder of Baroda no rain has fallen, and an extensive failure of crops is inevitable unless there is immediate relief. In Okhamandal the rainfall has been insufficient, and cultivation is at a standstill in almost the entire province of Kathiawar, where cattle are dying of starvation and scarcity of water.

There have been good rains in Bombay, Khandeish and the Deccan, where prospects are greatly improved.

The death rate in Gujarat has decreased nearly half as compared with that of May.

General Charles Miller was appointed major general of Pennsylvania.

Several lives were believed to have been lost in an explosion near Syracuse.

A motion was made in the house of commons to reduce Joseph Chamberlain's salary as a censure.

It was reported in Washington that H. Clay Evans may be appointed first assistant postmaster general.

Fierce Fighting at Panama.

COLON, Colombia, July 26.—A terrific engagement still continues between the government troops and the insurgents around Panama, but the former are still holding their ground. Many have been killed and wounded, and a four hours' armistice was agreed upon to attend the wounded and bury the dead. The steamer Bernard Hall arrived at Colon from Savanilla at 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon with re-enforcements for the government numbering 1,000. They were brought by General Campos Serrano, governor of the department. The cable between Colon and Jamaica has been repaired.

Prohibition State Ticket.

UTICA, N. Y., July 26.—The Prohibition state convention has concluded its labors. The candidates nominated are as follows: Governor, Dr. William T. Wardwell of New York; lieutenant governor, A. J. Rumsey of Batavia; secretary of state, Joseph V. Baker of Gouverneur; comptroller, Mason N. Weed of Montour Falls; treasurer, Fred W. Hewitt of Granville; attorney general, Dexter D. Dorn of Jamestown; state engineer and surveyor, Emmett F. Smith of Patchogue.

Fatal Fall of a Scaffold.

LANCASTER, Pa., July 26.—A scaffold at the Millersville State Normal school's new model school building broke under the weight of six carpenters, precipitating four of them 40 feet to the ground. Abram Geist and Jacob Henry were fatally injured and Charles Asper and Milton Long seriously injured. John T. Reese and Frederick Diem leaped into a window as the scaffold fell and escaped injury.

DROWNING A BUFFALO.

A Texan Cowboy's Most Brilliant and Difficult Feat of Roping a Wild Bull.

A group of cattlemen at the live stock convention at El Reno were talking about the skill of the Oklahoma cowboys in throwing the lariat, when R. E. Word, Sr., whose home is at Higgins, Tex., but whose cattle are mostly in Oklahoma, according to an Oklahoma correspondence of the Kansas City Star, said: "I had an experience roping when I was a young man which put me through a lively gait. As a Texan who had followed the range all his life, I felt that there was not a bronco on top of the ground that could throw me, and nothing on four legs that I couldn't rope and tie. In the summer of 1871 I was on the Little Arkansas river, about five miles south of Wichita, Kan. I had a splendid horse, trained for the range and almost as intelligent as a man. One afternoon I came suddenly upon five big buffalo bulls that had wandered away from the main herd. I pulled my pistol, killed one of them, and not having time to reload decided to rope one. Shortly afterward I found myself with a big job on my hands.

"At the first throw my rope dropped around the old bull's horns. Now, when a buffalo makes up his mind to go anywhere in a rush he travels in a straight line. You may be able to turn him a little, but in the main he will keep his course. That was what this bull did. He headed toward the Little Arkansas, with the evident intention of crossing it. My horse, always fearless when handling cattle, was timid when in close quarters with a buffalo, and I was unable to check the bull, who soon had me going south at a lively clip. I was becoming of the opinion that the only way out of my trouble was to cut my rope and let the bull carry it off.

"The Little Arkansas is narrow in places, while at no great distance away will be found pools four and five feet deep and from 25 to 40 feet wide. The bull rushed headlong into one of these pools. The opposite bank was perpendicular and about a foot and a half above the water. Taking in the situation quickly, I saw that I could run out my rope far enough to enable my horse to cross at a narrow, shallow place. He jumped across in fact ahead of the bull, which had to wade. My horse had to keep going, and jerked the rope taut just as the bull started to climb the bank. The jerk pulled the bull's nose into the water and his shaggy head against the perpendicular bank. He made a great uproar, but my horse held him there as in a vise. Strange as it may seem, I succeeded in keeping that bull's nose under water until he drowned. I always regarded this as my most brilliant feat in roping."

WORD FROM CONGER

Genuine Letter From Our Minister, Dated July 4.

SIEGE HAD LASTED TWO WEEKS.

Massacre of All Foreigners Determined—Letter Thought to Have Been Written at Same Time as Famous Cipher Message.

WASHINGTON, July 26.—The receipt at Tien-tsin of an undoubtedly genuine and autographic message from Minister Conger has done nothing to dissipate the doubt as to the situation at Peking. The message, which was forwarded by the naval officers at Tien-tsin, Taku and Chefu, has indeed served only to deepen the darkest and saddest mystery of the century. The official conclusion remains unchanged, of course, but it is admitted that a careful scrutiny of the autograph message in comparison with the famous cipher message from Minister Conger admits of the belief that the two messages were indited by Mr. Conger at about the same time.

The situation at the British legation is represented to be the same in each case, and as Mr. Conger declares that relief must come quickly if at all there is ground for the supposition that conditions could not long have remained unchanged in such a crisis. The assumption that this reasoning is correct involves the further conclusion that Mr. Conger's cipher message, if genuine, was redated as of the 18th of July, two weeks later than the date of actual writing, and of course, if redated at all, that was done by Chinese officials.

The following is the cablegram received at the navy department, dated Chefu, July 24:

"Written message, signed Conger, dated July 4, received Tien-tsin 21st, says:

"'Been besieged two weeks British legation. Grave danger general massacre by Chinese soldiers, who are shelling legation daily. Relief soon, if at all. City without government except by Chinese army. Determined massacre all foreigners Peking. Entry relief forces into city probably be hotly contested.'"

The message comes from Captain Charles M. Thomas, commander of the Brooklyn.

On the other hand, and in support of the state department position, came a message from another of the great Chinese viceroys, Tak. at Canton, he who took charge after Li Hung Chang's departure. This also affirmed solemnly the safety of the legationers, and, coming from so many different sources and from such important Chinese officials, these dispatches do claim attention. A pessimistic view of them, however, attributes to all a common origin—namely, some one high Chinese personage at Peking. It is noted that Tak's assurance brings the ministers one day further toward ultimate rescue than has any preceding message. The fact that it allows only three days to cover the transmission over the great distance between Peking and Canton has attracted attention here and appears to demand explanation if the message is to be accepted as genuinely of Peking origin.

It was not known to the state department until the publication of the fact in the news dispatches that the French government also had been addressed by the Chinese government in the effort to secure mediation. Now it appears that still other powers were addressed in a similar strain. It is known that Great Britain and Germany and probably Russia have received such messages. The language is not the same, but the animating idea is. The state department officials feel that, generally speaking, this idea is not so much to secure mediation pure and simple as to induce the powers to resort to the settlement of the difficulties between them and China by the substitution of negotiations for armed forces. This appears more clearly from a comparison of the various notes than it did in the single note addressed to the president. Being so, the chances of a successful outcome of this attempt of the Chinese government to secure an amelioration of the consequences of the Boxer uprising are much diminished by the intimation that the powers are expected to refrain from pressing the movement toward Peking.

On the contrary, the United States war department is moving at present with greater energy than at any time since the original orders for troops to get its contingent in position for the task before it.

General Chaffee reported to the department formally yesterday from Nagasaki and there received the orders which have been sent by cable since his departure from San Francisco. An idea of their general character can be gathered from the general's report that he was about to push forward at once with his big transport for Taku. He will not even stop at Chefu, and it is even doubtful whether he will detain the Grant at Nagasaki long enough to take on coal. He is also energetically taking steps in advance to meet the evil of which all the foreign naval commanders have complained, but none have remedied, the lack of landing facilities at Taku. To this end he has instructed Lieutenant Colonel Coolidge of the Ninth infantry at Tien-tsin to secure at once all of the tugs and lighters necessary to a speedy landing of the re-enforcements and stores that are being carried out by the transport Grant.

SMALL HOPE FOR ENVOYS.

Recent Chinese Reports Only Made to Gain Time.

LONDON, July 26.—Mr. Conger's letter, the substance of which has been transmitted to the United States secretary of the navy through Captain Thomas of the United States cruiser Brooklyn, has increased the belief in London that there is no hope for the foreign legations in Peking and that the elaborate fabric of dispatches which the Chinese are building to persuade the civilized world that the ministers are still alive is only intended to enable them to gain time to complete preparations for warfare.

The Shanghai correspondent of The Daily Mail asserts that a Chinaman who was employed at the British legation as a writer and interpreter has escaped from Peking to Niu-chwang and that he declares that at the time he left Peking most of the members of the legations were dead and the condition of the others was hopeless. He says that Sir Robert Hart, director of Chinese imperial maritime customs, died on July 2.

The correspondent goes on to say:

"No other dates are given in the message from Niu-Chwang. The leading Chinese newspaper here published yesterday a dispatch declaring that it was all over with the members of the legations. The president of a minor board at Peking wrote to a relative in Shanghai under date of July 9, saying: 'The foreign legations are still uncaptured, but owing to the daily fighting it is reported that only about 300 persons are left alive in the legations, and if there is any delay in the arrival of the relief force I fear that none will be left to receive it.'

"This letter is regarded in Shanghai as authentic. Strange enough, it says nothing of any assistance to the legations by Prince Ching or General Lung Lu."

The Shanghai correspondent of The Daily Express, telegraphing yesterday, says:

"A general rising throughout China is now regarded as so absolutely certain that all the missionaries throughout the empire have been ordered to take refuge without delay either at Shanghai or Hongkong. Refugees are beginning to arrive from all points in the most pitiable condition.

"As the result of a constant correspondence with the governor of Shangtung, Li Hung Chang yesterday afternoon announced that the imperial government was prepared at any moment to give a safe convoy to the members of the foreign legations from Peking to Tien-tsin provided a guarantee was given that no advance would be made upon the capital and that all matters in dispute between China and the powers would be made the subject of friendly negotiations.

"In the same communication to the consuls Earl Li stated that the imperial government had submitted to the powers a statement of its position, declaring that it had suffered greatly by recent events, but desired not only to suppress the rebellion, but to remove the causes of the hostility of foreign powers. Therefore he hoped the offer to escort the foreigners to Tien-tsin would be regarded as an earnest desire of the Chinese government for the renewal of friendly relations.

"The consuls replied that no basis for friendly negotiations was possible until proof was at hand that the ministers were still living. Consul Warren declined to discuss the matter at all, but in his reply to the French consul Li Hung Chang undertook to obtain a satisfactory message from the French minister, M. Pichon, within five days."

The Daily Express has the following from St. Petersburg:

"Admiral Skrydeloff, commanding the Russian squadron in Chinese waters, has received precise instructions to bombard the Chinese coast towns immediately on receipt of confirmation of the report of the massacre at Peking."

GENERAL DORWARD'S TRIBUTE.

British Commander Pays High Tribute to American Valor.

TIEN-TSIN, July 16, via Chefu, July 24.—General Dorward, the British commander, has sent to the American commanders a letter in which he says:

"I desire to express the high appreciation of the British troops of the honor done them in serving alongside of their comrades of the American army and of the high honor accorded me in having them under my command.

"I blame myself for the mistake made in taking their position by the Ninth regiment, not remembering that troops fresh to the scene of action and hurried forward in the excitement of attack were likely to lose their way. Still the position they took and gallantly stuck to all day undoubtedly prevented a large body of the enemy from turning the right of the attacking line and inflicting serious loss on the French and Japanese."

General Dorward also expressed sympathy with the Americans in the loss of Colonel Liscum, commander of the regiment, and Captain Davis of the marine corps. He commended Lieutenant Smedley Butler and Lieutenant Henry Leonard of the marine corps and Lieutenant Louis Lawton of the regiment and praised Lieutenant Colonel Coolidge for his skillful withdrawal of the regiment.

Fifth Infantry Starts For China.

NEW YORK, July 26.—The Fifth infantry reached the Lackawanna pier in Hoboken last night on the transport Rawlins. As soon as the transport docked the work of getting the equipment together and on a special freight train was begun. Early this morning the freight train was sent out. It ran express through to Buffalo over the Lackawanna. Between 8 and 9 o'clock this morning a special train of 11 cars pulled out with the men. The men were quartered aboard the transport last night. They were all in good condition and health and expressed themselves as anxious to see service in China.

Wise Will Not Go to the Chair.

NEW YORK, July 26.—Edward Wise, the young man now in the condemned house at the state prison in Sing Sing and who was to go to the electric chair on Aug. 6, has had his sentence changed from death to imprisonment for life by Governor Roosevelt. Wise was implicated in the killing of Charles F. Beasley, a cab driver, in New York on the morning of Nov. 9, 1898. He was tried and convicted and sentenced to death. While he was in the prison awaiting death the Boston police received a communication from the Scotland Yard authorities stating that James Sweeney, formerly of Boston, while dying in England confessed that he had killed Beasley.

Democrats Yield to Populists.

FORT SCOTT, Kan., July 26.—At their convention yesterday Kansas City Democracy surrendered to the demands of the Populists and thereby made possible the tightest and most harmonious fusion that has ever existed in this state. The Populists had demanded from the Democrats the office of associate justice in exchange for that of attorney general, although the former office had previously been granted the Democrats in what was supposed to be an airtight agreement. After an all night session of conference committees the question was left open, to be settled by the Democrats. A fight was expected before the Democrats would give up this plum.

A Fast Warship.

BOSTON, July 26.—On her official trial trip the new Russian protected cruiser Variag, built by the Cramps at Philadelphia, proved herself to be the fastest ship of her class in the world. Over a measured course of ten nautical miles the Variag was gradually speeded up to 24.6 knots an hour and in the teeth of a severe electrical tempest which kicked up quite a sea and raised a mist that prevented the buoys marking the course from being quickly picked up on the ninth time over it.

The Prison Baby.

New Jersey, always the home of many curious phases of life, now offers a unique subject for sober thought and action in the case of little Charles Edward Mason, the two-year-old "prison baby." His mother is a confirmed criminal now serving her third term in prison and holding out but a faint hope of reformation; and the child being born and reared under prison influences, the question that forces itself upon a charitable and well-meaning world is, What shall be done with the boy?

Since the facts surrounding the case of the "prison baby" first received publicity, there has been much consideration among reformers and philanthropists as to the carrying out of a plan which would remove the little fellow from the daily contact of felons and place him where he might come under the wholesome home influences that are so necessary to the proper bringing-up of children.

Before anything is done for the betterment of the child's condition, however, it is desired to secure the consent and approval of his mother, who, even though she is deprived of her liberty and is an inmate of the prison cell, is recognized as possessing the love of a mother. Of course, the child might be taken away from its abode in the prison in defiance of the mother, and though she might weep and wail over the parting her anguish would avail her nothing in the end, because there she is locked up without means or privileges to appeal to the courts and, more than anything else, without friends to aid her in such a position.

But it is not the desire of those in authority to part the mother and child in such a cruel manner. An appreciation of the eternal right of the innocent babe to commence life under favorable circumstances demand, however, that it be removed from its present environment and transplanted to a place where it may grow into manhood without the evil contamination which is bound to be associated with him as long as he remains about the prison. Now the question asserts itself, how shall this be done?

It would seem that notwithstanding the debased mind of the convict-mother, the inherent love and pride for her offspring might be stirred to a noble impulse by proper pleading and her consent secured to remove the child to surroundings where he may grow to manhood without the brand of a prison bird upon him. Not only the best interests of the child require this, but the love and admiration of a mother should prompt and acquiesce in it.

A Disastrous Policy.

Deadlocks are not an uncommon thing in the governing bodies of American cities, but it is seldom that one of such serious results is seen as the city of Harrison in Hudson county is now experiencing in their Common Council. Ever since last spring Harrison has practically been without municipal government because of the unwillingness of a majority of the Common Council to elect a president. Partisan politics is at the back of it, of course.

The business of the municipality is at a standstill, the tax budget is unacted upon, the streets and sewers uncleaned, seriously affecting the public health, all improvements are suspended, and as licenses cannot be legally renewed, saloon keepers are doing business without licenses. If the tax ordinance is not passed next month no money can be raised by taxation until next year.

It is often the case where Common Councils and Boards of Aldermen are closely divided that certain appointments of officers are held up for a long time owing to political rivalry, but it is very seldom, indeed, that such a state of affairs as prevails in Harrison is the outcome of a deadlock. The holding-up of all the imperative city business has aroused Harrison to a sense of indignation at such a political extreme, and there is much justifiable demand for the Common Council to get down to business.

The members of this Common Council were elected to do certain business, and they ought to do it without further delay.

It suggests enterprise, method and unwavering confidence in the merit of his own wares. The persistant advertiser is bound to reach everybody who can be influenced by his announcement, and is sure to gain custom from unexpected sources as well as from those whom he especially addresses in his "ads."

WHAT THE SHEARS FIND.

Editorial Comment From Other Papers of Interest in Plainfield.

According to a circular just sent out by the New Jersey Bureau of Statistics of Labor and Industries, four hundred and fifty-one industrial establishments made perfect reports for last year, these establishments representing 26 per cent. of the total number of persons employed in industrial occupations in the State. There was an average increase of 9.8 per cent. in wages, and the amount added to the total weekly payroll was $48 390.49. This increase, however, does not by any means correspond to the increased cost of living by reason of Trust exactions in the prices of the necessaries of life. What has been wrung from the labor employer in wages has gone into the Trust treasuries to pay bloated dividends.—Newark Advertiser.

PASSING COMMENT.

Things that Are Not Exactly News but Just as Interesting.

F. M. Stillman, of Estabrook avenue, Railway, is the owner of the massive lamp that was used as a headlight by the ill-fated Spanish war vessel Maria Teresa at the time of the naval tragedy of the Cuban waters. The battered, dented and scarred memento is of solid brass, stands about three feet in height, is shaped very much like a milk can and has a plate-glass window, nearly an inch thick. When placed in position in front of Mr. Stillman's villa last evening its powerful rays dimmed the adjacent electric lights.

* * * * * *

The story is told concerning the first public appearance of a well-known Plainfielder who died not long since. The lad was to take part in some exercises at church and, in company with a number of other tots, was to mount the platform and there give a number of Scriptural quotations. The lad in question was carefully taught to quote the verse: "It is I, be not afraid." As the time drew near the youngster's mind began to be troubled. The prospect of standing before all those people was not pleasing, and while his thoughts were busy over the situation the words of the Biblical quotation slipped from his mind. He reached the platform all right and waited until his turn came. The verse was gone, utterly, but the sense of the thought still remained. Bracing up, the lad spoke out boldly, "It's me, don't get scared."

Gentlemen:—I must say in regard to GRAIN-O that there is nothing better or healthier. We have used it for years. My brother was a great coffee drinker. He was taken sick and the doctor said coffee was the cause of it, and told us to use GRAIN-O. We got a package but did not like it at first, but now would not be without it. My brother has been well ever since we started to use it.

DUNELLEN.

(Special Correspondence to The Press.)

Dunellen, July 26—Although the new acetyline gas lights at Taylor's Hotel have been tested before, the formal lighting of the building and grounds was not made until last evening. The lights are a complete success and are an immense improvement over the old system of electricity. In honor of the event Mr. Taylor invited a number of friends to be present, who sat down to an elegant repast and enjoyed a social hour. Among the guests was Mr. White, the inventor of the system, who took pleasure in showing the workings of the plant and explaining the system.

The lightning did considerable damage last evening to electric light wires in the borough and burned out a number of fuses. The light at the corner of North and Lincoln avenues was out all night and that section was plunged in darkness.

'PLAINS AND FANWOOD.

(Special Correspondence to The Press.)

Scotch Plains, July 26.—Robert Murphy, who is employed by R. B. Duycknick, of Washington Valley, as coachman, made things lively around town for nearly two hours yesterday afternoon. Murphy was intoxicated and insisted upon driving his team at a furious gait about the streets of the village, much to the danger of pedestrians and children. Behind the wagon he had a cow tied and the poor animal was nearly dead from being an unwilling participant in the disgraceful affair. A bystander finally relieved the cow of its misery by cutting the rope. Murphy did not notice the loss of the animal until nearly home. When he did discover the loss he drove furiously back to town in search of the poor beast. His efforts were unsuccessful as the cow had been taken care of until some one who was more able to care for it should call for it. Murphy persisted in riding about the streets in a reckless and dangerous manner until Justice Schlick stopped him and threatened him with arrest unless he behaved himself and went home. This he at first refused to do, but when his team was taken from him and he was started for the lockup he sobered somewhat and agreed to behave himself and allow someone to take him home if they would not disgrace him by locking him up. This was agreed to by the Justice and a man was sent with him to his home.

Rev. G. M. Shott and daughter Elsie, who have been attending the B. Y. P. U. convention held at Cincinnatti, and visiting relatives and friends through Ohio for two weeks, have returned home. HOW SARDINES ARE CANNED.

Only a Small Fraction of These Fish Are Now Imported from France.

"Next to the French the American people are the largest consumers of sardines in the world," says a leading wholesale dealer in such canned fish in New York to a Washington Star writer recently. "Last year the consumption of sardines in the United States amounted to 2,000,000 cases, or 200,000,000 cans. Of this quantity 1,400,000 cases were the product of the state of Maine, 150,000 cases were put up in California and the remaining 450,000 cases came from France. Thirty years ago all the sardines eaten in this country were imported from France. To-day nearly three-quarters of the sardines sold here are put up in 51 packing houses in Maine. These concerns are controlled by a trust company which employs 6,000 workmen, who can turn out 1,500,000 cases of the fish annually.

"In Maine sardines are caught off the western shores of the St. Croix river and Passamaquoddy bay. The fishing season commences early in May and lasts until late in the fall of the year. The fish are taken in brush weirs, resembling ordinary pound nets, into which they are led by means of large leaders and wings, which terminate in a funnel-shaped entrance. Their escape is prevented by the extension of these wings into the inclosure, thereby forming a triangular hook at each end of it, so that the fish, as they circle inside the weir, are directed past the entrance. When the fish are plentiful in the nets quantities of scales appear upon the surface of the water. The nets are then lifted and their contents are dumped by the fishermen into their boats. The fish make a little squeak when taken from the water and die almost instantly. An ordinary catch of sardines gives to each boat anywhere from 2,000 to 6,000 fish, the price of which is from $2 to $2.50 per 1,000, according to the quantity of fish that are being caught.

"Arriving at the packing house the fish are carefully cleaned. This operation over, they are sorted according to size and carried into another part of the establishment, where they are put into pickle.

"The length of time required by this operation varies according to the size of the fish. After this the fish are washed and placed with care upon wire nets, called 'grills,' on which they are sent to the drying room, where they are dried by means of large fans or ventilators run by powerful machinery. When dry and while still upon the grills the fish are cooked by plunging them into tanks containing olive oil. After this cooking the sardines, still upon the grills, are left to cool, and when cold the work of placing them in halves and quarter cans filled with olive oil, tomato and mustard sauce is begun. This work done, the cans are sealed with solder and are ready to be put in cases, holding 100 tins, for the market.

"Like canned goods of every description, sardines are cheaper now than they formerly were, and American sardines are sold for less than the imported. American sardines are now exported from this country to the West Indies and South America."

NOTES OF WOMAN'S WORK.

Mrs. Ida May Bennet, the wife of the subchief of the Choctaw tribe, was one of the official delegates from Indian Territory at the Republican convention recently held in Philadelphia. Mrs. Bennet is the only women ever chosen at a political meeting in Indian Territory. She has traveled widely and is a graduate from an eastern college. Mrs. Bennet is a full blood Choctaw Indian.

IDA MAY BENNET.

A movement is on foot to organize another association in connection with the Grand Army of the Republic. It is to be composed entirely of women and will take in those who at the time of the war were either too young to go to the front as nurses or had no male relatives in the northern army, but who aided the boys in blue by preparing lint and bandages for the wounded soldiers and by taking food and flowers to the various hospitals and refreshment stands. Mrs. Agnes Korndoerfer of Philadelphia is at the head of the movement.

When the trustees of the State university at Columbia, Mo., decided to introduce a department of domestic science, they were at a loss to find a suitable person to fill the chair. They applied to the Pratt institute of New York, and Miss Zabriski of Chicago was recommended. She made a trip to Columbia and was engaged at a handsome salary. She is the daughter of a New Jersey clergyman and is of Dutch extraction. She was educated at Lake Forest university and received her technical training at the Pratt institute. Miss Zabriski has taught cooking in the Doolittle school in Chicago for two years.

Mrs. Robert J. Burdette, wife of the famous lecturer, has since her recent election to the chair of the California State Federation, which is just 5 months old and numbers 5,000 women members, become the subject of her husband's wit. Whenever the lecturer writes a letter nowadays, he signs it "robert j. burdette, husband of MADAME THE PRESIDENT."

A distinct honor to American womanhood is the election of Miss Jane Addams of Chicago as president of the jury of social economy at the Paris exposition.

Sarah Grand, the authoress, declines to be accused of calling any man names. She thinks the heroic thing about man is the way he faces life, not death.

Mrs. Ernest Seton Thompson, whose new book, "A Woman Tenderfoot," is soon to appear, is the wife of the well known "Animal Man," whose stories about the "Wild Animals I Have Known" made him famous. Mrs. Thompson suggested the cover, the fascinating marginal designs and the mechanical make up of the book, besides assisting her husband on the literary work. She is an enthusiastic writer and an independent thinker. It is generally credited that this new book of hers is to be something worth while.

The fad among Parisiennes these days is ballooning. The rage is not confined to the aristocracy, but adventure loving women in all stations of life are embarking daily on aerial expeditions. The Duchesse d'Uzes is one of the indefatigable enthusiasts. During the recent eclipse of the sun Miss Adele Klumpke of the Paris observatory rose high above the clouds in her private balloon and imparted some useful information to the observatory. She makes almost daily ascents and furnishes meteorological data and accounts of atmospheric phenomena to the scientific world.

Miss Beatrice Tonneson, a photographer and a member of a photographic supply firm, will read a paper before the congress on photography at the Paris exposition, where she will represent the work of American women in that profession.

Miss Josephine Mulford, the second Betsy Ross of America, who made with her own hands the largest American flag in the world, did not live to see it presented to the nation, as she had hoped it would be, by popular subscription. Miss Mulford conceived the idea of making the great historical flag during the Spanish-American war. It was to be large enough to be flown from the top of Washington monument without seeming insignificant. The flag, now completed, is 65 feet wide and 100 feet long. Subscriptions are being received daily by Dr. J. E. Brown of Morristown, N. J.

JOSEPHINE MULFORD.

The United States industrial commission has appointed Miss Gail Laughlin to investigate the servant girl problem. Miss Laughlin has always taken great interest in the servant class and has her own ideas on the question. She believes that the fundamental trouble with the hired girl question is the matter of hours. They should be so regulated that the woman knows when her work begins and when it ends. Miss Laughlin is a graduate of Wellesley, class of '94, and of the Cornell Law school in 1898.

A hard-working, industrious woman, active, and to all outward appearances healthy, a woman used to doing all the work about her home and sometimes going out to service, relates that when she lived at Oyster Bay, Long Island, and especially on ironing day when confined to a hot laundry, she would often become faint, a condition usually preceded by a shortness of breath. At times she could barely keep up to come out into the fresh air to refresh herself. After she moved to New York, the shortness of breath affected her when working in a close room or after climbing stairs. At one time, while so suffering, she was recommended to try some Ripans Tabules. The improvement in her breathing was such that she felt greatly relieved, and she now keeps the Tabules always at hand, and since she has done this she says that the faintness has not been noticed and she can now readily climb stairs or work in a close room without any of the symptoms of distress which formerly oppressed her. When this experience was related to a physician who is familiar with Ripans Tabules, he said: "The Tabules are not advertised to cure faintness or shortness of breath, and my impression is that said symptoms referred to were caused by the stomach being distended with gas, as is sometimes to be noted with persons who use vegetable food mainly. Potatoes or cabbage," he said, "were quite likely to produce such a condition."

WANTED—A case of bad health that RIPANS will not benefit. They banish pain and prolong life. One gives relief. Note the word RIPANS on the package and accept no substitute. RIPANS, 10 for 5 cents, may be had at any drug store. Ten samples and one thousand testimonials will be mailed to any address for 5 cents, forwarded to the Ripans Chemical Co., No. 10 Spruce St., New York.

CONQUEST OF CHINA.

It Has Been Planned for Years by the European Powers.

Present Trouble May Be the Beginning of a Gigantic Conflict That Will End in Victory for the Heathen.

[Special Washington Letter.]

ONE of the first things to be thoroughly learned by the young men who are seeking to enter upon the profession of journalism is that they must have absolute and complete respect for the confidences reposed in them, and they must never betray the source of their news. Unless this lesson is learned the young men who enter the profession will never achieve success.

George Rouzer was a clerk in the war department, and he was also a newspaper man. He was working his way slowly, hoping to become successful and prominent, and that he might be able to leave the civil service and devote all of his time to journalism. On one occasion he received valuable information from an army officer, and printed it. Senator Proctor, of Vermont, was secretary of war at that time, and he sent for Mr. Rouzer to ascertain the source of his information. If Mr. Rouzer had given the name of the officer who had given him his news he might have been dismissed from the army. The army officer had no idea that the dissemination of the news would cause such a stir, and he had innocently given the news to help Mr. Rouzer in his ambitious work. Mr. Rouzer declined to name the man.

"If you will not tell me where you got your information, I will order your discharge from the war department," said Secretary Proctor.

"Then you will have to discharge me," was the brave reply of the young man.

He protected his friend, and thereby lost his official position at a time when he could ill afford to be thrown out of employment. However, he very soon received valuable newspaper work which paid him a better salary than that which he received in the war department, and for a number of years he was in charge of the Washington office of one of the greatest newpapers on this continent. The story of his sturdy character and conduct became well known in the capital city, and he had the confidence of all public men, regardless of their political affiliations.

In September, 1895, the correspondent of a Philadelphia newspaper had an interview with Senator Blackburn, of Kentucky, in which Secretary Carlisle was vigorously criticised and denounced. In February, 1896, Secretary Carlisle used copies of the Philadelphia paper containing the interview to induce his personal friends to defeat Senator Blackburn, who was a candidate for reelection. At that time the Washington correspondent wrote Senator Blackburn as follows: "The interview was written from memory. No shorthand notes were taken, and hence you might technically deny the interview, if you want to protect yourself." Ever since that time Senator Blackburn has been a stanch friend of the correspondent, although he did not deny the interview.

These examples are mentioned not merely to show the necessity of having the confidence of public men, and the importance of respecting their confidence, but to show the reader that at this time it is necessary for the present writer to protect the confidence of a certain senator, and to give his views without mentioning his name. You must understand that there are occasions of great national and international importance when public men must necessarily be reticent and secretive. At the present time, when this republic seems to be drifting into entangling alliances, all senators and representatives are careful not to allow their names to appear in public print as offering suggestions which might prove to be embarrassing to others in high public position. Under these conditions one of the greatest men now in public life, in the confidence of personal friendship, in his own parlor, said:

"The manifest culmination of the plans for the dismemberment of the Chinese empire, and the landing of American troops on the soil of China, inevitably entangles this republic in grave international conditions. We are bound to take no hasty forward step in diplomacy, and we are bound to take no backward step in war. It is important that all of our people should understand the situation; and that they should be united in purpose and in aim. When we engage in diplomacy we should all try to be patriotic brothers, and be sure we are right in all things.

"All of the principles of international law and all of the courtesies of the comity of nations have been violated in the treatment of China during the past 20 years by the Italian banditti, the French assassins, the German communists, the Russian nihilists, and the British buccaneers. With outward suavity and base pretenses of friendship under the guise of comity and international equity, these civilized (?) nations have been encroaching upon the kindness, the forbearance, the patience and the abused endurance of the heathen (?) of the orient.

"But the people of China have not been deceived. Their learned men are shrewd diplomats, accomplished courtiers and skillful statesmen. They have given the entire 400,000,000 of their people to understand that it would be simply a question of time when the integrity of their empire would be assailed. Those people have therefore known for years that the Christian nations of the world were gradually bringing about conditions which might seem to warrant the partition of China. These Christian nations, like so many banded pirates, have believed that China would be an easy mark, and that ultimately their rapacity would be rewarded with rich lootings.

"In the meantime China has been preparing for the inevitable. Her enemies have reckoned without knowledge.

LI HUNG CHANG AND THE CZAR.

Far in the interior of that tremendous empire Chinese soldiers have been drilling under competent masters. The outside world knows nothing of what China has done to meet the manifest contingency. All the nations of the world cannot partition China and reduce her to servile dependency, as Poland was reduced.

"Gen. Grant stated that Li Hung Chang was the greatest statesman he had met with in his journey around the world. Only a few years ago Li Hung Chang accomplished the greatest feat of diplomacy that was ever undertaken in the history of the world. He journeyed from point to point around the world, and in so doing, out in the open, he fooled and hoodwinked all of the shrewd masters of statecraft and diplomacy. He made that trip around the world for the sole purpose of having a few hours of confidential personal conversation with the emperor of Russia, because in no other way could he secure a private interview with the czar without attracting international attention to such an interview. They who imagined that Li Hung Chang put himself to all of the inconveniences of such a tour merely for personal pleasure must have a very narrow insight into the ways and purposes of statesmen and rulers. That there is a secret alliance between China and Russia the other nations of Europe will find to their cost, when it is everlastingly too late.

"China will not be partitioned. Armies of allies will march against her some day; if not this year in some very near future year. They will penetrate far into the interior of the vast empire, just as Napoleon led his hosts into Russia. They will announce to the world victory after victory. Ultimately those victorious allied armies will disappear and be lost to the world. They will be destroyed by the Chinese millions, not only with weapons and missiles of modern warfare, but with scientifically disseminated diseases and pestilences. After they have penetrated Chinese territory for hundreds of miles, they will have only scattered a few torches about the fringe of that vast empire. For every allied army that invades China there will be a Moscow. You may be very sure that China will never be partitioned."

Those are the words of wisdom, from the lips of learning, prudence and experience. Because of the fact that American marines have been landed on Chinese soil, and because a small army of American soldiers has been ordered to China, the senator giving this interesting information declines to permit the use of his name, lest superficial critics might infer that he is making remarks criticising the government at Washington, when nothing could be more remote from his intention. He has simply favored the writer with facts and opinions, as he says: "In order that all of our people should understand the situation, so that they may be united in purpose and aim, so that we may all be patriotic brothers."

The ominous clouds in the orient attract and command our attention. It is well that we may thus have light thrown upon them in order that we may, in some degree, pierce the gloom and endeavor to see our national and international duty, so that we may act within our own domain, and in international affairs, "with malice towards none and with charity for all."

Puffer—Is this one of the cigars you bought from that Cuban?

Puffer—Well, I should say! That Cuban was a fake, sure enough.

Weed—Yes, I've come to the conclusion that he was a Spaniard.—Philadelphia Press.

HUMOROUS.

"And what has your college education done for you?" "Well, I'm on the motormen's waiting list out at the street car barns." — Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Wickwire—"Do you ever drink enough to lose your head entirely?" Lushforth—"Nope. I always have enough left to go round."—Indianapolis Press.

"Jedge, yo' honoh," protested Mr. Zeke Snowball, "'deed I didn't stole dat chicken. No, suh, I don't deny takin' it—but I didn't steal it. I commandeered it, suh. Dat's whut." But Mr. Snowball's effort to introduce Boer sympathy into his defense was of no avail.—Baltimore American.

McJigger—"Niblack is worried over his golf playing." Thingumbob—"Not progressing as rapidly as he'd like, eh?" McJigger—"O! Quite the contrary. He's learning to play too well. The Virtuous Clerk. — "Sign your name here," said the chief conspirator, "and the money will be paid you at once." "Sooner than let my good right hand sign that iniquitous document," said the virtuous government clerk, "I would cut it off! But, fortunately, I am left-handed." And he signed it.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Wedding Guest.—"Now that the ceremony's over I'd like to ask you if you know that your son-in-law is deeply in debt?" Mr. Stockson Bonds—"Heavens! No!" "It's a fact. I'm sure he simply married your daughter so as to be able to pay his debts." "Why didn't you tell me of this before?" "I'm one of his creditors."—Philadelphia Record.

An absent-minded German professor was one day observed walking down the street with one foot continually in the gutter, the other on the pavement. A pupil, meeting him, saluted him with: "Good evening, Herr Professor. How are you?" "I was well, I thought," answered the professor; "but now I don't know what's the matter with me. For the last ten minutes I've been limping."—Answers.

HE MADE HIS PAPA WEARY.

Little Bobby Floors His Father on a Scientific Question But Talks Too Much.

It was little Bobby's first ride on a trolley car, says the Boston Herald, and he promptly opened up:

"Papa, what makes this car go?"

"Electricity, Bobby," answered papa, from behind his paper.

"What is 'lectricity?"

"Er—it's a power they get from batteries and dynamos and such things."

Bobby was silent a moment and kept looking out the window. Just then another car came by and Bobby commenced again.

"Is that funny thing on the top of the car a dynamo, papa?" he asked.

"No, Bobby; that's a pole."

"Do they push it with that pole?"

"No."

"Pull it?"

"No."

"What is it for, then?"

"Don't ask so many questions. That is where the electricity is carried from the wire to the car."

"Is it heavy to carry?"

"No."

The other passengers were on a broad grin and papa was in a fidget. Just then another car passed and some sparks flashed from the wire.

"Oh, papa, is that pole burning?" asked Bobby, with renewed interest.

Papa, thinking to make the best of it, sighed and said: "No, my son; that is caused by the closing and breaking of the circuit."

"Does it often break?"

"Yes."

"Who fixes it?"

"Bobby, will you stop asking questions?"

The frantic effort of the motorman to stop the car at a down-grade crossing next attracted Master Bobby's attention.

"Papa, what's that coffee mill for?"

"That's not a coffee mill; it is the handle to turn off and on the electricity. The man turns it to start and stop the car."

"Does he wind the car up?"

"No. For heaven's sake, Bobby, will you be quiet?"

Just then the car stopped suddenly and the conductor went back hurriedly to the rear platform. This was too much for Bobby.

"Papa, the car stopped that time and the man did not turn the grinder."

"The car has slipped its trolley."

"Then we won't get home, will we?"

"Certainly; why not?"

"Because the other night, when you didn't get home, Uncle Jack told mamma he had seen you and you looked as if you had slipped your trolley."

"We get off here," said Bobby's father, quickly, and as the car started on its way again even the hum of the motor did not drown the shrill shrieks of Bobby. And every individual woman in the car glanced back and murmured: "The brute!"

In the Fashion.

"Here's a new suit for you," said the deputy sheriff on the morning of the execution.

"H'm!" grunted the condemned. "For once in my life I'll be dressed to kill."—Philadelphia North American.

Of the Lungs.

"So your father advocates expansion?"

"Yes; he gives singing lessons."—Philadelphia Bulletin.

The Search Stops.

The Right Thing Has Been Found, A Plainfield Citizen Shows the way.

Once more we are indebted to a Plainfield citizen for a public statement that throws more light on a subject of ever increasing interest. People have been deceived by false misrepresentations from time immemorial. No wonder they are skeptical of all claims endorsed by strangers residing in far-distant parts of the Union. It is no longer necessary to accept such endorsements, for local citizens are giving their testimony and 'tis an easy matter for any reader to investigate the correctness of such evidence as the following:

Mrs. Wm. H. Ludlow, of Jackson avenue says:—"I had backache and a sort of dull pain across my loin for several years. If I sat for any length of time and tried to raise I had a sharp pain in my kidneys. Walking any distance or standing aggravated the difficulty. I could not rest well at night from the fact that I had to be constantly changing about from one position to another trying to free myself from pain. I used quite a number of remedies but got no permanent relief. I was prevailed upon to get Doan's Kidney Pills from L. W. Randolph's drug store. I must say they did me a great deal of good. It is seldom that I feel any pain in my back and when I do a few doses of this remedy never fails to relieve me. I know others who have used Doan's Kidney Pills with good results."

TALL TALE FROM THE WEST.

Related by a Veracious Cow Puncher About a Beautiful Bucking Broncho.

A cowboy visiting an eastern city not long ago got to talking about broncos and their ways, and he was reminded of a story which his friend, the "'Montana Kid," is fond of telling, relates the Little Chronicle. "We was a lot of us talking," said the man from the west, "about the way a bronco will buck and how long it will take him to get tired out once he gets started, providing he don't throw his man before he gets through with it. One of the boys was saying as how he did not believe no cowpuncher was alive that could stay on a bronc as long as the critter felt like bucking. He said the man would fall off dead beat long before the bronc was anywhere near having enough.

"The Kid says, says he: 'How long did you ever know a bronc buck?'

"'Two hours, or two and a half,' says the other feller. And he said it as if he was kinder 'shamed; just like he had been caught bluffing half way through a bluff.

"'Two hours,' says the Kid. 'Two hours or two hours and a half, is it? Why, say, I stayed on a bucking horse for two days and three nights once. He commenced bucking along towards evening of one day and he kicked around the place all that night and all the next day and the next night and the next day and the night after that. The next morning after that he dropped, and he didn't get up for a day and a half and he's never bucked since.

"The boys all took to laughing at the Kid and making sport of him for being more or less untruthful. One of them says:

"'Say, Kid,' he says, 'you must have been kind of faint and hungry when you got off that horse. Didn't you think it was worth the trouble to get off for a meal once in awhile?'

"'No need to do it,' says the Kid. 'No need to do it. The cook he saw the way things was going, and the horse couldn't buck far away from the rest of the outfit, because he was pretty well fenced in, and the cook kept a cooking up hot biscuits for me night and day, and every time me and the horse went sashaying past the kitchen door cook would come out and throw me a biscuit, and I'd have to catch it or go hungry. I caught all I wanted o' them.'

"The boys thought that was pretty good, for there couldn't none of them see what he did for water.

"'Water,' says the Kid, 'water?' Why, there was the creek three feet deep running right across behind the kitchen, and the horse he bucked through it on an average once every two hours. All I had to do was to dip it up in my hat as we was going through.'"

A HOBO PHILOSOPHER.

The Whole Earth Was Not Absolutely Necessary to His Existence.

Said the trainman the other day, according to the Lewiston Journal:

"A dusty chap crawled from under one of the cars in the freight yard close to where I was eating my dinner. He hadn't expected to see anyone there and for a moment was a bit abashed. But the next instant he took off his rag of a hat and said: 'Boss, if ye are throwing away any of that gump there in the pail, just remember dat I used to be the champion catcher of the Phillies.'

"I gave him a piece of bread. He had been all over the country, that fellow had. And he had seen the country, too. He could tell me more about the people and the customs and the cities of the United States than any lecturer I ever heard.

"The man was educated and shrewd and capable—one could see that. But he was a hobo. He couldn't recover from the 'disease.' Here, I can give you his character in a few words.

"He was as ragged a chap as I ever saw.

"'Why don't you beg some clothes?' I asked.

"'Dey don't have dudes in my business,' he replied. 'Can you see me gettin' grub if I promenaded up to a door on the main drag of the town, and took off a tall hat to the lady of the house? Not much ye can't. Have to wear old clothes if ye are goin' to be a hobo. And if they warn't old a hundred-mile trip on the rods of your old train would make 'em so.'

"'But don't you ever need money?' I asked.

"'Always carry a quarter,' said he. 'Dey can't pinch me for a vag under dose circumstances when I flash my coin at 'em.'

"'But wouldn't you like to find a ten-dollar bill?' I asked.

"'Naw,' he answered. 'If I should it would be jest my luck to be pulled up and searched to see if I knew anything of some store robbery. Ten dollars would send me to state prison. Den, again, I've known the gang to kill a man for less dan ten.'

"'But don't you want money for anything?' I persisted.

"He meditated a moment. 'Wal, now that ye mention it, boss,' he said, 'I do believe I could use a quarter. I want another pair of suspenders. But I can't think of another thing on earth that I need.'"

Invalid's Soup.

Cut one-half pound of mutton and the same of beef in small pieces, add a quart of water and a tablespoonful of rice; boil slowly on the back of the stove several hours, adding more water if it becomes too thick, strain; season to taste, as desired by the patient. Serve in a dainty bouillon cup, with a wafer.—People's Home Journal.

SPORTING.

GOLF

Morgan T. Townsend, captain of the Park Golf Club team, has been in communication with the Morristown Field Club trying to secure a return match on the Park Club links Saturday afternoon. The Morristown players have something else on hand for that day and cannot play. That will mean that there will be no team match for Saturday and the members of the team will compete with the others for the president's cup. The second victory of Gus Faber for the green committee challenge trophy last Monday afternoon has made him a decided factor in the race for that trophy. He is sceduled to meet Morgan Townsend Saturday afternoon and the match is likely to develop some good golf. Faber is playing a remarkably steady game these days and, if Townsend happens to have one of his off days, is likely to defeat him. Under normal conditions, victory should go to Townsend by a small majority.

The showing made by Frank Reinhart and Frank Talmage in the interscholastic golf tournament held last week, speaks highly for the standard of the local golfers. Both Reinhart and Talmage are considered in the front rank of the players of the Hillside Tennis and Golf Club but there are a number of others who are classed with them. Both of the young men are quite young and promise to be still more expert at the game in the course of a few years. Plainfield was represented during the last year in the college teams by Wadsworth at Harvard and Glenney at Columbia. When Reinhart and Talmage entered college, as they now expect to do, they are quite likely to be heard from. This fall, Chorles W. Fisk and Augustus R. Fisk both enter Yale University where they will undoubtedly make a good showing among to golfers at that college.

The crack school golfers of the Hillside Tennis and Golf Club, Frank Reinhart and Frank Talmage, were guests at the course of the Park Golf Club yesterday afternoon. A four-ball match was arranged between those two and. Morgan T. Townsend and W. J. R. Thiers, of the Park Club. Townsend played a wonderful game, breaking the best record of the course for nine holes, either amateur or professional. He made his first round in 35-39, one stroke better than bogey. His scores throughout conformed with the "bogey" score except on the eighth, which he did in three, the bogey score being four. Reinhart made a 43. Thiers and Talmage were slightly behind. The match was a four-ball one, the best ball to count. The result was a victory for the Park Club players, 6 up and 5 to go. Townsend was the only one to complete his eighteen holes. His second round was not up to the first, his total being 87.

CYCLING COMMENT.

The schedule of races for the night meet at the Vailsburg cycle track tomorrow night is as follows: Comet Stakes, one mile, open, professional; Lone Star, handicap, two miles, professional; Electra, half mile, open, amateur; Jack Point Handicap, five miles, amateur. The special feature of the evening will be a match race in which W. S. Fenn, the boy woy wonder of the Nutmeg State, will appear.

Mary Nolan in the Toils Again.

Mary Nolan has been wandering about Plainfield for some days. She was arrested and City Judge Runyon suspended sentence. Last night the police found her drunk again and locked her up. She is now in the city jail and will probably come up for a hearing this afternoon or tomorrow morning. City Judge Runyon was not down to business this morning, a new attack of tonsilitis having made its appearance.

LIGHTNING'S PRANKS.

Electricity Ran Wild in Different Parts of the City Last Night—Trolley Traffic Delayed.

Lightning played a number of peculiar pranks in different parts of the city last evening, but so far as can be learned no serious damage resulted. Traffic on the Westfield and Elizabeth trolley line was delayed for a short time, but not long enough to interfere with the city schedule.

A bolt struck an electric light wire on Richmond street, and running along exploded with a deafening report on a pole opposite Sharkey's grocery store. Howard Lance, who was standing in the doorway, was thrown backward by the bolt, but was uninjured. It is said that a knife was torn from the hands of a shoemaker on the same street and that he felt the shock for some time.

Lightning struck the residence of Leonard Bunn on Monroe avenue last evening and caused some damage. The chimney was knocked off by a bolt which afterward entered the house and made its way to the lower floor, where it became lost. Some of the furniture and carpets were ruined by the bolt.

DEATH OF MRS. EGEL.

Had Been a Sufferer with a Complication of Diseases for a Long Time.

Mrs. Susan C. Egel, aged 39 years, wife of George Egel, and daughter of Caroline and the late Henry A. Wise, died yesterday afternoon of a complication of diseases that confined her to her bed for the past twelve weeks. Mrs. Egel died at her home, 250 Somerset street. She has been a great sufferer, but very patient throughout her long illness. She was a faithful member of the First Baptist church, and always attended the services when able to do so. She was a sincere Christian woman and very devoted to her family and home, where she will be greatly missed. Every effort was made to effect relief and a cure, but all medical skill failed. Mrs. Egel leaves a husband and four children. The funeral services will be held from her late residence, 250 Somerset street, tomorrow afternoon at 2:30 o'clock.

Making Voters.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Elizabeth, July 26—The Union County Court yesterday was crowded with people who wanted to take out citizenship papers. Nearly all of them were Italians and Poles, and they openly proclaimed their intention of voting the Republican ticket. On the two previous Wednesdays similar scenes were witnessed here in the court. The Republican city executive committee is working hard to get all foreigners naturalized who express an intention of voting for McKinley and Roosevelt. Over 200 new voters have been made this month.

Fraternal Visit of Juniors.

A delegation of members from Somerset and Franklin Councils, Jr. O. U. A. M., journeyed by stage last evening to Mount Bethel for a friendly visit to Fairview Council, of that place. At the close of the regular meeting the visiting members were entertained in a pleasant manner and before leaving for home partook of a bountiful collation which had been prepared in anticipation of their coming. They arrived home about 2 o'clock this morning.

Crawled Before Fast Express.

It was Victor Bishop, 18 months old, son of Charles Bishop, station agent at Springtown, on the Jersey Central Railroad, that was killed yesterday morning by the eastbound passenger train that reaches this city at 8:37 in the morning. He evaded the vigilance of his busy mother and crept out on the tracks. He crawled between the rails of the eastbound track just as the fast express was due.

Sun Bros.' Shows.

The Sun Bros.' Shows made their street parade at noon today. They made a very creditable showing on the street. Everything looked clean, neat and in good order, and this condition of affairs on the outside is a safe index to a nice show on the inside. The band was exceptionally good.—Charlotte News. This circus will appear in Plainfield next Tuesday.

Miss Maire Coming Home.

Miss Rachel Maire, who has been doing missionary work in Africa for two or three years, is now supposed to be on her way to her home in this city. Her folks received work some time ago that she expected to start, and, although they do not know just when she left Africa, they look for her arrival home at any time.

off on a spree.

McCabe testified further that he saw Henning about 8:30 o'clock on the morning of July 11th on the shanty boat. He told him that Muldoon had beat him. He was too much intoxicated to talk to intelligently at that time. He said that he saw Henning several times that morning. It was about 10:30 o'clock when he was informed of Henning's exact injuries. The latter went away soon after, and McCabe did not see him again until the next morning, July 12th, on the boarding boat. That was about 9:30 o'clock. He then learned that his condition was very serious. Henning said that his money was all gone. McCabe realizing Henning's condition took him to Dr. Robinson in South Bound Brook, where he was given proper treatment. The doctor suggested that Henning go to the hospital at Plainfield, and McCabe took him to the Bound Brook station of the Jersey Central station, purchased a ticket for Henning and sent him to Plainfield, and he had not seen Henning since.

The facts were also brought out that Henning received between $8 and $9 the day of the evening he went off on the spree, and that there is still due him $8.40 for his July work, but this will be used up in paying his board on the boarding boat, and the county will get none of it.

This concluded the testimony and the coroner charged the jury. Prosecutor Griggs, Dr. Wagoner and Lawyer Johnson were obliged to leave early to catch a train and did not wait for the verdict. After short deliberation the jury rendered the following verdict:

"That the said Jacob Henning came to his death, do say upon their oath aforesaid, that one John Muldoon, late of township of Bridgewater, in said county, did, on the the 11th day of July in the year 1900, at the borough of Bound Brook in the county aforesaid, wilfully and feloniously beat, kick, strike, wound and ill-treat the said Jacob Henning, by reason and by means whereof he, the said Jacob Henning, afterwards, to wit, on the 21st day of July, in the year 1900, died. Signed: L. W. Hammand, Myers Compton, John Kline, Mark Lees, Adam Seader and Morgan Stites, jurors."

EXCURSION DIDN'T GO.

Rain Interfered With Plans of Trinity Reformed Sunday School.

There was altogether too much water to suit the committee in charge of the Trinity Reformed Sunday-school excursion to Asbury Park this morning so the annual outing was postponed until next Tuesday morning. When the hour came for the assembling of the excursionists at the North Avenue station, the rain began to fall in such quantities as to completely extinguish the enthusiasm of the would-be excursionists. The train appeared at the appointed hour but the people didn't.

With such a downpour in progress and no prospect of an immediate let-up, the committee held a hurried meeting and decided to postpone the excursion. General Passenger Agent Baldwin, of the Central, was communicated with and gave next Tuesday as the first available date. The offer was accepted and the date fixed.

Tip of Finger Mashed.

George Laugenbach, aged about 10 years, of New York, who is spending the summer at the home of C. P. Stevens, 65 Grandview avenue, met with a painful accident this morning. He and Ray Stevens were in the rear of the yard, where young Stevens was hammering some nails. Laugenbach was standing very near and accidentally placed his hand near the hammer. The middle finger of the left hand caught the full force of one blow and the tip of the finger was mashed severely. The nail was almost torn off and the flesh was lacerated badly. The lad was taken at once to Dr. Mattison's place on Somerset street, where the proper treatment was given. It is hoped that the tip of the finger may be saved.

Found $10 Pearl in a Clam.

John Adlemann, the superintendent of the Westfield and Elizabeth Street Railway Company, discovered a valuable pearl in a clam at dinner last evening. Adelmann lives on Spooner avenue. Yesterday he sent home a dozen clams from Endress' market on West Front street. The clams were cooked for dinner. As Mr. Adelmann attempted to bite one he found something hard inside it. An investigation revealed a cats-eye pearl. A local jeweler offered $10 for the pearl but Mr. Adelmann would not sell it for any sum.

A meeting of the North Plainfield Republican Club was to have been held last night in Spencer's hall on Somerset street. STATE TELEPHONE COMPANY EXPANDING Independent Lines to Extend Connections to New York and Philadelphia.

WANT TO COME TO THIS CITY.

BELL COMPANY DOING ALL IT CAN TO STOP PROGRESS.

Obstacle to Further Construction of Line Across the State in Now Encountered at Long Branch—Eight Miles From Philadelphia.

The State Telephone Company, which controls nearly all the independent telephone companies in New Jersey, and which has applied for a franchise in Plainfield, has perfected its line from Jersey City to Trenton and is now operating it. It has also extended its lines to South Jersey and at one point is within eight miles of Philadelphia. It connects with various Pennsylvania towns and is ready to make the last link in a chain which will let it into Conshohocken.

The company has contracts out with other corporations that guarantee connections with New York and Philadelphia within eighteen months. In New York it will connect with the Knickerbocker Telephone Company and in Philadelphia with the Keystone Telephone Company. The company already owns the right to lay cables from the foot of Morgan street in Jersey City. The company soon hopes to have a line established along the coast, which will give communication from Trenton and Jersey City to Sea Girt and all the intermediate coast towns.

The only obstacle on this line at present is the refusal of the Long Branch authorities to grant a franchise through that place. The company controls sixty miles of line around Red Bank. This line goes into Long Branch village, within a few feet of Long Branch. There is a line friendly to the State Company running from Sea Girt to Asbury Park. A line is now being built from Red Bank to Freehold and the company has already built from Bound Brook in the direction of Freehold as far as Middlebush.

The connection between Middlebush and the Freehold district, in which there are thirty miles of telephone connections, will be built by way of Jamesburg and Englishtown. A petition for a franchise is presented to the Long Branch Council each month, and it is hoped that before long the franchise will be granted.

It is alleged that the Bell Company is doing everything in its power to keep the State Company from perfecting a line along the coast. The State Telephone Company was organized and incorporated but three years ago. The incorporators were J. B. Vredenburgh, Spencer Weart and Andrew Dingler. The first of the independent companies which are allied with the State Company to organize was the Hudson Telephone Company, which was incorporated in 1895. The Newark Telephone Company was started in the latter part of 1895 or early in 1896.

RAIN HELPS JERSEY CROPS.

Hot, Dry Weather Had Done Considerable Damage.

The rain of Monday and yesterday did much good to growing vegetation. Early sweet corn, tomatoes, squashes and cucumbers had undoubtedly been seriously injured by the hot, dry weather of the past week. Field corn has commenced to roll badly, but as the ears had scarcely begun to set it is not probable that the yield has been affected. Pasture fields were drying out fast, and dairymen were fearful of being short of grass just when there is a great demand for milk.

Late tomatoes are looking nicely and apparently do not show that the weather has either been hot or dry. Many quarts of blackberries have dried up on the briars, but then there seems to have been enough to supply the demand, and prices have been good, which would probably not have been the case had there been a full crop.

Pullman Cars for Reading Flyer.

The Reading Railway has recently added new Pullman parlor cars to the equipment of its two-hour trains between Philadelphia and New York. These cars are furnished in the highest art of the Pullman shops, and their addition to the New York flyers makes those trains the handsomest and most comfortable between the two cities.

BAND CONCERTS TO GO ON

FINANCIAL SUPPORT NOW ASSURED BENJAMIN LAVERE.

Band Stand to be Lighted by Electricity Free of Cost—Programme for Tonight's Concert.

Benjamin LaVere's efforts to provide band concerts for the citizens of Plainfield have been highly appreciated thus far, and there is now every indication that they will be continued during the months of July and August. With a little work each evening Mr. LaVere has secured or been promised enough subscriptions to warrant the continuance of the concerts during these months. Of course, the list is by no means complete as there is room for a small amount from everybody, and the larger the total sum is the more concerts can be given. The amount already contributed speaks well for the contributors and shows their appreciation of something that is enjoyed by every class in the city. The concerts are now looked forward to from week to week by those who are unable to leave town during the hot months, and it gives them great pleasure to listen to the music with little or no expense to themselves.

The question of sufficient light for the band stand has been a difficult problem for those in charge to contend with on account of the cost of wiring and furnishing electricity. This trouble has now been overcome by Superintendent Mc Clurg, of the electric light plant, and Harry B. Kitchell, of the N. Y. and N. J. Telephone Company. The former has agreed to furnish free of charge all the power, globes and necessaries needed for the light, and Mr. Kitchell has offered his services as to the wiring or in what ever capacity they may be needed.

DISTRICT COURT IS NOT OPTIONAL

New Statute Makes it Compulsory in Cities Having Over 17,000 Population.

SO PLAINFIELD WILL GET IT.

FEES WILL HELP TO REDUCE EXPENSE OF MAINTAINING IT.

Lawyers Throughout the City Favor the Establishment of the District Court so as to do Away With Practices in Justices' Courts.

Regarding the establishment of a district court in this city, about which considerable has already been said, it may not be generally known that it is not left optional with the people of this city or the officials to say whether such a court will be established. The law of 1900, under which such a court would be established, distinctly states that a district court shall be established in cities of 17,000 and under 100,000 population. This takes the matter out of the hands of the people and the local governing body, and makes it compulsory for a city having the specified population to maintain a district court.

As far as the justices of the peace are concerned, the law establishing a district court does not abolish a court of the justice of the peace, as some people suppose. It does limit the jurisdiction of the justices' court, and does not permit the trying of certain cases therein. The City Judge also has the power to try certain cases, as provided for by law, but for the reason that it has never been necessary for the City Judge to hear these cases this power has never been taken advantage of.

Almost every lawyer in the city is in favor of a district court, and many believe that the fees coming to such a court would go a long way in assisting in the payment of expenses, and what ever is received in that way lessens the expense of the taxpayer in general. While there are some who are not particular about the establishment of such a court, they recognize that the quality of justice would be improved upon to such an extent that it would be worth every cent it would cost the city to maintain such a court.

Those who favor the disirict court say that Plainfield is constantly growing and spreading out, and that the jurisdiction of the court is such that many who are forced to go to Elizabeth, would not be subjected to that trouble, but could come to Plainfield with less trouble. Then, besides, such a court would elevate the tone and general character of legal business. It would put Plainfield up several points and she would be in the same class in this respect with other larger places who are not the superior in any other way of Plainfield.

HORSE SCARED TO DEATH.

Metuchen Steed Not Use to Plainfield Trolley Cars and Dropped Dead at the Sight of One.

A horse belonging to William Manning, of Metuchen, was frightened to death by one of the cars of the Plainfield Street Railway Company Wednesday afternoon. Mr. and Mrs. Manning and their child drove to Plainfield Wednesday to visit Dr. Tomlinson, of LaGrande avenue. Mr. Manning is a New York banker whose home is in Metuchen. The horse was an old family pet.

As they drove in Park avenue they met a car coming in from Hillside cemetery. The horse became frightened and dropped dead on the roadway. Death was caused by a weak heart.

SUDDEN AND SAD DEATH.

MRS. GEORGE B. TITSWORTH PASSED AWAY IN KINGSTON SANITARIUM.

Friends Thought That She was Improving in Health—Death Causes Great Sorrow.

Cheered by the hope that she was improving from a serious illness with which she had been afflicted for some time, the many friends of Mrs. George B. Titsworth, of West Seventh street, were greatly surprised and saddened yesterday by the receipt of the news that she had suddenly passed away.

For some time Mrs. Titsworth's health has been impaired. In May she was taken to a private sanitarium in Kinston, N. Y., in the hope that the care she would receive and the quiet surroundings and change of scene might restore her health and strength, but Wednesday evening a telegram to Mr. Titsworth brought the sad message that her life had been ended.

Mrs. Titsworth was formerly Miss Fannie VanHoesen, of Syracuse, N. Y. She was married in 1888 and removed to this city. She attended the Seventh-Day Baptist church, and the gentle loveliness and strength of her character won for her a warm place in the affections of her many friends.

Mr. Titsworth, her mother, Mrs. VanHoesen, and grandmother, Mrs. Wilcox, survive her. The family have the sympathy of a large circle of friends and relatives in their great sorrow.

The services will be held at her home, 415 West Seventh street, tomorrow morning at 9:15 o'clock.

GIRL, HORSE AND BUGGY.

Man Arrested in Somerville Accused of Stealing Three—Robert Bonnell the Accused.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Somerville, July 27.—Robert Bonnell, of New Germantown, has been arrested on the charge of stealing a colored girl, a blooded horse and a costly vehicle from three different towns in a single night.

Early on Tuesday morning the blooded horse of Dr. E. H. Park, of Whitehouse Station; a buggy belonging to O. H. Lomerson, of Hall's Mills, and Ida Lane, a colored girl in the employ of Peter White, of New Germantown, were all missing. Later in the day Dr. Park's horse, attached to Lomerson's vehicle, with Ida Lane driving the outfit, arrived in Clinton. The Lane girl said she had been picked up while walking along the road near her employer's residence by a mysterious white man, who compelled her to ride, and who abandoned her at daylight near Clinton and instructed her to drive the conveyance to that town and turn it over to the authorities.

The girl's description of the man led the authorities to arrest Bonnell, who was identified by the girl.

PLAN TO BREAK JAIL FOILED.

Burglars Were Ready, But Sheriff Took Them to Prison too Soon.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Flemington, July 27.—Frank Smith and Louis Miller, the Potterstown burglars, who robbed Ramsay's store, and who were sentenced to serve five years in the State prison at Trenton at hard labor Monday, by Judge Herr, had planned to make their escape from the jail yesterday while Turnkey VanHorn was at dinner. Their plans were frustrated by Sheriff Frech, who took the thieves to the State prison yesterday morning instead of today, as the burglars expected.

After their departure Turnkey VanHorn discovered that the floor in the prison corridor had been taken up and carefully relaid so that in less than five minutes time they could have gained their liberty.

PLOTTED TO ROB STORE WHILE IN SWIMMING

George Elliott Held on Charge of Attempted Burglary of B. D. Newell's Grocery.

HIS COMPANIONS RELEASED

THEY CLAIM THAT ELLIOTT WORKED WHILE THEY WATCHED.

He is Also Suspected of Having Robbed Store of John Delaney Next Door—Elliott Will Have Hearing This Afternoon.

George Elliott, a homeless lad of 19 years, is now confined in a cell at police headquarters awaiting a hearing before Justice Nash this afternoon on the charge of attempted burglary. The specific offence was an attempt to rob the grocery store of B. D. Newell in the Voehl building on East Front street. The police also suspect that Elliott was the thief who burglarized the store of John Delaney and took three bicycle tires Tuesday evening.

The chief evidence against Elliott is the testimony of his companions, Harry and Elmer Angleman, who live at 22 Chatham street, and Edward Britton, who lives on Washington street. According to their story told to Chief Kiely last evening, the burglary was planned early Tuesday evening while the boys were swimming in Hyde's mill pond.

Elliott is an orphan and has drifted about the city for several years, sleeping in barns and making a little money at odd jobs. He has been employed as a grocery clerk and assistant to a vegetable huckster lately. He is nineteen years old. Of late Elliott has been sleeping in George Cook's barn on the raceway. His wandering life made him somewhat of a hero among the younger boys who have followed him with admiration.

Tuesday night they say that Elliott proposed that they rob Newell's grocery store and that he explained how easy it might be accomplished. They started out, Elliott leading the way. They reached the rear of the building and the boys all declare that they formed the audience while Elliott heaped up boxes and was forcing an entrance through the transom when the sight of Mr. Delaney in the store next door frightened them away. Next morning Mr. Newell found the pile of boxes and the broken transom.

The same night someone gained entrance to Delaney's store by a back window and departed with three good bicycle tires. Mr. Delaney says that several boys came into the store before it closed and that one of them stepped to the back of the room where it is supposed that he unlocked the window catch. The companions of Elliott deny all knowledge of the Delaney burglary. The police are confident, however, that they have the offender.

Roundsman Flynn and Patrolman McCarty rounded up the crowd of lads early last evening and took them to Chief Kiely's office where they were examined. The Anglemans and Britton told of the attempt to rob Newell's store. They declared that they merely watched Elliott. The latter was held on a warrant issued by Justice Nash and the other three were alloped to go.

Elliott was locked up for the night and will appear before Justice Nash for a hearing this afternoon at 2 o'clock.

BOX CAR IN FLAMES.

Central Freight Train Had to Stop and Crew Fought Fire.

The spectacle of a swiftly moving box car enveloped in flames was the sight witnessed by those on the platform of the North Avenue station last evening. The fire was discovered by the engineer soon after passing the station and the train was brought to a standstill near Liberty street.

The train crew immediately started to fight the flames and with the help of a number of sightseers and the neighbors pails and pumps, the blaze was extinguished. It had caught from a red hot axle.

The 9:08 train which was following the freight train was delayed for about fifteen minutes.

OUTING FOR DEMOCRATS.

UNION COUNTY PARTISANS WILL MEET ON LONG ISLAND.

Point View Grove the Objective Point of the Trip—Party of Plainfielders Will Go.

An event that is always looked forward to with considerable interest and pleasure by the Democrats of Union county is the annual outing arranged by the Democratic city committee of Elizabeth, which, although conducted by the party leaders at the county seat, is participated in by Democrats from all sections of the county.

This year the outing will be held Aug. 28th at Point View Grove on Long Island, where elaborate arrangements will be made for a fine shore dinner and a general good time for all who attend. The steamer Isabel has been chartered and will be used exclusively for the Democrats that day. The steamer will sail from Elizabethport, leaving about 10 o'clock in the morning and returning about 9 in the evening.

The tickets for the outing will be sold for $3 50, which will cover all expenses. It is probable that fully 400 people will attend the outing. A number of prominent State leaders will be on hand to enjoy the festivities, make the acquaintance of the Union county Democrats and deliver speeches after the dinner.

It is being planned to have a party of Plainfield Democrats attend the outing. Those Plainfield Democrats who desire to secure tickets can purchase them of W. W. St. John.

BOTHERED SALVATIONISTS.

Frederick L. Durant was too Boisterous at Street Meeting and was Arrested.

The local corps of the Salvation Army had some unsolicited aid last evening when the soldiers of that army attempted to conduct a service at the corner of West Front street and Madison avenue. Frederick L. Durant, of 436 West Second street, yelled and shouted so that Patrolman Vanderweg was compelled to silence him. Durant objected and the officer locked him up.

When arraigned before Mayor Rockfellow this morning, Durant explained that his wife and children lived in Plainfield and he worked in Newark. He did not want to run two establishments and his family would not move to Newark. It caused occasional domestic fracases. To drown his troubles he sometimes drank too much beer. Such was the case yesterday. He admitted his guilt but pleaded very penitently for mercy. The Mayor fined him $5, but suspended the sentence during good behavior.

UNDERTAKERS STIRRED UP.

Action of State Health Board Breeds Considerable Discord.

The undertakers of the State are up in arms over the recent action of the State Board of Health in ordering the use of a new form of burial permit and in recalling the old ones.

This was done upon the request of the different transportation companies, and is working anything but well, the railroad concerns now refusing to honor the new permit.

It has been stated already that some action by the undertakers throughout the State is contemplated, and that the time for action has come very near. They propose to have some slight say in the matter of law-making for themselves.

From present indications it seems that a meeting of the profession will be held in Elizabeth for the purpose of sending a protest to the State Board against the action of the transportation companies, and it is probable that some action will be taken in the matter.

Under the present conditions the undertaker seems to have no right which the railroad or transportation companies are bound to respect, notwithstanding the fact that he is proceeding strictly in accordance with the law laid down for him in the action of the State Board July 1st, less than one month ago.

WHAT WILL BECOME OF KEAN'S RAILROAD?

Probable Use to Be Made of It if Purchased By the Riker-Hine Syndicate.

VARIOUS PLANS SUGGESTED.

DIFFICULTY OF MAKING CONNECTION WITH PLAINFIELD-ELIZABETH LINE.

One Who is Acquainted With Trolley Situation Suggests That It Might Be Turned at Cranford to Connect With Springfield.

The story has been published and since denied to the effect that the Riker Hine syndicate, the owners of the Westfield and Elizabeth Street Railway Company, had purchased the boulevard and trolley line from Elizabeth to Cranford from Senator John Kean. However the truth of that rumor, the officials of the Riker-Hine combination do not deny the fact that they are negotiating for the purchase of Kean's line and hope to own it in the not far distant future.

Senator Kean's line is now operated as far as Elmora, and the necessary rights have been secured for its extension through to the Cranford township line. This line is north of the Jersey Central Railroad and parallels the present route of the Westfield and Elizabeth Street Railway. There have been many guesses made concerning the action of the latter company if it comes into the ownership of the Kean line.

A man, who is particularly well-informed regarding the progress and changes in trolley affairs in this section, made some suggestions to a Daily Press reporter yesterday concerning the Kean line that may prove very accurate when the Riker Hine syndicate come into possession.

"The proposed trolley system planned by Senator Kean," he said, "was entirely too formidable a rival to have on the field. When the project of a line from Elizabeth to Plainfield was blocked, and the Kean line was sure only of uniting the city of Elizabeth with Cranford, the Riker-Hine people were still very anxious to get possession.

"It will cost," he continued, "considerable money to purchase Senator Kean's line, and at first glance it looks as if the other company would gain little by it. The Westfield and Elizabeth Company has a line parallel with it now, although the latter's cars are compelled to run over the tracks of the North Jersey Traction Company to reach Elizabeth. Many believe that the present Plainfield-Elizabeth line will be changed so as to connect with the tracks of Kean's system and enter Elizabeth that way.

"It is extremely doubtful in my mind, however, whether such a course will be followed. It will prove a difficult proposition to connect the two lines. It would necessitate the building of a new line through Westfield on the north side of the track to Cranford. That would be very expensive and is hardly to be thought of as the old line would then be of little use. A crossing over or under the Central tracks might be effected at Cranford, but it would be a very expensive proceeding as the Central is full aware of the value of such a move and would make the trolley magnates pay dearly for the privilege. The bridge at Elmora is too low to allow cars to pass under.

"I believe that the Elizabeth-Plainfield line will continue over its present route without reference to the other system, even when the latter comes under the same ownership. The Kean line will be extended to Cranford, I believe, and it is then quite possible that it may turn to the northward and reach Springfield, opening a section now without trolley or other means of rapid transit. A Westfield-Springfield line is practically assured and that would form the connecting link between the two systems."

NEW P. R. R. ENGINE.

A Locomotive That Can Run a Mile in 42 2-3 Seconds.

The Pennsylvania Railroad Company is testing a new and powerful hard-coal burning locomotive, and it is understood that several of them are to be put in service on the Long Island Railroad as soon as the tests are completed. The locomotive was designed by Superintendent Samuel F. Prince, Jr., and it stands 14 feet 2 inches from the rail. It weighs 118,000 pounds and the tank 80,000 pounds.

The tests are being made on the division of the Pennsylvania system between Reading and Lebanon, Pa., and the engine can develop remarkable speed with a smaller consumption of coal than any other locomotive in use on the road. In some of the trials it has pulled a vestibuled train a mile in 42 2-3 seconds.

The work of moving the big printing press plant of The Ladies' Home Journal has begun, and within a month the manufacturing part of the magazine will be in its new home. There will be forty-five printing presses in the new seven-story building, and 17,600 square feet of floor space. The executive offices will all remain in the present large building which covers four city lots. The entire plant is now the largest of any publishing house in America.

To Build Submarine Boats.

Lewis Nixon, of the Crescent ship yards, Elizabeth, has closed a contract with the United States Government to construct two of the new submarine torpedo boats recently ordered by the Naval Board. They will be modeled after the Holland boat, which was built at the Crescent yards, and which has been purchased by the Government.

CUBAN MERCHANTS PROTEST.

Ruling of Collector Bliss Disliked. Custom House Frauds Punished.

HAVANA, July 27.—Local merchants have sent another protest to President McKinley against the action of Collector Bliss in refusing to allow them to store goods free for an indefinite period in the government building on the custom house wharf. Under the Spanish regime they had the privilege of leaving their goods in the government warehouses and of removing them at their convenience without paying for storage. Collector Bliss, however, only permits them to leave their goods on the wharf for six days and in the storehouse for three days without charge.

The fiscal in charge of the custom house fraud cases asked the court yesterday for a sentence upon Arostegui of six months' imprisonment and a fine of $1,186; upon Cubas, Lopez, Chacon and Corujido, appraisers, terms of imprisonment ranging from three to six months, with fines ranging from $267 to $2,307, and upon two merchants implicated fines to the amount of their respective frauds. He asked for the discharge of three employees against whom there was not sufficient evidence to secure conviction. The prosecution involved 86 distinct fraudulent appraisements.

Political parties have actively begun the campaign for the election of delegates to the constitutional convention. Much more interest is displayed in the result than in that of the recent municipal contests. The Democratic party is arranging for a series of mass meetings and will make a strong effort to secure the control of the convention for the conservative element.

HUSBAND AND WIFE INSANE.

Aged Couple Do Not Recognize Each Other When They Meet.

WILKESBARRE, Pa., July 27.—Locked up in the Danville Insane asylum for treatment, aged John Kline and wife, who have lived together for 50 years, see each other daily and pass as strangers without the least sign of recognition. This peculiar feature of their affection may never be cured. The old people lived alone on a little farm near Stillwater, Columbia county, and were noted for their frugality and religious fervor. They were constant attendants at church and at camp meetings and at home held prayer meetings and Bible readings of their own.

Some months ago the fervor for religious subjects became a malady in Mr. Kline. He neglected his farmwork and preached all over the farm and up and down the roads. Finally a couple of weeks ago he became violent and dangerous and was arrested a week ago. A commission in lunacy sent him to the asylum and soon after had to examine his wife. The separation from her husband so upset her that at first she had fits of profound melancholy, and these gradually changed until she, too, became violent, and her friends had her committed to the asylum.

The meeting of the aged husband and wife in the corridors was arranged in the hope that it would do them some good, but to the attendants' consternation they did not recognize each other. Though they have seen each other every day for a week they are still as strangers.

The Jester Trial.

NEW LONDON, Mo., July 27.—In the trial of Alexander Jester, charged with the murder in 1871 of Gilbert Gates, William S. Shrewsbury, who testified to seeing the murdered man's body in Jester's wagon in Huler's lane, was under fire yesterday in an effort on the part of the defense to impeach his testimony. Both sides rested their case, and while Judge Eby prepares the instructions to the jury the lawyers are preparing for the supreme conflict, the closing arguments. The aged prisoner said: "I am glad the ordeal is over. I forgive every one who has testified against me. Their consciences and their words are in the hands of their God, and with him they must settle. I am innocent of the killing of that poor boy, Gilbert Gates, and believe in time he will be found alive and well. I expect to return to my Oklahoma home in time to preach next Sunday week."

From Skaguay.

SEATTLE, Wash., July 27.—A special to The Times from Skaguay, July 22, says: "Upper Yukon steamer Florence S. was yesterday wrecked in Thirty Mile canyon, on Lewis river. Purser Maltby and two women passengers were drowned. Maltby was long connected with the customs service at this port and Juneau. Commissioners Pitman for the United States and King for Canada yesterday completed the location of the provisional boundary line on White pass summit and will tomorrow go to the Chilkoot summit to perform the same service. No change in existing conditions will result on White pass, as the line was clearly defined there."

Hanna at the Seaside.

ELBERON, N. J., July 27.—Senator Mark Hanna with a party of 12, including his family, arrived here yesterday in a private car attached to a train over the Pennsylvania railroad direct from his Ohio home. In the five weeks that the senator will be in Elberon he will go to New York daily and start the national campaign in the east. His first work in that direction will begin at the Fifth Avenue hotel today.

TRYING TO FOOL US.

Suspicion Cast Upon Recent Chinese Assertions.

KEMPFF UPSETS PREVIOUS VIEWS.

Imperial Authorities In Sympathy With Boxers—Many Communications That Have Come From Peking Discredited.

WASHINGTON, July 27.—There were no developments yesterday to warrant the assumption that there has been the slightest improvement in the Chinese situation. Indeed, the general tendency of such news as found light was to add to the steadily growing doubt as to the good faith of the Chinese government as manifested in its acts. Admiral Kempff's letter given publicity by the navy department made the direct statement that the imperial authorities were in sympathy with the Boxers, though he added that the government was afterward paralyzed and incapable of controlling the situation. This was the first official declaration to reach our government contradictory of the Chinese representations that the imperial government had steadfastly and from the first opposed the Boxer movement, and our government is bound to accept the word of its own officer until that is overcome by irrefragable proof. Then the exchanges that are in constant progress between the powers are tending more and more to cast suspicion upon the genuineness of the many communications that have come from Peking through Chinese governmental sources. If it should be finally established that there has been an attempt on their part to practice a gigantic fraud upon the world, the fact may call for a change of attitude on the part of the United States government toward China. This would not affect the military policy already under way, but merely the technical relations between the two governments, which probably would closely approximate a state of formal war.

The navy department yesterday contributed a brief news item in the shape of a vindication by Admiral Remey of the United States marines from the general charge of looting at Tien-tsin. The admiral had a good deal more than this to report to the navy department, but the officials did not regard the rest of his report as proper for publication just now. General Miles and General Buffington were again in consultation, though separately, with Secretary Root, and the supposition is that the Chinese campaign was under consideration.

Surgeon General Sternberg has made every arrangement for the care of the sick and wounded soldiers on Chinese soil. Provision has been made by the quartermaster's department for the immediate transportation of an abundance of medical stores and supplies, including a full supply of hospital tents, with flooring, stoves, etc. The nature of the situation precludes the establishment of a general hospital. It has been decided to confine present efforts to the establishment of a suitable field hospital in the immediate vicinity of military operations. Major John Van R. Hoff, surgeon, has been charged with the establishment and care of the proposed hospital. He is now on duty at San Juan, Porto Rico, and will leave there immediately for Washington for consultation with the surgeon general of the army as to the best course of procedure in China. There already is a large corps of medical officers in China, and others will be sent to the assistance of Major Hoff. He will take the first available steamer across the Pacific.

THAT CHINESE APPEAL.

England Also Received It—Earl Li's Doings Excite Suspicion.

LONDON, July 27.—All the powers appear to have received an identical Chinese appeal for mediation, but in the absence of definite news regarding the fate of the ministers and of any reliable indications of the real origin of the appeal it seems that Lord Salisbury, the premier, considered it was not even necessary to publish the fact that the appeal had been received or to do anything beyond formally acknowledging it, with perhaps an intimation that nothing could be done until news from Peking had arrived.

If it could be ascertained beyond doubt that the reports of a massacre at Peking were unfounded—and there is a disposition here to believe that the ministers may after all be held as hostages—Lord Salisbury's policy would probably incline more toward the conciliation attributed to Washington than to the revenge attributed to Berlin. But, while there is no cessation of the deluge of rumors, it is beginning to be believed at Shanghai, Canton and other points that the viceroys are as completely in the dark as to affairs in Peking as the Europeans themselves.

Meanwhile the doings of Li Hung Chang are regarded with ever increasing suspicion, while the situation in the southern provinces daily grows worse.

With the report that the allies will begin the advance upon Peking in a fortnight and in view of Admiral Seymour's visit of inspection to the Yangtse Kiang the feeling is that no great time will elapse before matters assume a more definite shape.

Last Saturday the Chinese minister, Sir Chih Chen Lo Feng Luh, handed the foreign office a long telegram purporting to come from Emperor Kwang Su soliciting Great Britain's good offices to bring about peace in terms similar to the appeals addressed to President McKinley and President Loubet. Thus far the government has not replied, as it is felt that in the present anomalous circumstances the precise origin of the telegram is doubtful.

The Shanghai correspondent of The Daily Express, telegraphing yesterday, says:

"Li Hung Chang now states that some of the members of the legations have already left Peking and may be expected shortly. He is becoming angry at the skepticism of the consuls.

"The impression is gaining ground here that the ministers of the powers to whom China has appealed for mediation may still be alive. The representatives of France, Japan, Russia and the United States have visited Li Hung Chang, but the others still keep aloof.

"The Americans here are indignant over the fact that United States Consul Goodnow has entered into relations with Earl Li, but Mr. Goodnow defends his action on the ground that he is following the instructions of his government."

The Hongkong correspondent of The Daily Express wires as follows under yesterday's date:

"An Italian priest has just arrived here from Hen-sien-fu, in southern Hu-an, where the Italian bishop and three priests have been massacred after revolting torture. This took place on July 4. Six hundred converts were massacred after the women had been subjected to hideous brutalities. Six other priests fled to the hills, where they were probably killed. The priest who escaped had a perilous journey to Hongkong. He hid in a coffin on board a river boat for 17 days.

"Nankin and Wu-chang garrisons are being constantly re-enforced, and the viceroys admit that they cannot much longer withstand the pressure brought to bear by Sheng and Li Hung Chang upon them to join the forces with Prince Tuan.

"It is hoped that the arrival of Admiral Seymour here may stiffen the backs of the foreign viceroys and restore the security of the port.

"Two English missionary ladies, Miss Whitchurch and Miss Searell, have been murdered at Hsiaoi, in the province of Shansi. Massacres are also reported from Tai-yuan and Pao-ting-fu."

The Canton correspondent of The Daily Telegraph in a dispatch dated Wednesday says:

"There are daily arrests of Boxers and smugglers caught loaded with arms and ammunition. Executions quickly follow, but the rowdy element remains practically undismayed. In the country districts the people are more threatening and bolder than in the city."

SEYMOUR IN SHANGHAI

British Admiral Consults With Consul—Li Hung Chang's Plans.

SHANGHAI, July 27.—Admiral Seymour has arrived here and has been in consultation with the British consul regarding the situation.

It is reported that the British battleship Centurion and the cruisers Undaunted and Dido are at Woo-sung. The following warships are here: British, Daphne, Alacrity, Hart and Woodcock; American, Castine; Dutch, Holland; French, Surprise; Japanese, Takao and Akagi.

It is reported that Li Hung Chang intends to leave for Foochow, from which point he could easily go to Nankin or Peking overland.

Should the southern viceroys yield to antiforeign influence, there will be a severe struggle. The Yang-tse Kiang is being strongly fortified with the newest guns manned by German drilled artillerymen.

It is reported here from Tokyo that 15,000 Japanese troops landed at Shan-Hai-Kwan on July 22 and gained a victory, the Chinese retreating after a feeble resistance.

Another Secret Society Active.

HONGKONG, July 27.—The signs of menacing activity on the part of the secret society known as the Triads are causing alarm. The Boxers are believed to be an offshoot of the Triads, whose ramifications are widespread throughout the southern provinces of China. The organization is distinctly antiforeign and anti-Manchoo, and numbers of Canton troops are enrolled in its ranks.

A report is current in Canton that the Triads are preparing for a night attack on the Shameen and that the first sign will be the absconding of native servants. The greatest apprehension prevails, although at present Canton is quiet.

Many Triads have been arrested in Hongkong during the last few months. A Chinaman who was arrested on July 8 on the charge of carrying arms was committed for trial on the charge of being a member of the Triads. The evidence showed that he had held the rank of second in command in the organization in the two Kwangs, with headquarters at Sai-kung, a new territory, where he had been active in enrolling members. His arrest, therefore, is of the greatest importance. The insignia found upon his person included the highest degrees.

An opium farmer has received a telegram asserting that Li Hung Chang is unable to proceed to Peking and will return to Canton, probably calling at Hongkong on the way.

Another Shanghai Story.

TOKYO, July 27.—A message received here from Shanghai makes the following assertions: "Yuan Shi Kai, governor of Shangtung, has received a letter from Peking, dated July 18, declaring that a legation courier was captured by the Chinese guards on July 13 and that thereupon General Yung Lu petitioned the throne to employ the courier as a messenger to communicate with the ministers. This was carried out, and a reply was received that all the ministers were well and were unanimous in favoring the restoration of peace. An official of the tsung-li-yamen afterward visited the legation and interviewed a minister, and it was subsequently decided to petition the emperor to supply the legations with food and to send them to Tien-tsin. Yung Lu is said to have great difficulty in intervening between the foreign soldiers guarding the south Gioka bridge and the Tongo troops on the north side. Fighting has now ceased, however."

Praise For Colonel Kimball.

WASHINGTON, July 27.—Regarding the suit brought against Colonel Kimball, quartermaster at New York, it was stated by Secretary Root and other officials at the war department that Colonel Kimball during his entire service had been a most capable and trustworthy officer and that in making his shipping contracts he had acted for the best possible good of the service.

Cadets Reporting For Examination.

WEST POINT, N. Y., July 27.—Under a recent act of congress providing for an increase of cadets at West Point 152 principals and alternates have reported for examination. There are at present 134 vacancies. Up to this time 40 applicants have been examined, and four were rejected on account of physical disabilities.

Medicine Men Needed.

WASHINGTON, July 27.—General Sternberg says that 100 additional medical officers are wanted by the surgeon general for duty in the Philippines and China. He says that only graduates of reputable medical colleges, with some experience and under 40 years of age, will be accepted.

A MISSIONARY'S EXPERIENCE

Escapes From Soo Chow After Much Anxiety.

COLUMBUS, Ga., July 27.—A Columbus lady has received from her sister Miss Virginia Atkinson, a missionary of the Methodist Episcopal church, south, in China, a letter giving a vivid story of her experience. The letter is dated Shanghai, June 25, and says:

"You see I am in Shanghai. I have had to run from a riot again. There is plenty of cause for alarm. Had it not poured rain Saturday and Sunday night in Soo Chow there might not have been any one left to tell the story.

"On Saturday we felt that they were ripe for an attack, but it poured sheets of rain on Sunday, so that nothing could possibly be done. Rain always cools off the Chinaman for awhile, so we left for Shanghai Monday. One of the brethren came with us on the boat with a loaded pistol, and we got in safely. There are a number of men-of-war in the river here and the city is well guarded both by men and artillery. I scarcely think there can be trouble here, but four of us, with some of our Chinese Christian refugees, are getting off to Japan next week to remain indefinitely. This strain is awful. Before leaving Soo Chow for days we did not dare allow ourselves to go fast asleep, and one night we spent a good deal of time walking the streets."

FILIPINO TREACHERY AVENGED

Americans Kill Eighty-nine—Comrade Was Murdered.

MANILA, July 27.—At Oroquieta, in northern Mindanao, two soldiers entered a native store for the purpose of buying food. While there one of them was killed by a bolo and his head severed from his body. The other escaped and gave the alarm. A company of the Fortieth infantry, stationed at Cagayan, repaired to Oroquieta and killed 89 natives, 30 of them being in a single house.

Subsequently the gunboat Callao, commanded by Lieutenant George B. Bradshaw, shelled Oroquieta, burning the warehouses. One of the crew was killed.

A force of the enemy estimated to number 500 under the leadership of Alvarez, formerly the insurgent president of Yambranga, is now persistently troubling northern Mindanao.

A marine at the outpost of Isabela de Basilan was boloed by natives and so badly wounded that he died. Isabela is tranquil.

CONDENSED DISPATCHES.

There was a further cut in steel prices at Pittsburg.

The revolutionary movement in Colombia has collapsed.

Secretary of State Hay called on the president in Canton.

The British captured and razed the town of Kokofu in Ashanti.

The Peary relief steamer Windward completed her repairs at St. John's.

Charles H. Hoyt, the playwright, was committed to an asylum in Hartford.

The Wabash vestibuled limited train was almost wrecked at Custer Park, Ills.

A plot was discovered to assassinate the governor of Santiago in Santo Domingo.

Max Regis, the notorious ex-mayor of Algiers, was acquitted of taking up arms against the French government.

Cuban Thieves to Be Prosecuted.

WASHINGTON, July 27.—"The secretary of war does not issue orders to courts," replied Secretary Root to the direct question as to whether or not he had given orders for the arrest of E. G. Rathbone, late director of posts in Cuba. He also added that General Wood did not issue orders to the courts of Cuba. He then explained that the Bristow report had been forwarded to General Wood by mail, but as this could not reach him soon enough the main features of the report had been already placed in his possession and was also in possession of the proper authorities in Cuba. He said the proceeding on the part of General Wood would be the same as directions by the attorney general to a district attorney to proceed with the prosecution of persons charged with offenses against the government. The Bristow report would be made the basis of the prosecution against the persons who were charged with offenses against the postal laws.

Philippine Exports.

WASHINGTON, July 27.—The total value of merchandise, gold and silver exported from Manila, Cebu and Iloilo, Philippine Islands, the only ports of entry during the calendar year of 1899 amounted to $19,255,091, according to a statement made by the division of customs and insular affairs of the war department. The hemp exports for the year from the three ports mentioned amounted to 68,068 tons, valued at $7,993,574. Of this amount nearly half, or 25,713 tons, valued at $3,015,726, came to the United States.

Southern Pacific Wreck.

BEAUMONT, Tex., July 27.—One person was fatally and two were seriously injured in a wreck on the Southern Pacific railway three miles east of this city. While running at full speed, the axle of the tender suddenly snapped, and all the coaches and the first Pullman sleeper left the track and turned over an embankment. There were many narrow escapes, and several passengers received slight injuries.

Roberts Gets His Pay.

WASHINGTON, July 27.—The treasury department yesterday drew a warrant for $2,000 in favor of Brigham H. Roberts, the amount allowed him in the deficiency act of June 6, 1900, as full satisfaction of salary, mileage and expenses incurred by him by virtue of his certificate of election as a representative from the state of Utah.

Thousands of Chickens Cremated.

CHICAGO, July 27.—Fire in the buildings at 225 and 227 South Water street caused damage estimated between $50,000 and $75,000, created a mild panic among a score of girls, caused the death of 6,000 chickens and for a time threatened the whole block. Three girls are reported missing, but it is believed they escaped.

Forger Identified.

MIDDLETOWN, N. Y., July 27.—The identity of the forger who has been operating in this city and throughout the county under the guise of a Pullman car conductor and who was finally arrested at Paterson, N. J., was found to be John W. Baird of Poughkeepsie, formerly a railroad brakeman.

RIOT IN NEW ORLEANS

Five Hundred Special Policemen to Keep Peace.

FIGHTS BETWEEN BLACKS AND WHITES

One Negro Killed and a Large Number Seriously Wounded—Disturbance Resulted From Murder of Two Policemen by a Negro.

NEW ORLEANS, July 27.—Disorderly scenes following the rioting of Wednesday night prevailed throughout the city yesterday and resulted in the swearing in by the mayor of 500 special policemen and the ordering out of 1,500 of the state militia, Governor Heard responding promptly to the appeal of Mayor Capdevielle for assistance in suppressing the existing lawlessness and in preventing a recurrence of the violence. Throughout the day attacks were made by irresponsible mobs of whites upon the blacks. Before nightfall the negroes had been effectually chased from the streets. The effect of the disorders was to put a practical stop to business in the wholesale districts and on the levee front. As this meant a serious crippling of the trade of the port, the business element rallied in force, and hundreds of the most prominent men of the city responded to the appeal of the mayor for assistance in preserving order.

A summary of the casualties growing out of the disturbances Wednesday night and yesterday shows that one negro was beaten to death, six were so badly wounded that their lives are despaired of and about a score of people, white and black, male and female, have been more or less seriously wounded. In order to prevent the miscellaneous distribution of arms the mayor last evening ordered the closing of gunshops likely to supply the baser elements.

The bloodshed is the result of the murder of Police Captain Day and Policeman Lamb and the wounding of Policeman Mora by the negro, Robert Charles, who is yet at large. The mobs are composed of young hoodlums, many of whom are under the influence of liquor.

There was some little trouble on the levee in the morning. It was settled by the negroes leaving the river front. Many negroes did not go to their work. There are few to be seen on the streets.

In consequence of the excitement growing out of the killing of the policemen on Tuesday and in response to a call for a mass meeting, some 800 or 900 white men, a majority of them of the rougher and disorderly classes, met at Lee circle Wednesday night. The mob apparently had no leaders and at first did not know what to do. Some one proposed that in march to the scene of the murders, unearth Charles, the murderer, who was supposed to be hidden somewhere in the neighborhood, and lynch him. The crowd shouted, "Let's lynch him!" They marched up St. Charles street to Washington, occasionally firing their weapons in the air and giving chase to any negro that came in sight.

When the mob reached the parish prison, they found that the sheriff had a force of 40 men inside armed with rifles. A large force of policemen was drawn up in front of the prison. The chief of police and acting mayor addressed the mob and warned it against violence. The speeches and the activity of the police in keeping the mob moving and preventing any large crowd organizing in one place had the effect of gradually disintegrating it. About 200 men, armed with pistols and guns, started out for the negro quarters on Franklin street. The mob, after standing in front of the parish prison for some time and seeing how hopeless any attack on it was, gradually broke up into small squads and marched in several directions. Such few negroes as were seen were fired on.

Jail Release Foiled.

PITTSBURG, July 27.—A plot to release prisoners now confined in the Western penitentiary at Riverside by tunneling into the institution and chiefly with a view to liberating Alexander Berkman who shot H. C. Frick in the offices of the Carnegie Steel company in July, 1892 was discovered yesterday afternoon. The tunnel began in the cellar of a two-story brick dwelling at 28 Sterling street across that thoroughfare from the southern wall of the penitentiary. The house was on the property of John C. Langsilt, a real estate agent, but a man named Thomas Brown, who said that he came from New York, purchased it in March last and had made two small payments. It was occupied by two men and two women. An electric wire was being run toward the prison.

Duped by Spirit Mediums.

CHICAGO, July 27.—If the story told by Miss Lizzie Gasser of Skaneateles village, N. Y., is correct, she was first made the dupe and then swindled out of $11,000 by two spirit mediums, mother and son, who she supposes are now in Chicago. According to a communication received by Chief of Detectives Colleran from Miss Gasser, the mother and son have operated extensively in Syracuse, where they went under the name of Williams, and police officials of that city, as well as Canada, are endeavoring to locate them.

Traveling In a Wagon.

PRINCETON, N. J., July 27.—A letter has been received here from James W. Thorne, 1900, of Chicago, who, in company with Edward B. Meigs, 1900, of Philadelphia and George L. Denny, 1900, of Indianapolis, left Princeton June 1 on a driving trip to the Yellowstone park. The letter is dated from Tiffin, Ia., July 17, and states that the party is having a pleasant and successful trip in their covered wagon drawn by three horses. They expect to arrive at the Yellowstone Sept. 10.

Forest Fires In Montana.

KALISPELL, Mon., July 27.—One of the worst forest fires ever known in northwestern Montana is now raging in the Swan Lake country, on the western part of the Lewis and Clarke forest reserve. Gus Mosler, superintendent of the reserve, reports that the Indians deliberately set fire to the timber and are slaughtering the game. He will proceed against the perpetrators. Within the space of 30 miles up and down the river he says there are over 30 fires now burning fiercely.

Moths Infest Town.

MIDDLETOWN, N. Y., July 27.—Strange species of small yellow moths made their appearance here last night. Millions of them tormented pedestrians for more than an hour. Several persons were compelled to seek physicians to have them removed from their ears.

Railroad Officials In a Wreck.

EASTON, Pa., July 27.—A tour of inspection of the Bangor and Portland railroad by officials of the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western railroad, the recent purchasers, resulted most disastrously yesterday afternoon to three members of the party. Charles N. Miller, general freight agent; C. A. Ward, master mechanic, and Harry Labarr, a machinist, all of the Bangor and Portland road and all residents of Bangor, were returning to that place from Portland, where they had taken three of the Lackawanna officials that they might catch a train for New York, when the "dummy" engine on which they were riding collided at Mount Bethel with a regulation size engine. Both engines were wrecked, and the men on the "dummy" were taken from the debris more dead than alive. Each sustained fractures of the left leg and numerous cuts and bruises. Ward's skull is fractured. He is in the Easton hospital, and the surgeons think he will die.

Vanderbilt's Firebox Tested.

PHILADELPHIA, July 27.—Cornelius Vanderbilt, Jr., yesterday made another, and, it is said, successful, test of the locomotive firebox recently invented by him. Mr. Vanderbilt arrived here Wednesday night and early the following morning went to Baldwin's Locomotive works, and, accompanied by Superintendent Vauclain of Baldwin's, he went to a Union Pacific locomotive stationed near Fairmount park, on the Philadelphia and Reading railroad. Mr. Vanderbilt sat with the engineer and Mr. Vauclain with the fireman. The test lasted an hour, and the engine ran smoothly for that time, the boiler holding steam without a trace of loss or weakness.

Transvaal Operations.

LONDON, July 27.—The war office has received the following from Lord Roberts, dated Balmoral, July 25: "We marched here yesterday without seeing the enemy. French and Hutton had an engagement with the Boers yesterday six miles to the south. The Boers fled and are being pursued. We had one officer wounded." Lord Roberts reports to the war office that General Hunter attacked the Boers south of Bethlehem and captured a hill on July 23. Fighting lasted all day. The British had 50 casualties. On July 25 the Boers vacated Witnek.

District Court a Good Thing.

The statement printed in The Daily Press to the effect that steps would probably be taken to secure the establishment of a district court in this city, has aroused interest not ouly in Plainfield but as well throughout the county, as is evidenced by the Elizabeth Journal's comment on the matter in the following manner:

"Plainfield is rejoicing over the prospect of having a district court of its own. If by the census just taken, but not yet tabulated, the city of Plainfield is found to have 17,000 inhabitants, it may have a district court. Ten years ago Plainfield had 13,626, so that its chances are fairly good. During the last session of the Legislature a bill was introduced making the districts courts county institutions, instead of having the expense borne entirely by the city while the courts were open to litigants from all parts of the county. The plan was to have a kind of county circuit, the district court judge holding court upon specified days in Elizabeth, Plainfield, Rahway and possibly Westfield. This was strongly opposed by the rural districts on the ground that they did not want to help pay for the city courts. If Plainfield gets a district court and as good a judge as Elizabeth has, she will find the new court a vast improvement over the old system of justices' courts."

The example of the president of the Union Traction Company in giving his employes a few simple lessons in etiquette may yet commend itself to the general emulation of discerning employers.—Chicago Record.

This advice is commended to the management of the street railway system centered in this city. To be civil and polite costs nothing, but the crusty and gruff manners of some of the employes of the local trolley company, especially those running between here and Elizabeth, is a marked and disagreeable feature of trolley transit. Not all the conductors, however, are so mannered, and the exceptions may well be described as "things of beauty and a joy forever." It would not require much observation and time to ferret out the impolite faretakers, and when they are located a lecture in etiquette should be delivered to them, combined with a warning that future offenses along this line would be met with prompt dismissal from the service of the company.

Someone has been studying the political platforms for the past few years and the interesting discovery is made that notwithstanding that both the Republicans and Democrats declared in favor penny postage in in 1888, there is not a reference to this matter in any of the platforms of 1900. Inasmuch as no one is demanding penny postage at the present time, the principal interest in the matter is to show how a movement rises and then sinks out of sight.

There is good reason for the milk of human kindness to curdle in the case of a Philadelphia man who was arrested at the behest of one whose life he probably saved by notifying the police of a plot on the part of a gang of thugs to assault and rob him. The informant wanted a reward of $5 for his work, but the man he befriended thought that the demand was outrageous and caused his arrest on the charge of blackmail.

Many successful business men are able to make a fair estimate of the trade that is to be gained by advertising, says the Philadelphia Record. They go in for it, increasing their "ad" space until they achieve the result they aim at. They consider a certain amount of newspaper advertising necessary to mere publicity—to show that they are alive. All beyond that is a reaching out for new business.

The New York Post estimates that more than two millions and a half of men will cast their first votes for a President at the coming election. It is probable that at least ninety-five per cent. of these new voters will be Democrats, Republicans, Populists, Prohibitionists or followers of other partisan creeds just according as their fathers have been before them.

Now that Mr. Bryan has accepted the invitation to attend the Grand Army Encampment at Chicago the most careful arrangements are being made that he shall not be there at the same time as Mr. McKinley. The Philadelphia Times thinks that this is depriving Chicago and the country in general of a great deal of pleasureable excitement.

The "trolliac," according to The Boston Transcript, is a person who devotes all Sunday to long rides on trolleys. The trolliacs have not yet attained to the ability to make century rides in twenty-four hours, but they live in hopes. They are to every day trolley patrons what the century riders are to the ordinary cyclers.

The cost of the British war in South Africa up to date has been $381,496,766, and the expense of our war in the Philippines from May 1, 1898, when Dewey sailed into Manila Bay, to February 1st last is estimated to have been $355,000,000.

Despite the fact that a suicide club has been formed in New Brunswick, we suppose the editors of the old Dutch city still claim that the town is the only one in the country where life is worth living.

WHAT THE SHEARS FIND.

Editorial Comment From Other Papers of Interest in Plainfield.

Surrogate Crater authorizes us to state that while appreciating the many pleasant references to him in connection with the Congressional nomination this fall, he is not now a candidate, has not been, and will not be, neither could he see his way clear to accept it were it tendered him by the convention.—Monmouth Democrat.

* * * * *

The Republican campaign in New Jersey has come to something of a halt on account of the illness of Senator Stokes, who is acting chairman of the State Committee while Franklin Murphy is absent in Europe. Senator Stokes is not seriously ill, but is badly run down as the result of overwork. The secretary of the Republican State Committee, Augustus S. Barker, is also far from being well, and the party machinery is pretty well hampered; but there is nothing much to do in the way of campaign work now, anyway.—"Trenton" in New York Herald.

PASSING COMMENT.

Things that Are Not Exactly News but Just as Interesting.

The Jersey City Journal prints the following about a Plainfield girl who is proving a valuable aid to the fresh-air camp fund started by The Journal: "Miss Helen Moore Cruikshank, a sweet little maid of ten years, whose letter offering to help the babies and mothers of the poor, was published several days ago, sends another letter today containing her first contribution of $6, and a promise of more to come. This girl owns a number of Shetland ponies and, to help the poor babies, has determined to take out little girls and boys, who reside near her, in the country on trips for which she exacts payment. Her intention is to earn enough to send away one little baby with its mother every week this summer. The purpose of this litle girl is an example that might be emulated by others."

—A large display of Jersey and Georgia peaches will be seen at Neuman Brothers' grocery tomorrow morning.

—The Christian Endeavor Society of the First Baptist church will meet this evening and a cordial invitation is extended to all.

We have always used the best Java and Mocha in our family, but I am free to say I like the GRAIN-O as well as the best coffee I ever drank. Respectfully yours,

They cost no more than poor meats.

FASHION HINTS.

Accessories and Trimmings For This Gowns.

Large scarfs continue to be worn. They are of black or colored mousseline de soie or crepe de chine and have a plaited flounce at the ends, headed by a puffing. The voluminous bow is bouffant and is fastened here and there by little brooches and stickpins.

A charming novelty is a toque of white or very light tulle voluminously draped, with large black daisies with yellow middles set here and there, as if incrusted in the tulle. Instead of daisies, pansies or little wild roses are sometimes used, appearing behind the light veiling of the tulle with excellent effect.

Little boleros of corded and tucked taffeta are much seen in black and white. They are usually comparatively plain, sometimes without revers, and are attractive accessories for a light summer gown.

Tiny tucks and plaits are still the extreme of fashion and are used in all sorts of ways. On bodices they are sometimes less than a sixteenth of an inch wide and are made with great exactitude, as decorations which lack regularity are of no value.

In the case of some thin gowns the omnipresent ruffle is replaced by plaitings, which, like ruffles, are decorated in various ways.

The cut shows a costume of old rose satin cloth. The skirt, laid in large box plaits, is smooth at the top and adorned with groups of stitched folds which cross and form points. The bolero is trimmed in the same manner, as are the tops of the sleeves. The yoke and plastron are of blue guipure over old rose silk, and the belt is of black velvet, the buttons being enameled. The toque is of draped old rose tulle, spangled with gold, and is trimmed with old rose feathers.

JUDIC CHOLLET.

THE SLEEVE.

It Is an Important Part of the Fashionable Gown.

Sleeves show a great deal of variety. Some are perfectly flat, tight and plain; others are made square at the top by means of darts; still others are gathered where they are sewed in. Then there are sewed epaulets and sleeve caps of all kinds and sleeves which are tucked, puffed and trimmed with much elaboration. In no case, however, is the bulk of the sleeve very great, the exaggerated style of several years ago—which was, by the way, extremely comfortable and becoming to the figure—having totally disappeared. Pagoda sleeves, which are large the other way—that is, are very wide and open at the bottom—are seen on many evening wraps and reception and house gowns.

POPLIN GOWN.

Mitten sleeves on summer gowns are often finished with a deep scallop, covering the hand to the fingers. This scallop is lined with velvet, satin, gathered mousseline or lace and may be turned back at the wrist, forming a sort of cuff when it is desired to give freedom to the hand.

The cut shows a costume of silver gray poplin. The skirt is plain immediately in front, but is gathered at the waist, at the sides and back. The plain bodice has a yoke of guipure and a bolero composed of alternate bands of poplin and guipure. These close in front under a knot of black panne. The sleeves, which are of elbow length, are trimmed at the top to match the bolero and have a ruffle of guipure at the elbow.

The following story of the well-known teller in the Fourth Street National Bank of Philadelphia argues well for Ripans Tabules:

"My position as paying teller," says he, "is a very arduous one (this being one of the largest banks in the Union). I must have accuracy and steadiness of both hand and brain. On Fridays and Saturdays especially, when checks are pouring in in almost unlimited numbers, I must be both quick and accurate. A clear brain is requisite. Many a Friday, after standing so long, counting out money all the time, I have gone home with a head-splitting pain and a dizziness that would unfit me for any more work, but I find that a Ripans Tabule taken after supper relieves me quickly, and after a refreshing sleep I get up the next day as strong as ever and ready for the duty that is before me. Although I have been a paying teller for over ten years I have made but few mistakes, and I attribute my habitual accuracy to the occasional use of Ripans Tabules. They are superior for the severest sort of headaches and I prize them above all nerve tonics. I heartily recommend Ripans Tabules to all suffering from headaches, nervous prostration and dizziness. A single one brings immediate benefit and ease."

MISS JANE ADDAMS.

Her Work at Hull House Approved by Students of Sociology.

What She Has Done for the Uplifting of the Poor and Needy in One of the Thickly Settled Wards of Chicago.

[Special Chicago Letter.]

THE false relations existing between the different classes of society, caused by the misconception of the meaning of that much-abused word "charity," are to such an extent superseded by the development of social settlements that the enthusiasm exhibited over a recent speech of Miss Jane Addams at the woman's congress at the Paris exposition did not excite much surprise. Miss Addams' name is recognized the world over as that of the pioneer of this movement in the United States. The particulars of her stay in London and acquaintance with the work at Toynbee hal and her determination to institute a similar social center in Chicago are too well known to require special mention. A short time after her establishment at Hull house, then a small building, a settlement was started in New York, since which time numbers of these homes have sprung up all over the country.

Miss Addams sems in every way adapted to the life she has chosen.

She is always vividly interested and is the great organic center from which the work of Hull house radiates. The ever-increasing demand for more space has been met from time to time, until at present the large building is the home of a life with which no one could come in contact without being interested—and enlightened. Nowhere has it been more fully demonstrated that human nature, given the same conditions, is pretty much alike the world over. So much as been accomplished by the social mingling of educated people with the extremely poor in the densely populated Nineteenth ward of Chicago, where 19 different languages are spoken, that it is impossible to calculate the results if present plans are carried out for two or three generations.

But even now the Nineteenth ward is not an attractive place for a walk on a summer's day. The wooden block street pavements apparently spent the winter months in absorbing and storing impurities which they give out to the summer sunshine in the form of unpleasant odors.

The prevailing style of architecture sets at defiance all rules of comfort and sanitation. Most of the buildings are especially poor and squalid, crowded and, to express it mildly, not clean. The children playing in the streets are sad enough looking objects and the faces of the mothers peering from the doorways too often indicate hopelessness, or worse. Saloons may be found on all sides. No locality is, however, wholly bad. These people are very poor in most senses of the word, and many of them work very hard. Still there is plenty of good material here, as a glance over the list of entertainments given at Hull house last winter will show. The 200 members of the Hull House Woman's club live in this ward. They manage the club themselves, only electing their president from among the "residents" of Hull house, or some of the workers whom they introduce.

It is a question how many people are aware that 24 women have left their homes and live in Hull house, making its success their chief object. When a vacancy occurs, a new member is elected from among the many applicants. The board of these 24 people averages about $6 a week, each. They eat most of their meals in their own dining hall, but luncheon is served a la carte in the public coffee room, a recent addition to the establishment. This latter is a very neat and attractive room, artistic in its simplicity and beautifully clean. Here any well-behaved person may be served, from seven a. m. to seven p. m. every day, except Sunday. Lunches are furnished daily to several clubs in the city and, when they are in session, to a number of schools. The coffee house seats 110 people. At one end of the room is a postal station, where many foreign languages are spoken, which is very convenient for those who are unable to speak English and desire to send money to absent friends. A much needed auditorium has also been recently added.

Here, last December, Odysseus was rendered by a club of native Greeks to crowded, rapt audiences, composed of all sorts and conditions of men, among whom were millionaires, artists and members of the ward. After all expenses were paid $200 was left, which the Greeks refused to accept and which will be the basis of a fund for an organ to be placed in the auditorium. The reception-room, lecture-rooms and gymnasium all present attractions, but, perhaps, no portion of Hull house is more interesting than that devoted to the use of the children. Here are classrooms and an excellent kindergarten, limited to 70 children. In the nursery may be found, during the day, numbers of babies (none being received less than five months old) whose mothers are employed or for some reason are unable to care for them. White enameled iron cradles receive them when they wish to sleep. They eat at low tables, at which they sit in small chairs which enable their feet to rest upon the floor. If Hull house existed for no other purpose, Miss Addams must feel amply repaid when she sees the happy little faces and realizes that it is primarily through her efforts that they are not covered with the mud of the gutters.

The Hull House Bulletin gives a general outline of the work. As many religions as well as nationalities are represented in this vicinity, great care is taken in the selection of Sunday afternoon programmes. Special efforts are made to give these concerts (at 4:30 p. m.) a character which shall be both pleasure and relaxation. The Tuesday evening lectures in winter are under the management of a competent committee. They have embraced such subjects as "Trusts and Workingmen," "Imperialism" and "Different Elements Making for Socialism." Many of the different Hull house clubs, of which there is an almost endless number, give entertainments during the winter. No one is allowed to be a member of more than one social club, and a weekly attendance of 15 is required to keep a club in existence.

The Woman's club has excellent programmes, as has also the Shakespeare club. To the university extension classes a small fee is charged. There are classes in music, art, English, French, German, Italian, Spanish, Greek, Latin and higher mathematics; instruction is also given in plain sewing, embroidery, millinery, dressmaking, cooking, dancing, fencing and manual training. A clubhouse is maintained at 221 Ewing street, where the weekly dues of young women, including room and board, are $3 per week. The Froebel association has made its headquarters at Hull house for four years. It is under the direction of Mrs. Alice H. Putnam, so well known in connection with work of this kind. She is assisted by Miss Payne. Miss Heffron lectures on drawing; Miss Eleanor Smith on vocal music; Dr. Amy Tanner, Ph. D., of the University of Chicago, on psychology. There are several other well-known educators on the list. Children with eye and ear trouble can receive free treatment at Hull house. A number of teachers visit and instruct children who, on account of ill health, are unable to attend school. The young people of the ward take great pleasure on the public play ground on Polk street, east of Halsted, which is utilized in winter for skating, and to which, at that season, an admission fee of five cents is charged to adults to defray the summer expenses of the ground. At the cashier's desk in the coffee room a penny savings bank is in operation.

The work is yearly broadening as the people in the community are able to take a larger grasp on life and what it may be made to mean to them. Hull house is situated at 335 South Halsted street. Its object, as stated in its charter, is "to provide a center for a higher civic and social life; to institute and maintain educational and philanthropic enterprises, and to investigate and improve the conditions in the industrial districts of Chicago."

EPWORTH LEAGUE.

Topic For the Week Beginning July 29, "Cumberers of the Ground." Text, Luke xiii, 6-9.

"He came and sought fruit thereon and found none." Pilate, the Roman governor, had with stern authority repressed one of the many insurrections or mobs of the Jews occurring at the season of their great festal gatherings in Jerusalem. That which seemed to shock the people most deeply was the disregard of the sanctity of the courts of the temple, so that Roman soldiers had rushed past the barriers in the partition balustrade which foreigners were on penalty of death forbidden to pass and had slain the Galilean plotters in the sacred upper courts while offering sacrifices, so that their blood mingled with that of the beasts they were offering.

To the superstitious ones of the times it was a sign that God refused their sacrifices and as a mark of signal displeasure on their wickedness allowed them to be so killed. It had long been a belief that God would protect His sanctuary and all who fled to it for refuge and would not allow any enemy of Israel to violate its sacred precincts. The same superstitious reverence for the Sabbath prevented the Jews making any defense in war on their holy day, preferring death to violating the command to keep it holy.

Bodily ills and all physical disturbances had come to be regarded as signs of Divine displeasure until the real working of God in the natural world and religious life was completely mystified and the true nature of even His ethical precepts lost under a mass of false and superstitious traditions. Jesus tells them plainly that it was not pre-eminent wickedness of the Galilean fanatics, which was emphasized by their horrible death, but it was a natural consequence of their disregard of their duties and the rights and powers of orderly government. So would it be with themselves if they did not change their own course. The same temper of mind and intention was smoldering in their breasts and would work the same results unless abandoned. Then comes the parable of the text. Fig trees ought to bear figs. That is their true function and end. If they do not do this after proper age and care, they will be condemned as useless and removed. So men are fitted to do justly and righteously and conduct their lives with due regard for the rights of other men and the institutions of society. If these are violated persistently, the transgressors will summarily suffer the consequences of their warfare on constituted authority. Human conduct is under the direction of law, and government is orderly and not capricious. Reason and not favoritism or fear directs in the processes of life, both human and material. Fate is not blind chance, but orderly result from adequate cause.

The fig tree must produce figs or go. So men must do right or be removed.

As to the mode in which the governing power acts, you can view it as natural sequence of events in unbroken chain of cause and effect merely or you can give attention to the personal element back of, above and in the whole course of events as the real author. The result is the same so far as the practical lesson for conduct is concerned. It is figs or fire, bear or burn, righteousness or removal.

Unshaved Records.

In a store window of a New England city is displayed a notice, "Records shaved off while you wait." It refers to photograph cylinders which can have the records smoothed off and be ready for a fresh impression. How convenient it would be if there was some machine which could pare off the evil deeds of men and present a new surface of character! The salvation of Jesus does purify the heart and makes new writing of life, but while it forgives the sins of the past it can never alter the fact of the bad record. Better not make any evil records; then there will be no need to shave off anything. Impress the life tablets with pure words and deeds; then you will not be ashamed if the whole universe shall hear the record read.

Waking.

When the time comes for us to wake out of the dreams of the world's sleep, why should it be otherwise than out of the dreams of the night? Singing of birds, first broken and low, as, not to "dying eyes," but to eyes that wake to life, "the casement slowly grows a glimmering square" and then the gray and then the rose of dawn and last the light, whose going forth is to the ends of heaven.—John Ruskin.

Something Each Day.

Something each day—a smile;
It is not much to give,
And the little gifts of life
Make sweet the days we live.
The world has weary hearts
That we can bless and cheer,
And a smile for every day
Makes sunshine all the year.

Something each day—a word;
We cannot know its power;
It grows in fruitfulness
As grows the gentle flower.
What comfort it may bring
Where all is dark and drear,
For a kind word every day
Makes pleasant all the year.

Something each day—a thought,
Unselfish, good and true,
That aids another's need
While we our way pursue,
That seeks to lighten hearts,
That leads to pathways clear,
For a helpful thought each day
Makes happy all the year.

Something each day—a deed
Of kindness and of good
To link in closer bonds
All human brotherhood.
Oh, thus the heavenly will
We all may do while here,
For a good deed every day
Makes blessed all the year!

—George Cooper.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Topic For the Week Beginning July 29—Comment by Rev. S. H. Doyle.

TOPIC.—Cumberers of the ground.—Luke xiii, 6-9.

THE PARABLE.

This is the parable of the barren fig tree. A man planted a fig tree in his garden. After waiting the proper length of time he came and sought fruit on it, but found none. Three successive years the result was the same. Then he ordered the vine dresser to cut it down, which was very natural. Why should it cumber the ground? Why should it occupy space and be a burden to the soil if it was unproductive? But the vine dresser was interested in the tree. He had cared for it and tended it and pleaded that it might have one more chance, and then, if after special care and attention it did not bear fruit, he would acquiesce in its destruction.

THE INTERPRETATION.

The occasion of this parable explains it. It was spoken by Christ to teach the Jews that unless they repented they would perish. Pilate had slain Galileans at worship and mingled their blood with the blood of their sacrifices. A tower had fallen upon 18 in Siloam and killed them. The Jews thought that this was evidence that these people had sinned, and as no such calamities came upon them they drew the false conclusion that they stood well with God. Jesus disabuses their minds of such a belief. He tells them plainly that unless they repent they shall likewise perish. God has extended the day of mercy, but suspension is not pardon. Forbearance does not mean indifference. Delay does not decrease the certainty of punishment if during the delay they do not repent. These surroundings furnish the key to the parable. The fig tree represents the Jews. The vineyard represents the special privileges given to the Jews. The coming of the lord of the vineyard is the divine expectation of fruit among his chosen people. Being found fruitless, sentence of destruction is passed upon the nation. By the intercession of Christ, the vine dresser, the sentence is postponed. But it availed nothing. The Jews did not repent, and at the end of their last probation Jerusalem was destroyed, their special privileges were taken from them and offered to the gentiles.

This parable has a number of most solemn lessons for all to whom God has given special privileges. God expects fruit in proportion to our opportunities and abilities. Barrenness, where there should be fruitfulness, is not to be tolerated. It was not with the Jews, the chosen people of God. Much less will it be with us. The man who should be fruitful in Christian character and life and is not is a cumberer. He not only is barren, but a burden to the vineyard. Unless he repents he will be cut down sooner or later. God is merciful, long suffering and forbearing, but let us not misunderstand His forbearance. Every tree, as well as every branch that beareth not fruit, is cast forth and withered. To whom much is given much shall be required. Let us be fruit bearers and not cumberers.

THE PRAYER MEETING.

Let the leader explain the parable and then have a voluntary discussion of the topic.

BIBLE READINGS.

Prov. vi, 6-11; x, 1-5; xxiv, 30-34; Eccl. ix, 10; Math. iii, 1-10; vii, 19; xxv, 14-30; John xv, 1-16; I Cor. x, 31; II Pet. iii, 1-12.

The Influence of Cheerfulness.

Nothing is more fatal to success than discouragement. The people of Israel became disheartened over the unfavorable report of the spies concerning the land of Canaan and failed to march directly into their possessions and thus made a long journey of 40 years in the wilderness necessary. The discouraged man imparts his mood to others, and thus it spreads like a contagion. It is better not to display the feeling of depression, even if it cannot be wholly expunged from the mind. The man who can be cheerful under all circumstances will command the best influence over others, and the very effort he makes to look on the bright side of his misfortunes will have its reflex influence upon his own mind and change his desert into an oasis ere he knows it.—Lutheran Observer.

A Reflection.

Know that the old enemy strives by all means to hinder thy desire after good and to divert thee from every devout exercise—namely, from the veneration of the saints, from the pious meditation of My passion, from the profitable remembrance of thy sins, from keeping a guard upon thy own heart and from a firm purpose of advancing in virtue.—Catholic Truth.

Hope and Prudence.

Hope is fed by the contemplation of ideals and anticipates and strives after their realization. Prudence is the child of experience. A truly sound judgment implies that hope and prudence are in due balance.—Christian Instructor.

Finishing Thy Work.

Finish thy work; the time is short;
The sun is in the west;
The night is coming down; till then
Think not of rest.

Finish thy work; then wipe thy brow;
Ungird thee from thy toil;
Take breath, and from each weary limb
Shake off the soil.

Finish thy work; then go in peace,
Life's battle fought and won,
Hear from the throne the Master's voice:
"Well done! Well done!"

Finish thy work; then take thy harp;
Give praise to God above;
Sing a new song of mighty joy
And endless love.

Give thanks to Him who holds thee up
In all thy paths below,
Who made thee faithful unto death
And crowns thee now.

TAMING A BEAR CUB.

How an Alaska Indian Girl Accomplished a Feat Which Her Elders Wouldn't Undertake.

On the return trip of the steamer Pomona from the Alaska gold fields a brief stop was made at Juneau, where a polar bear cub was presented to the captain of the ship. He at once named it after the village whence it had come, and chained it on the after deck for the amusement of the passengers.

Every one took great interest in the roly-poly stranger, as sundry scratched hands and legs soon bore testimony; but Juneau refused to be cultivated by the human family. She was a vicious little savage, snarling and snapping at every offer of peace and good will, until finally the passengers were glad to give her a wide berth.

We had a bright little Indian girl on board, however, who persisted in thrusting her friendship on Juneau. Her guardians, the missionaries, were prepared to see the cub give her a bad scratch, but it was soon evident that she was quite equal to caring for herself.

Each evening little Olga saved her dessert of fruit and cake, and fed it to the cub. Although Juneau ate the peace offering greedily, she still threatened her admirer with her claws. But Olga had a plan.

One day she cut an apple into tiny bits, and deliberately seated herself on the deck within the circle allowed to the cub. The very presumption of the act caused Miss Bruin to stand and stare while Olga took the bits of apple and dropped them in a line, starting as near the cub as she could reach, and leading to her feet. Then she continued the apple line to her knee, and spreading out her skirt, dotted it here and there with the pieces. Several good-sized slices were saved for her arms and shoulder, and last, to top off, she placed the core on top of her head.

All this was done slowly and deliberately, and when it was finished Olga sat as still as a statue. Blinking and sniffing, the wily Juneau stole softly toward the apple line. The apple was juicy, and the bear put aside all fear and malice, and nibbled contentedly up to the two blunt little feet which were set up so sturdily before her. There the cub paused to study the silent figure, but finding that it did not move or offer to be friendly, she continued her feast.

Slowly and carefully she searched over the dress, not missing a morsel, and finally sniffed at the little girl's shoulder. Stepping gingerly into the soft lap, Juneau rose on her hind feet, rested her forepaws on Olga's chest, and hastily gulped down the remaining bits of apple until none was left but the tempting core on the child's head.

Then the bear, clinging with her sharp claws to the cloth jacket, climbed upon Olga's shoulder, clasped her round the neck for a balance, and nibbled the core.

I wondered if any of the grown-up white people on that ship could have sat so still. Our little passenger's courage never failed her. There was not the quiver of an eyelash to show that she was alive, and the wary cub, with a grunt of satisfaction, went back to her box to sleep. Not until then did the child move from her cramped position. Jumping up, she ran away full of glee to tell her friends.

Next day there was a large audience which stood at a respectful distance to watch the novel performance. The experiment of the day before was repeated with even greater success, for Juneau ended it that time by cuddling down in the soft, warm lap and going to sleep.

Of course these two little natives of Alaska became great friends, and when we docked at San Francisco the captain unchained the pretty cub, and put her into the arms of the only person who had had wit enough to tame her.—Etella Walthall Belcher, in Youth's Companion.

Funeral of a Pet Canary.

The pet canary of a New York family succumbed to an attack of grip the other day. The five small Smiths—and even the neighbor children—mourned uproariously. The funeral services were thus described in a letter by Wilfred, aged ten: "We buried Chirp under the dead tree in the yard. I dug the grave and Sylvia gave the coffin. Montmorency and me sang a hymn. We pretended it was a hymn, but it was a song Mrs. Wilson suggested about sparrows falling and God watching over; maybe you have heard it. Montmorency knew it before. Then I preached a sermon over the tomb. Rose danced a skirt dance and we all wept."

Pretoria Not the Capital.

Pretoria is not, as is generally supposed, the capital of the Transvaal. Potchefstroom is the capital of the state, and Pretoria the seat of government. They are about 105 miles apart.

KILLED WHILE INTOXICATED.

Malachi Struck by a Train While Crossing the Tracks.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Basking Ridge, July 27.—W. Malachi, a German, fifty-five years of age, was struck by a train on the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western Railroad near Millington, yesterday morning, and instantly killed.

Malachi was in the employ of Mrs. John West, at Millington, and had been drinking. He attempted to cross the tracks in front of the train that left here at 11:09 a. m., not realizing his danger owing to his drunken condition. He leaves no relatives. The coroner was called, but decided that death was accidental, and that there was no need of an inquest.

WON'T SPEAK ON SUNDAY.

Bryan Declines an Invitation From Asbury Park.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

New York, July 27.—William Jennings Bryan has declined to deliver an address at the national service to be held at Asbury Park in the Beach Auditorium some Sunday afternoon next month, says a Herald special. In his letter declining the invitation, Mr. Bryan said:

"During the campaign Sunday is the only day that I have for rest. Without that day of rest I would not be able to undergo the work of the campaign. If I was to surrender that day on one occasion, I would find it difficult to refuse other invitations, and I think it better to adhere to the rule that I have heretofore observed."

FLIRTED BY MATCH LIGHTS.

Because of This Senator Chase, of New Jersey, Secured a Divorce.

Former Senator Daniel C. Chase has been granted a divorce. Vice-Chancellor Reed granted a divorce because of Mrs. Emma E. Chase's misconduct with Surrogate Leonard Furman, of Middlesex county.

The case has created widespread interest, both parties being widely-known throughout the State. The testimony taken was to the effect that Surrogate Furman and Mrs. Chase flirted by using the light of matches struck by Furman in the street and watched by Mrs. Chase from her house.

James F. Stewart Nominated at Paterson.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Paterson, July 27—Congressman James Fleming Stewart was nominated as the candidate of the Republicans for Congress in the Fifth district at the convention yesterday. Mr. Stewart has served three terms in the House of Representatives and is one of the most popular men in the district. Capt. Sheffield Phelps, son of the late William Walter Phelps, was chairman of the convention, and State Senator Wm. Johnson, of Bergen county, made the nominating speech. Congressman R. Wayne Parker, of Newark, was present and made a speech after Mr. Stewart made his speech of acceptance.

State Republican League.

The New Jersey State League of the National Commercial and Industrial League recently organized is about to establish headquarters in Newark for the Presidential campaign. County auxiliary clubs are to be organized, and as soon as the State headquarters are established the work of preparing and distributing literature will begin. The efforts of the league are to be mainly directed to workmen in the factories. Mass meetings will also be arranged for and the league will work in close affiliation with the Republican State Committee.

Meddling With a Revolver.

William Hurley, colored, aged 18 years, of West Third street, was brought from Whitehouse, where he is employed, to the hospital, last evening, suffering with a bullet wound in the right thigh. Hurley was meddling with a revolver, 22 calibre, when it accidentally went off. The bullet entered the right thigh, and an attempt will be made today to recover the piece of lead. The wound is not a serious one and Hurley will be detained but a few days.

COP'S HEAD IN DANGER

Oscar Peterson Resented Being Disturbed While He was Sleeping in Churchyard.

Oscar Peterson offered to break the head of Special Officer Maynard early last evening. Peterson offered Maynard the alternative of leaving him alone. Maynard caught the man's arm as the club descended and removed the weapon. As Peterson was decidedly drunk Maynard locked him up.

Mayard is the sexton of the First Baptist church. He was cleaning up the lawn shortly before 6 o'clock last evening when he found Peterson asleep on a choice plot. He tried to persuade Peterson to move on, but the suggestions of the colored sexton were without avail. Then came the threat and the subsequent arrest.

Peterson was haled before Mayor Rockfellow this morning. The prisoner was very penitent. His past good record was shown, so the Mayor suspended sentence.

HER EIGHTY-FIFTH BIRTHDAY.

Pleasant Family Reunion for an Aged Plainfield Woman.

Surrounded by numerous children and grandchildren, both from Plainfield and Philadelphia, Mrs. Aaron Dunn, of Elm place, celebrated her eighty-fifth birthday yesterday. The day was passed very quietly and last evening everybody sat down to a supper which Mrs. Dunn enjoyed heartily.

In spite of her advanced age the old lady is by no means infirm and looks and acts like a person a great deal younger, and she expects to be able to see a good many more birthdays.

A most unfortunate accident occurred to mar the day's pleasure when at about 10 o'clock, as Mrs. Dunn was about to retire, she fell down a cellar stairway and broke an arm. She had intended passing from the kitchen to the hallway, but some one had removed the lamp and in the dark she made a mistake in the doors. Dr. Jenkins was called but on account of her advanced age the injury will take a long time to mend.

CUTTING DOWN THE FORCE.

Many Old Men Not Wanted by New Lehigh Valley Management.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Perth Amboy, July 27.—The new management of the Lehigh Valley Railroad Company has been making many radical changes in the personnel of the Perth Amboy force. Yesterday John C. Brown, who has been in the employ of the company thirty years, and who lost a foot when at his work several years ago, was told he will not be needed after August 1st.

Eighteen conductors of shifting and drill engines have also been told that only eight of them will be needed after the same date. Within a month the yardmaster, two assistants and several other officials have been removed.

New Brunswick Fire Chief Dead.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

New Brunswick, July 27—John D. Peirce, chief of the fire department of this city, died here Wednesday morning. Gastric fever, brought on by the heat, was the cause of his death. Mr. Peirce was 35 years old and leaves a wife and one child. He had been a member of the fire department for nearly fifteen years, and served as assistant chief from 1896 to the present year, when he was appointed chief. He had been very busy arranging for the annual parade of the department during the last few weeks, and the trouble of this work contributed largely to his illness, which lasted but a few days. He was out at a fire less than a week ago.

Elizabeth to Have Pure Water.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Elizabeth, July 27.—The Board of Health held a special meeting Wednesday night and discussed the subject of getting purer water for the city. It was stated that the Irvington avenue reservoir, from which the contaminated water came that has raised such a clamor throughout the city, has been wholly shut off, and that no more of it would be used. It was promised that in less than a month the city would be supplied with all the pure drinking water it needs from the new wells now being driven at Springfield and in Union township.

Lost in Westfield Swamps.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Westfield, July 27—George Curtis and John Mahoney, who live on farms near Ash Brook, became lost in the swamps near that place Tuesday. Both men entered the woods to look for a valuable steer. Mahoney tied his horse near the station of the Lehigh Valley Railroad at Ash Brook. Although the two men were only a half-mile from home, it took them six hours to find their way out of the woods and they were compelled to walk ten miles back to Westfield.

MANY PEKIN REPORTS.

Messengers Said to Have Left All Well July 9 h.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

London, July 27th—The Belgian Consul at Shanghai reports that a servant of the German Minister, who left Pekin July 9th, states that the British legation was only attacked at night, and, if re-supplied, he believed could hold out.

Berlin, July 27.—A dispatch, received here today, dated Tintsin, Tuesday, July 24th, says:

"A messenger who left Pekin Sunday, July 15th, brought today to the customs officers here news that Prince Ching's soldiers had been fighting Prince Tung's (Tuan's?) troops, and had been defeated.

"The foreigners were defending themselves in the Northern Cathedal, near the Forbidden City."

JOHN R HARDIN APPOINTED.

Newark Lawyer Made a Manager of the Epileptic Village.

(Special to the Daily Press.)

Trenton, July 27.—Governor Voorhees yesterday appointed John R. Hardin, a well-known lawyer of Newark, to succeed Dr. John W. Ward, of the State Hospital above this city, a member of the board of managers of the State village for epileptics. Dr. Ward recently resigned.

The other members of the Board are Rev. Dr James M. Buckley, Dr. Thomas J. Smith, Dr. John H. Ewing and Dr. William S. Combs.

Hall Fined $10.

William Hall, a farmer of Willow Grove, near Westfield, was given a hearing at the town rooms, Westfield, Wednesday night, on a charge of cruelly using a boy, William Hodges, nine years old, who has been living with him for some months past. It was charged against the Halls that they made the child work early and late and whipped him unmercifully. The boy exhibited several welts and bruises, which Dr. Cooper said must have been made with a heavy whip. Paul Q. Oliver was attorney for Hall and Charles Angleman appeared for the prosecution, represented by J. A. Dennis, chairman of the Township Committee. Hall was fined $10 and was granted an appeal.

Arrested While Courting.

John Spencer, Jr., has been arrested on the charge of stealing a horse belonging to Peter S. Smith, living near Flemington. Smith drove his horse to Flemington, tying it under a shed. Shortly afterward Spencer untied the animal and drove out of town. A short time afterward the rig was missed and Constable Elmer Hann started in pursuit. It was learned that Spencer had a sweetheart living near Dreahook. Officer Hann hastened to that place and lay in wait for his man. About daybreak he discovered Spencer and his girl riding towards the latter's home. Spencer was taken into custody and was committed to jail, but later was released under bonds.

Unique Election Bet.

The first unique bet in this vicinity on the result of the coming National campaign has been made by George P. Shelby, of Linden, and Thomas W. Noyes, of Jersey City. Both men own the house they live in, and the one who loses is to sell his property. Part of it is to be used to pay the expenses of a camping and hunting trip to North Carolina. The Jersey City man is a stanch admirer of McKinleyism, while the Lindenite backs Bryan to win. According to the provisions of the wager, the man who loses is to live in some other plabe.

Funeral of James R. English.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Elizabeth, July 27.—The funeral of James R. English was held this morning. The services took place at 10:30 o'clock in the Trinity Episcopal church, and were conducted by Rev. John R. Atkinson, the rector. The pall-bearers were Governor Foster M. Voorhees, Senator Joseph Cross and Surrogate George T. Parrot, of this city; Judge Benjamin A. Vail, of Rahway; Nelson Runyon, of Plainfield, and Former Congressman Aivah Clark, of Somerville. The interment was at Liberty Corner, Somerset county.

Rally Services.

Rally services were continued last evening at the Mt. Olive Baptist church, when addresses were made by several local colored pastors, as well as by a few pastors from out of the city. There was special music by a large chorus choir and altogether the services were of considerable interest to all who were present.

PLAINFIELD PREFERRED.

The Chances are This City Will Get Company of State Guard in Preference to Phillipsburg.

Two military organizations have already made application for admittance into the National Guard to take the place of Company I, of Newton, which, it is said, will be disbanded.

The companies are situated at Phillipsburg and Plainfield.

In case the Newton company is dropped many of the National Guard officers in Trenton think that Plainfield will receive the preference, as they made application for admittance when the National Guard was reorganized about a year ago.

Major Coward, in whose battalion the Newton company is, said yesterday afternoon that he heard it rumored about the camp at Sea Girt they were to be disbanded, but he did not think any action would be taken until Colonel Gillmore returned from the State camp.

PORTO RICO'S POPULATION.

Three Times as Many Persons to the Square Mile as in the State of Ohio.

The population of Porto Rico, according to the official figures of the census bureau at Washington, is 963,243. The rate of increase from 1897 to 1899 was 16.20 per cent. The present rate of increase, according to competent authority, is about the same as that of Ohio, Tennessee or the Carolinas between the decade of 1880 and 1890. Among the 69 municipal districts into which the departments are divided seven decreased in population between 1887 and 1899. As all of them lie on the coast, the coast districts as a whole may have grown more slowly than the interior of the island. The area of the island, including the adjacent and dependent islands of Vieques, Culebra, Mona and Muertos, measured in connection with the census, is 3,606 square miles, but owing to the imperfect surveys on which all maps of Porto Rico are based, there must be considerable and indeterminate margin of possible error in any such measurement. There are now 264 persons to the square mile, the density of population being about the same as in Massachusetts, twice that in New York and thrice that in Ohio. It is more than seven times that of Cuba. The least settled district has 58 persons to the square mile. The people of the island are in the main a rural community, San Juan, with 32,048, and Ponce, with 27,952, being the only cities exceeding 25,000 inhabitants. The total populations contained in cities exceeding 8,000 inhabitants is only 8.7 per cent. of the whole population—a much smaller proportion than in Cuba, where the corresponding figures are 32.3 per cent., and in the United States where the corresponding proportions in 1890 was 25.2 per cent. There are in the island 57 towns having a population of 1,000 or more, the total urban population under this definition numbering 203,792, or 21.4 per cent. of the whole.

YOUNG WIFE WAS CRUELLY DECEIVED.

Husband Was a Skillful Liar and Has Now Mysteriously Disappeared.

CREDITORS STRIP HOUSE.

EVEN THE WIFE'S WEDDING RING WAS NOT PAID FOR.

Honeymoon Ends With Sorrow for a Bride of Six Weeks—Harry Rose, of Westfield, Played False With the Girl He Won.

Harry Rose, of Westfield, a bridegroom of six weeks, has abandoned his wife, who was formerly Miss Hannah S. Straus, daughter of Mrs. M. Straus, of 182 Summit avenue, Newark. The couple had known each other since childhood, and were married June 10th at the home of Mrs. Straus.

At the time Miss Straus married young Rose she considered he was doing well in business. He told her he had a good position in Westfield, and was earning a good salary and had money in the bank. Rose took his wife to Westfield, and they resided in one of the Darsh flats on Broad street. Tuesday Rose disappeared and has not been heard from since.

It now appears that Mis Straus was extraordinarily deceived by Rose when she become his wife. Mrs. Rose is a very pretty young woman of the brunette type, with large, beautiful eyes and an abundance of black hair.

At the time Rose married he told his wife he was earning $15. She has since learned that he only received $10 a week and was unable to support her. During the six weeks of her married life Mrs. Rose received $7 of her husband's wages. Saturday nights he did not come home, and his wife began to wonder what had become of him and the money for the house. However, she did not worry, presuming all bills were paid. She has since learned differently, and yesterday decided to quit Westfield and the Darsh flat.

Rose rented the flat June 18th, and paid $5 on account. This is all the money his landlord has received to date, and when Mrs. Rose started to remove her goods yesterday she learned that nearly everything had been bought on credit, even to a portion of the furniture and carpets. When a furniture van backed up to the sidewalk in front of the Darsh flats several creditors appeared, including Landlord Darsh, the gas bill collector, the grocer, and an old woman who sold fresh eggs to Rose.

R. Brunner, a jeweler, was also on hand and wondered where his pay was coming from for the 14k gold wedding ring he sold Rose for $4. Mrs. Rose had the ring, which she said her husband told her he paid $8 for. Inside the ring was engraved "H. R. to H.S. 1900." Mrs. Rose, with tears in her eyes, gave up the ring on the promise of Jeweler Brunner, who assured her she could borrow the same should she need it to prove her marriage to Rose.

Few of the creditors could deal harshly with the woman who had been so grossly deceived, and the vanload of furniture was allowed to leave Westfield, Mrs. Rose agreeing to in some manner secure work and pay the bills contracted by her unscrupulous husband.

Didn't Understand the Dog.

A harmless little dog in a playful mood kept jumping up at passersby on Park and North avenues last evening. Somebody told Patrolman Myers that the dog was mad so the officer attempted to capture it. The dog objected to rough handling and bit the officer's hand. Myers ended the little life with the aid of his revolver and went to Dr. Fritts who cauterized the wound.

Unlucky Days.

It is remarkable how many people have a superstitious fear of entering upon any new enterprise on Friday, as it is considered by them to be unlucy. For instance, sailors will not leave port on a Friday to begin a long voyage. But that should not prevent anyone from going with the Hope chapel Sunday-school excursion to Asbury Park and Ocean Grove, Saturday, August 25th.

Regular Driver to be Named.

It is expected that at the next meeting of the Common Council a regular driver will be appointed for Chief Doane, to take the place of the late James Bailey.

UNDER HORSE'S FEET.

Dangerous Predicament Which an Old Bicycle Got Little Girl In.

That Nancy Vitello, of West Fourth street, was not crushed to death beneath the wheels of a truck yesterday noon was due to the quickness and thought of John Scudder, the driver. With a number of other children, Nancy, who is about ten years old, was having a good time with the remains of an bicycle on West Fourth street. She was on the wheel and her companions were pushing it along.

The machine, which had no chain, gained considerable headway and when directly in front of Schudder's truck, she lost her balance and fell in front of the horses. The next instant the wheels would have been over her, but with presence of mind Scudder put all his strength into the lines and threw his horses off their front feet. In coming down one of them trampled on the child and she was badly bruised.

Her screams made everyone believe she was badly hurt and her father took her to the hospital. It was found that her kneecap was hurt the most, being bruised and the cuticle turn off. She will be able to leave the hospital today.

OLD BILL PLEADS GUILTY

HORSE THIEF SENTENCED TO PRISON FOR THREE YEARS.

He Wanted to Take His Half-Witted Boy to Prison With Him, but Court Objected.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Somerville, July 28—Old Bill Conover, the horse thief, who, with his half-witted son, Elijah, was captured in the Sourland Mountain by Detective D. Totten a week ago, was arraigned in the Somerset Court yesterday to answer to the charge of stealing a horse and wagon from Richard L. Carter, a farmer living near the Sourland Mountain range. Old Bill was followed into court by his boy, who dogged his footsteps with the same pathetic attachment that he has manifested ever since he followed the old man from the mountain to the jail, and fought desperately to be placed in a cell with him.

There are so many charges of horse-stealing against Old Bill, and he is wanted by the authorities of so many towns in the State, that he decided to plead guilty to the charge and go to State Prison for a term to get out of trouble. Judge Schenck sentenced him to a term of three years in State Prison.

Old Bill wants to take the boy to jail with him. This request has been denied. The boy's case is puzzling the court, which will attempt to make some disposition of it before adjournment today.

CENSUS MEN NOT PAID YET.

Enumerators in North Part of State Finished Earlier.

None of the local census enumerators have yet received their pay. The delay has caused some comment, inasmuch as most of the census men in the northern part of the State were paid some time ago.

The delay is explained by the fact that the enumerators in Newark, Jersey City, and other cities in that part of the State began and finished their work fully a month before the men in the south part of the State.

The special industries census work is being pushed as rapidly as possible and it is thought will be finished by August 1st.

Played Progressive Euchre.

A progressive euchre party was given Thursday evening by Miss Josie Butscher, of West Fourth street, in honor of her guest, Charles Lussier, of New York. There were about forty young people present. The lady's prize was won by Mrs. Frank McInerny, and the gentleman's prize was secured by Mr. Lussier. At the conclusion of the playing the tables were cleared away and dancing and games were indulged in until a late hour. Before leaving for home refreshments were served which brought the evening's enjoyment to a close.

SITUATION IN CHINA

WARREN MISSION MEMBERS HEAR FROM Y. M. C. A. WORKERS.

W. D. Murray Read Letters From Henry Lyons and Robert Gailey, Besides Giving Explanatory Talk.

One of the most interesting missionary services held at Warren chapel was that of last evening, when W. D. Murray, of this city, who is one of the secretaries of the International Y. M. C. A., read two letters from Association workers in China, and gave an explanatory talk concerning the present situation there. These letters were written by Henry Lyons and Robert Gailey, who have for some time been engaged in Y. M. C. A. work in China. Mr. Lyons has lived in China for many years. His father was born there and he is able to talk the language fluently. He is perfectly acquainted with the situation, and his letter, as well as that of his coworker, Mr. Gailey, are of special value at this time, when there is printed so much that is not true.

A great many people attach the blame for the present uprising to the missionaries in China, which is not true. The people who are to blame are the unprincipled traders, who have for many years succeeded in duping the Chinese. They have, by their greed and avarice, brought about the uprising. The Chinamen who are engaged in driving foreigners out have an idea that their lands are going to be confiscated and that they themselves will have nothing left. Of course, their superstition does not help matters any, and every effort made toward progress or improvement they look upon as a scheme to drive them out of their own country. Whenever murders have been committed by the Chinese, the country to which the murdered people belong come forward and claim a portion of land as ransom for lives taken. In this way the Chinese have been losing much territory.

These facts were brought out in the letter read by Mr. Murray. He stated, however, that the work of the missionaries is now being retarded for a time only. He said that the missionary work would never be stopped permanently. The work is according to prophecy, and he believed that when this trouble is cleared up the door will be opened wider than ever for Christian workers. Another important fact brought out was that the traders who have caused the trouble do not want the missionaries in China, for they are the ones who teach Chinamen better things and help them to secure their rights in trading.

Mr. Murray stated that Mr. Lyons and Mr. Gailey had returned from Japan to Tientsin, where they had opened the Y. M. C. A. building for the care and treatment of the American soldiers.

SNEAK THIEVES IN CROWD.

Small Articles of Jewelry Reported to Have Been Stolen During the Band Concert.

Sneak thieves took advantage of the crowd attending the band concert last evening and plied their trade with some success. Early in the evening a bicycle belonging to a young man named Davis, of Westfield, was said to have been stolen from the curb near the fountain. He had left it there for a few minutes and returning the wheel was gone.

Some time during the evening a gold pin was stolen from a young lady, who did not miss it until the concert was nearly over. She declined to give her name. It is a mystery that more pins or watches are not stolen as any number of young women were observed openly displaying either or both of these articles in the midst of a large crowd. It would have been a simple matter for some thief to have appropriated these articles and got away in the crush.

Cut Off Water Supply.

Real Estate Agent Campbell, of the New Orange Industrial Association, finding that dispossess proceedings had no terrors for his Hebrew tenants, has adopted the plan of removing the cranks from the wells at each house where the tenants are in arrears for rent in the hope of bringing them to terms. As a consequence it is reported that seventeen families removed from that place yesterday.

To be Macadamized.

It now looks as though the upper part of Westervelt avenue will be macadamized as suggested by The Daily Press recently. The property-owners along that thoroughfare realize the importance of such an improvement and there is no doubt but what the necessary amount of money will be raised.

THROWN VIOLENTLY FROM TROLLEY CAR.

Charles Vail Seriously Injured and Now in Critical Condition at Dunellen.

RIGHT SIDE PARALYZED.

POSTMASTER AND GENERAL STOREKEEPER AT VALLEY STATION.

As Car Rounded Curve Near Lincoln He was Seen to Plunge From Rear Platform—Picked Up Unconscious.

As the result of a fall from a swiftly moving trolley car at Lincoln late last night Charles Vail, the postmaster and general store keeper at Valley Station, near Phillipsburg, is at the home of a friend in Dunellen with his entire right side paralyzed. Just how the accident occurred is unknown, as Vail was on the rear platform and the only other passenger, M. B. Smalley, and the conductor were inside the car. As the car swung around the curve at the eastern end of the Lincoln boulevard, the conductor glanced out just in time to see Vail falling off the step.

The car was stopped, and on going back he was found lying in the road. He was picked up and taken to Dunellen, where with assistance he was removed to Smalley's home. Dr. Brakeley was summoned and made an examination. The right side was entirely devoid of feeling, and he was unable to speak to any one, although being able to open his eyes.

At about 1 o'clock the injured man was seized with convulsions and it became necessary to strap his limbs to keep him from injuring himself and others. The convulsions left him at 6 o'clock, but he still lies in a comatose state.

Vail is very well known in this city, having lived for a long time on Plainfield avenue, where he conducted the South End dairy. His barn and other buildings were destroyed by fire a year ago and it was then that he went to Valley to engage in business. His parents and brothers still reside at the old place near South Plainfield. He has been visiting friends here and in Dunellen for the past few days, and he and Smalley were returning from Bound Brook when the accident happened. Smalley knew nothing of his falling until he saw the conductor pull the bell cord to stop the car.

Beside the main injury Vail has a number of bad cuts and bruises on his knee, back of the head and other places.

HADN'T PAID HIS BOARD.

Landlady Wanted to Attach His Trunk—Justice Mosher Acted as Peacemaker.

Judge Mosher acted as peace maker between an indignant landlady and an absconding boarder at the depot this morning, and adjusted matters to the satisfaction of both parties. The landlady who conducts an establishment on LaGrande avenue, came up to the station a few minutes before the boarder was about to take a train to New York. Justice Mosher happened to be in the vicinity and she asked him to issue an attachment on the man's trunks.

The judge thought matters could be settled without an attachment and induced the boarder to deposit four dollars and a bicycle until he could send the money. This he agreed to do and he was allowed to depart, the landlady leaving with her own and the boarders wheel. The amount due was thirteen dollars.

WANTED TO RULE.

Netherwood Wasn't Large Enough to Hold Mary Lockwood — Sentence Suspended This Morning.

Kate Lockwood came suddenly into prominence last night. Heretofore she has lived quietly as a domestic in a Netherwood household. The fumes of liquor rose to her brain and she became possessed with the idea that Netherwood was her own property and she could rule it as she saw fit. The other occupants of the house found their peace and quietude rudely disturbed and Kate Lockwood became so prominent that Patrolman Saffron was called in. He locked her up for the night.

She was arraigned before Mayor Rockfellow this morning and sentence was suspended on condition that she would leave the town without delay.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Washington, July 28—The Secretary of State has received a dispatch from Mr. Fowler, the American Consul at Chefoo, dated at midnight on the 26th, which says:

"This morning, by request of the allied Admirals, I wired the Governor (supposed to be the Governor at Shantung) their wish to get news from Ministers themselves. The Governor now replies:

"'Have received today edict from Emperor saying that the Ministers are well. They are sending provisions to the legations. Am confident Ministers out of distress, and request you (Fowler) transmit this preliminary announcement to Admirals.

"'Yuan, Governor.'"

A later dispatch from Mr. Fowler, dated at 1 a. m., 27th, to the State Department, is as follows:

"Another telegram from Governor:

"'Have just received imperial edict 24th saying various Ministers, excepting German, are well, and some days ago had supplied provisions to legations. Am satisfied Ministers out of distress. Yuan, Governor.'"

MRS TITSWORTH'S FUNERAL

Services Conducted by Rev. Dr. Main, of Newark—To be Interred Beside Her Twin Sister.

The funeral of Mrs. Fannie L. Titsworth, wife of George B. Titsworth, was held from her late home, 413 West Seventh street, this morning at 9:15 o'clock. The service was conducted by Rev. A. E. Main, pastor of the Seventh-Day Baptist church, where both husband and wife attended, and Dr. William A. Rice, pastor of the Belleville Congregational church, of Newark. Rev. Dr. Rice married the couple in Syracuse, N. Y.

Rev. Mr. Main spoke a few words of comfort to the sorrowing family while Rev. Dr. Rice's address was more of a personal nature, dwelling on her beautiful character as it had come under his own observation. A quartette composed of F. T. Clawson, Miss Nanco Randolph, Elmer E. Runyon and Sydney R. Titsworth, sang three appropriate selections, Mrs. W. C. Hubbard acting as accompanist.

A beautiful array of flowers, remembrances of many relative and friends, surrounded and half covered the casket. The bearers were Joseph M. Wilcox, of Larchmont; A. W. Farrin, of Brooklyn; J. M. Titsworth, A. L. Titsworth, D. E. Titsworth and Frank J. Hubbard, of this city.

The interment took place this afternoon at 2 o'clock in Hillside cemetery. Mrs. Titsworth was laid beside her sister. Rev. Mr. Main conducting a brief service at the grave.

BIG CROWD AT CONCERT.

Several Thousand People Listened to the Music on North Avenue Last Evening.

Fine music and a delightfully cool evening drew an immense crowd to listen to the third of the open air concerts given by LaVere's band on North avenue in front of the Hotel Kensington last night. During the evening there must have been fully 5,000 people in that neighborhood. The attendance was larger than at either of the two previous concerts.

North avenue was packed solidly from Park avenue almost to the station. A large crowd of strangers came by wheel and trolley to attend the concert. The programme was of the usual excellence. The cornet solo by Alfred Sweet, "The Holy City," was roundly applauded, and he gave "In the Green Hills of Virginia" as an encore. There was a decided improvement in the method of lighting the stand, electric lights being used instead of oil torches.

The movement in favor of open air concerts is steadily growing and The Daily Press has to announce the receipt of $5 from Councilman George P. Mellick for the aid of the fund. Mr. Mellick is one of Plainfield's public-spirited citizens who appreciates the advantages of these concerts and is willing to do more than his share in helping them to a successful outcome.

DISASTROUS RUNAWAY.

Reckless Riding of New Brunswick Cyclist Caused S. C. Baker's Horse Great Fright.

While S. C. Baker and son, Albert F. Baker, of 440 West Fifth street, were out driving on Park avenue last evening, they were run away with, thrown out of the carriage and their new bicycle-wheeled runabout wrecked. Men and horse escaped without serious injury.

They were driving near Avon Park when several wheelmen went scorching by. One of them made a sharp turn as he passed the horse in an endeavor to gain the lead. His wheel slipped and he fell directly under the horse's feet. The animal became frightened and promptly bolted, running over wheelman and his mount. The horse made a swerve to the side of the road, upset the runabout, throwing both men out. The bicycle was smashed and its owner, a man from New Brunswick, considerably cut and bruised.

W. W. Stratton, of East Fifth street, was passing at the time and took the younger Baker and went in pursuit of the runaway. The horse was captured at South Plainfield with the wreck of the runabout.

NO MARTIN ACT TAX SALE

ANOTHER ADJOURNMENT MADE BY CITY FOR A MONTH.

A Final Chance for Delinquents to Redeem Their Properties—Sale Will Take Place August 24th.

It was announced that there was to be no more delay and that the city's debtors would have to come to time yesterday afternoon or have their property sold under the provisions of the Martin Act. The sale was announced for yesterday afternoon at 2 o'clock in the office of Tax Collector Smith. At that hour there came an unexpected adjournment for four weeks until August 24th. At the last moment the members of the finance committee of the Common Council agreed to give the property owners a final chance to redeem their possessions. This is announced as positive the last appearance of an adjournment.

This attempt of the city through the provisions of the Martin Act to recover back taxes and assessments and the interest thereon, has been drawn out, but it promises to be finally successful in bringing to the city treasury nearly $65,000. When the Martin Act commissioners went over the city tax books and adjusted the old taxes they happened to find there, they showed a total of $65,000, which includes taxes, assessments and interest. January 15th last there were 240 parcels of property on the list to be sold to cover these old debts to the city.

There now remains but 32 parcels of property, with an indebtedness of $22,000, to be settled for. The remainder of the original $65,000 has been paid or will be paid within a brief interval.

A BEAUTIFUL CHARACTER.

Mrs. Catherine Goodman, Whose Death Occurred Yesterday, Was a Devoted Christian.

In the death of Mrs. Catherine Goodman, which occured yesterday morning at her home on Manning avenue, a most devoted Christian woman was removed from a large circle of friends and acquaintances. Mrs. Goodman was a great sufferer, but her patience was evidenced through it all. In the home she was the kindest of mothers, watching over her loved ones with the tenderest of care and solicitude. She has left her children a priceless legacy, a beautiful character.

Mrs. Goodman was born in Germany 75 years ago, and for 54 years she has lived in and near this vicinity. She was a devout member of Trinity Reformed church, where she attended as long as she was able to. She leaves three daughters and two sons. They are Mrs. Catherine Mobus, Miss Sophie Goodman, Miss Martha Goodman, George M. Goodman and John Goodman. The funeral services will be held tomorrow afternoon from the house at 3 o'clock.

Malicious Work.

Some viciously-inclined young men have been molesting the old property on West Front street owned by the Neal estate, of late, and unless they stop severe measures will be taken. They enter the house and are very destructive, tearing off paper from the walls and ruining the woodwork. They are known and will be watched closely.

Choir to Rest.

It is quite likely that after tomorrow's services at the First Baptist church the choir will disband for the month of August. This is the usual custom.

NEW TRIBE OF RED MEN FOR PLAINFIELD

The Younger Men Will Organize a Branch of the Improved Order of Red Men.

MUCH INTEREST SHOWN.

CHARTER LIST IS FAST GROWING AND WILL SOON NUMBER A HUNDRED.

Among the Leaders in the Movement are Frederick J. Huff, Francis J. Blatz and W. A. Westphal—Great Sachem Approves.

During late years the Improved Order of Red Men has grown to be one of the most powerful of any of the fraternal orders established in Plainfield. Although there are already two tribes in Plainfield a movement is now on foot looking toward the establishment of a third tribe. A few members of Miantonomo tribe will resign from that tribe and form a nucleus for the new organization.

The proposed tribe will be composed of the younger set of Plainfielders. At the head of the movement is Fred. J. Huff, clerk in the law offices of William Newcorn, Great Sachem of the order in New Jersey. Francis J. Blatz and William A. Westphal will resign from Miantonomo tribe and go into the new tribe. They are both circulating charter lists and have some thirty names. It is expected that there will be nearly a hundred young men on the list when the new tribe is formed.

Heretofore the young men have been divided between the two local tribes, Miantonomo and Paughcaughnaughsinque, principally in the latter. The chief object in forming the new tribe was to allow them to get together. Among the members of the new tribe will be many well-known names including most of the younger younger city officials. There is lots of talent in view for the tribe which promises many enjoyable evenings after the organization is in good working order.

The fact that the Great Sachem lives in this city is a great inducement in organizing the tribe. Great Sachem Newcorn has always been a strong advocate of the order and has won for it many members. He is interested, as head of the order, is seeing the successful fulfillment of the plans and will be glad to grant a charter to the tribe as soon as the charter list is complete.

The details of meeting nights and place of meeting have not yet been fixed. Like the other local tribes, the organization will probably hold its meets in Red Men's Hall. When the tribe is formed, two members will be selected and the initiatory team of Miantonomo tribe will probably be invited to perform with work of the order on them.

Held for Selling Mixed Drinks.

Simon Haines, a tavern keeper at Liberty Corner, was arrested Wednesday night and held in $500 bail for the September Federal Grand Jury for selling a quart bottle of cocktails, which he manufactured, to a wheelman who stopped at his place. The arrest was in accordance with the new ruling just received by the United States internal revenue collectors. It is specific, and makes it illegal for any liquor dealer to prepare a bottle of cocktails, or a bottle of any mixed drinks, without first obtaining a rectifier's license. The ruling, of course, does not affect the selling of single mixed drinks.

Veterans' Union.

Lieutenants John C. Smith and L. Higbee, comrades of veteran W. B. Frazee, visited Rahway to arrange for a reunion of their regiment, the Thirty-third New Jersey Infantry. It was decided to hold the event Monday, September 3, at the Hotel Wilson, Cherry street, Rahway. The veteran Judge was also the host for the afternoon of Comrades John W. Lutz and Lieutenant Ludlow, of the Thirty-fifth Regiment, New Jersey Volunteers, who desire to arrange for the reunion of their command on the same day at Cladek's Hotel, Grand street.

THEATRICAL.

In a few weeks the Proctor circuit of continuous theatres in New York will be increased by the opening of Proctor's 125th Street Theatre. This latest addition to the big Proctor circuit, when it opens as a continuous house Monday, August 20th, will be a worthy representative of the Proctor group, which now includes the Fifth Avenue, Twenty-third Street and the Palace, East Fifty-eighth Street, as well as the popular Proctor's, of Albany, once known as the Leland. With these five large and elegant playhouses devoted to the latest form of amusement, the continuous performance of refined vaudeville at the lowest popular prices, 25 and 50 cents, the Proctor circuit enjoys the greatest advantage in managing the highest class of talent. The bills for the summer are especially arranged, and at all times a hearty laugh is assured to every visitor. The stars for the week of July 30th at the Fifth Avenue are: Grace Huntington and company in "The Great Bracelet Burglary;" Max Unger, a phenomenon of strength; Musical Hesses; Hodgkins and Leith; LaToska and twenty more. TROOPS STILL NEEDED.

Rejoicing In Santiago Over Recent Military Orders.

SANTIAGO, Cuba, July 28.—Colonel Samuel M. Whitside, in military command of this department, has received a telegram announcing the division of the island into two departments and placing him in command of the department of the east. This news is welcomed by the representatives of business interests here, who had feared the consequences of the withdrawal of military government from these turbulent districts, where all the uprisings have originated.

When it was reported recently that such a withdrawal was contemplated by the United States authorities the leading bankers, merchants and traders, together with the foreign consuls, were interviewed on the subject, and almost all agreed in considering that a departmental headquarters here was essential to the continued prosperity of this section of the island. Wealthy Cubans, like the Spaniards generally, hold that this is no time for experiments. They admit that the force of United States troops may safely be reduced somewhat, but they are equally confident that a substantial force should remain with the department headquarters in the eastern portion of Cuba.

A firm of American contractors is advertising for 4,000 laborers to begin work on the Central railroad on Nov. 1.

American Armor For Russian Ships

BETHLEHEM, Pa., July 28.—The imperial Russian marine yesterday for the fourth time in very recent years placed a contract with the Bethlehem Steel company for armor plate. The main office of the company at this place has been advised by its foreign representative that he has closed a contract for 2,000 tons of kruppized armor to be delivered within 15 months. BRIDGE WORK

In Dentistry is the best substitute for nature's work that can be done. Sound roots may be built up and crowned and thus fill up an unsightly space. It has to be made of a material that has strength and durability and one that will not discolor. Gold is the one that stands the test. That is the secret of the expense. But the advantages of a bridge over a plate are many times more than the cost of one compared to that of the other.

HOPE AGAIN FAILING.

Administration Losing Faith In Chinese Reports.

WU STILL PREDICTS GOOD NEWS.

Yesterday's Cables So Badly Mangled as to Convey Little Valuable Information—Forward Movement on Peking Desired at Once.

WASHINGTON, July 28.—Unless some authentic assurance as to the condition of the Americans in Peking reaches the state department within a day or two the administration is likely to abandon whatever faith it has manifested thus far in the truthfulness of Chinese information. The Chinese minister is confident that within that time there will be news from Peking of a character to satisfy the most skeptical as to its accuracy, and he also is confident that this will be good news from the American point of view. The state department is still receptive, though looking with growing coldness upon the numerous edicts and telegrams which are coming from China all without bringing any news. The contributions of the day were from Consul General Goodnow at Shanghai and Consul Fowler at Chefu. So much of their messages as was given out for publication related to the welfare of certain American missionaries who have been made the subject of inquiry by relatives in this country. The cables mangled these messages, and there is reason to doubt the value of the information attempted to be conveyed through them.

Mr. Goodnow also had something to say about the political situation, and it is believed that that part of his message was not of an encouraging character. At any rate it was withheld from the press probably because the department did not regard it as wise to give the stamp of its approval to matters which Mr. Goodnow wishes to be taken in a purely speculative sense.

Ever since the receipt at Tien-tsin of the autograph message from Mr. Conger dated Peking, July 4, state department officials have had grave doubts as to the authenticity of the cipher message attributed to him, dated Peking, July 18. There have been many little side lights on this message that afford ground for suspicion, and now the British authorities have added their quota to the growing distrust of things Chinese. It seems that a Mr. Warren, at present acting as British consul at Shanghai, has been told by Sheng, the famous Chinese director of posts and telegraphs, that Yuan, the governor of Shangtung, told him (Sheng) that a message had passed through to the United States from Mr. Conger on the 18th of July telling of the conditions at the British legation. This cipher dispatch was "faked" by Chinese officials. It is pointed out at the state department however, that there are plausible explanations of this curious fact which tend to show the authenticity of the cipher dispatch. Secretary Hay cabled Mr. Conger that he might have implicit faith in the person who brought the dispatch to him. Mr. Conger, therefore, had a right to trust the man, and possibly he told him in a general way the contents of the dispatch in case the messenger should be obliged to destroy it to insure his own safety. However that may be, the British government has thought Mr. Warren's report worthy the attention of our own government.

The state department officials do not like the European criticisms more or less directly attributing to our government a lack of whole heartedness in the effort to get to Peking. They point to what the American troops and marines have already done, to the loss of life and limb suffered by them and to the repeated urgings of the American officials at every point looking to a forward movement on Peking. And in answer to the intimation that they are responsive to Chinese efforts to bribe us by the delivery of Mr. Conger at Tien-tsin and thus seduce us to abandon the Peking campaign the department lost no time yesterday morning in making known the fact that it had not and would not countenance any such proposition. The intimation was given that the purpose was to head off a formal proposition, as the department had been made aware by Mr. Goodnow and by Admiral Remey, it is presumed, that suggestions of this sort had been thrown out by the Chinese viceroys or their agents, though these had not been reduced to an official form. The department rather strengthened its position through being enabled in this way to reject the proposition by anticipation. It was pointed out that even should the other powers agree to any such proposition we would not consider it until Minister Conger's views were known. It is explained that to agree to such a plan might result in sending the ministers forward with an inadequate escort, and if murdered we would then be estopped from demanding redress.

Admiral Remey's dispatches have not in any way altered the plans of the government, and nothing at the cabinet meeting occurred which changes in any way our position. The meeting was rather in the nature of a review of the situation and an exchange of views.

It is the earnest desire of this government that the forward movement on Peking be made at the earliest possible moment. Although neither General Chaffee's rank nor the number of troops under his command would entitle this government to press him for command of the international forces, the government feels that he personally is fit for such an honor and if chosen would acquit himself with credit. If another commander is selected, it is the wish of the president that the American force should not be divided as to command, but that in carrying out its share of any movement all orders to the American force should go through him.

The Portuguese charge, Senhor Duarte, called on Secretary Hay to inform him that his government had sent as re-enforcements for the Portuguese troops in the Portuguese colony of Macao, in China, two regiments of troops. These troops, he explained, had been sent only as a precautionary measure to aid in the protection of Portuguese interests in her Chinese colony and were not designed in any way to co-operate with the forces of the allied powers. Portugal has no interests in north China.

Secretary Thiebaut, charge of the French embassy, also was at the state department and had a conference with Assistant Secretary of State Hill. It is understood that the French government does not place credence in the alleged dispatch from Minister Conger of July 18 and that it desires to co-operate with the United States in a forward movement toward Peking at the earliest possible moment. It is expected that when the French troops under orders reach China they will have a force of 12,000 men, which will be under the command of an experienced officer of the rank of a major general.

A DIMINISHING HOPE.

This Is the Feeling In London In Regard to Safety of Legations.

LONDON, July 28.—Mr. Lyman J. Gage's statement that there is still hope but it is constantly diminishing, is held here to define accurately the situation. The Chinese minister in London, Sir Chih Chen Lo Feng Luh, yesterday received a telegram from Sheng, director of railways and telegraphs, to the effect that an imperial decree in the following terms was issued on July 24:

"It is fortunate that all the foreign representatives except Baron von Ketteler are found in safety and unharmed. Provisions in the shape of foodstuffs, vegetables and fruits will be supplied to the legations in order to show our courtesy."

The Morning Post goes so far as to assert that there is now direct communication between the Chinese authorities in Peking and London and that the ministers are safe. However this may be, it is quite certain that the attempts of the French, Italian and other consuls to get direct replies from Peking have utterly failed, and it is pointed out that the ability to supply the legations with fruit and vegetables involves the conclusion that communication is not impeded by the Boxers.

The Central News has received a dispatch from Chefu, dated July 25, saying that a message from Sir Claude Macdonald, the British minister at Peking, reached Tien-tsin a few days ago. The message was dated July 6. It said that the legations at Peking were under constant fire and could not hold out, at the most, but 14 days longer.

A dispatch to The Daily Mail from Shanghai says that the letter from Sir Claude Macdonald has just been received there. It is dated Peking, July 6, and is as follows:

"We are receiving no assistance from the authorities.

"Three legations are still standing, including the British. We also hold part of the city walls.

"The Chinese are shelling us from the city with a 3 inch gun and some smaller ones and are sniping at us. We may be annihilated any day. Ammunition and food are short. We would have perished by this time, only the Chinese are cowards and have no organized plan of attack.

"If we are not pressed, we may hold out 'a fortnight longer, otherwise four days at the utmost.

"I anticipate only slight resistance to the relief force."

Macdonald concludes by advising the relieving column to approach by the eastern gate or by the river.

He says that the losses of the foreigners in Peking up to July 6 were 40 killed and 80 wounded.

Writing to the consuls under date of July 4 Sir Claude Macdonald said that the foreigners had been reduced to horseflesh, but could hold out ten days.

NO QUARTER FOR CHINESE.

Emperor William Gives Departing Troops Their Orders.

BERLIN, July 28.—The Lokalanzeiger says, the emperor, when addressing the troops at Bremerhaven before they sailed for China, referred first to the responsibilities which had sprung up for the German empire abroad during the last decade. Germany's troops, he said, must now show in the face of the enemy whether their tendencies, the tendencies which German military methods had followed, were right. Their comrades of the marine had already proved that the training and principles upon which that arm of the forces had been built up were right ones, and now it was for the troops to do the same.

"Every German has been filled with pride," continued his majesty, "to learn that the highest praise bestowed upon German warriors has come from the mouths of foreign leaders. The task before you is a great one. That a people like the Chinese should cast to the winds international rights a thousand years old and treat with scorn the sanctity of an embassador and the rights of hospitality in a manner so horrible is unprecedented in the history of the world. Every civilization not founded on Christianity is sure to be brought to naught.

"So I send you out. May you all prove your German efficiency, devotion and bravery, bear joyfully all discomfort and uphold the honor and glory of our arms. You must set an example of discipline, self domination and self control.

"If you close with the enemy, remember this. Spare nobody. Make no prisoners. Use your weapons so that for a thousand years hence no Chinaman will dare look askance at any German. Open the way for civilization once for all."

The address concluded as follows:

"The blessing of the Lord be with you. The prayers of the whole people will accompany you in all your ways. My best wishes for yourselves and for the success of your arms will ever follow you.

"Give proof of your courage no matter where. May the blessing of God rest on your banners, and may he vouchsafe to you to find a path for Christianity in that faroff country.

"For this you have pledged yourselves to me with your oath to the colors. I wish you godspeed. Adieu, my comrades."

Test Message Refused.

HONGKONG, July 28.—In order to test the Chinese assurances regarding the safety of the legations the Italian consul here requested the acting viceroy of Canton to communicate with the Italian minister, Marquis Salvago Raggi, and to obtain a reply from him concerning a matter known only to the minister and the consul. Yesterday the acting viceroy replied that it was impossible for him to accede to the request, as all messages were received from Peking through the governor of Shangtung secretly. For this reason he was compelled to refuse.

It is asserted here that a Chinese transport now coaling at Canton is going to Shanghai to bring Li Hung Chang back.

The United States auxiliary cruiser Buffalo and the British third class cruiser Mohawk have arrived here.

Safety Still Asserted.

BRUSSELS, July 28.—The Belgian vice consul at Tien-tsin in a dispatch dated Chefu, July 26, says: "It is persistently reported here (Tien-tsin) that the legations are safe and sound and under the protection of the Chinese government. About 10,000 Chinese soldiers are intrenched at Pec-tsang, 14 kilometers from Tien-tsin."

NEGRO SLAYER SLAIN

Exciting Man Hunt In Streets of New Orleans.

KILLED FIVE, FATALLY WOUNDED FOUR

Fierce Battle Between Police, Citizens and Murderer Charles With a Winchester—Finally Smoked Out and Shot to Pieces.

NEW ORLEANS, July 28.—After a desperate battle lasting for several hours, in which he succeeded in killing Sergeant Gabriel Porteous, Andy Van Kuren, keeper of the police jail, and Alfred J. Bloomfield, a young boy; fatally wounding Corporal John F. Lally, John Banville, ex-Policeman Frank H. Evans and A. S. Leclere, one of the leading confectioners of the city, and more or less seriously shooting several citizens, the negro desperado, Robert Charles, who killed Captain Day and Patrolman Lamb and badly wounded Officer Mora, was smoked out of his hiding place in the heart of the residence section of the city and literally shot to pieces.

The tragedy was one of the most remarkable in the history of the city, and 20,000 people, soldiers, policemen and citizens were gathered around the square in which Charles was finally put to death. Tremendous excitement reigned in New Orleans as the battle went on between the police and citizens and the negro with his Winchester.

After the tragedy was over and Charles was dragged from the mud and slush in which he had fallen, with the mob howling for the burning of his body, statements were made that the man killed was not really the desperado who had killed Day and Lamb, but papers found on his person and the fact that he fought so desperately for his life and shot so accurately seem to leave little doubt that the right man was put to death.

Sergeant Gabe Porteous, one of the best known officers on the force, and Sergeant John F. Lally, who has a fine record for bravery, were informed during the day by a negro that Charles was in hiding in a house on Clio street, near Saratoga street. Determining to take him alive if possible, the officers summoned a number of patrolmen to their assistance and went to the house where Charles was supposed to be in concealment. The negro informant of the policemen accompanied the officers. They entered the side alley of the house and were surprised in practically the same way as were Day and Lamb.

Before the officers were aware of their danger Charles, who was hidden behind a screen on the second floor of the building, raised his Winchester and began a furious but accurate fire. Lally fell with a bullet in the right side of the abdomen. Porteous was shot through the head and dropped dead across the body of Lally. The other officers and the negro fled from the scene.

The reports of Charles' Winchester and the fact that two officers lay bleeding in the yard raised tremendous excitement. Hurry calls were sent to the mayor, the chief of police and Colonel Wood, in command of the special police, and as fast as possible armed help was rushed to the scene. In a little while there was an immense armed crowd encircling the square in which Charles was located.

In the meantime Father Fitzgerald of St. John's church was summoned to administer extreme unction to the police officers who were lying in the alley. The priest responded promptly, and he was anointing the body of Porteous, with Alfred J. Bloomfield, a young boy, standing by his side, when Charles again appeared at the window. The lad saw him at once and begged the desperado not to shoot him. Charles immediately fired his Winchester again, and Bloomfield fell dead. The priest, unhurt, left the scene after pluckily performing the last offices for the dead officer.

At this time the ambulance arrived, and two citizens volunteered to go into the alleyway and bring out the body of Lally. They entered, and while they were attempting to take the body of the dead officer from that of his colleague Charles fired again. The citizens, nevertheless, got Lally's body out of the alley and afterward succeeded in taking Porteous' body out also.

By this time an immense throng had gathered in the vicinity, and schemes were set on foot to get Charles out of the building. Charles, however, did not propose to be captured without selling his life dearly. Time after time he came to the window and as citizens, one by one, entered the alley he blazed away at them. In this manner Confectioner Leclere, who was one of the special police squad; ex-Policeman Evans, John Banville and George H. Lyons, son of the head of one of the biggest drug establishments in the south, were wounded.

At this time the extra police began to fire indiscriminately at the negro. Who shot him will probably never be known. Andy Van Kurem, keeper of the police jail, got a bullet in the body and fell dead. Just afterward H. H. Ball, an old man, aged 65, working for the Mutual Benevolent association, doing business in the vicinity, was hit and mortally wounded.

About the same time with Charles firing his Winchester indiscriminately, Frank Bertucci received a shot in the left shoulder, and J. W. Bofit got a bullet in the right hand. Ultimately it was concluded by those who were handling the situation that the only way to get Charles was to burn the building in which he was intrenched. Some one went to a neighboring grocery, purchased a can of oil and, pouring it over the rear steps of the building, applied a match and soon had the building in flames.

A young soldier named Adolph Anderson, a member of the Thirteenth regiment of the state militia, was one of the first to see Charles as he ran down the steps leading to the second story. Charles ran across the yard and entered the second room. He fired several times at Anderson. The latter, who was armed with a Winchester rifle, shot the negro in the breast, and he fell and died soon afterward.

As soon as the negro fell numbers of people armed with Winchesters and revolvers rushed in and fired into the body.

Last night the race troubles here took a new turn, when mobs set fire to the Thomy Lafon school, the finest negro school edifice in the city.

Thirty negro residences in the vicinity of St. Denis and Sixth streets were also set on fire. At 12:30 this morning the fires were burning fiercely.

With incendiarism to combat the authorities are now confronted with probably the most serious phase yet encountered.

Among the array of talent with this excellent amusement establishment, we note the great equilibristic wonders, the three Sun Brothers, known all over creation as originators and exemplifiers of the most intricate and dexterous acts of arenic sports, creme de la creme of juggling, balancing, wonderworkers; in addition to this famous trio, we also find Miss Ella Alfonda, the intrepid equestrienne; Dan White, the principal somersault rider; Master Artie Gilman, the young jockey pony rider; Prof. Ed. Kaing, trick ponies, six in number; M'lle Fernandez and her school of educated dogs, cockatos and carrier pigeons, the great leaping dogs, Rox ond Betts. This is surely the biggest 25 cent show on the road, and at that price everybody can attend. The parade takes place in the forenoon. Doors open at 1 and 7 p. m. Performance commences one hour later.

Troubles Of a Minister.

To benefit others Rev. J. T. W. Vernon, of Hartwell, Ga., writes: "For a long time I had a running sore on my leg. I tried many remedies without benefit, until I used a bottle of Electric Bitters and a box of Bucklen's Arnica Salve, which cured me sound and well." Sores, Eruption, Boils, Eczema, Tetter, Salt Rheum show impure blood. Thousands have found in Electric Bitters a grand blood purifier that absolutely cures these troubles. Satisfaction is guaranteed or money refunded by L. W. Randolph. Large bottles only 50c.

TRADE CONDITIONS.

Iron Outlook Better—Wheat Takes Another Decline.

NEW YORK, July 28.—R. G. Dun & Co.'s weekly review of trade says:

Speculative activity in raw materials is not present to discourage new business. Producers and consumers are getting together in more than one direction, although midsummer inactivity is emphasized by disturbed foreign relations and hesitation always attending a national political campaign. False starts are to be feared, but the dangerous optimism of last autumn is lacking and new business is at lower prices.

In iron, the depression in which has resulted in hesitation and fear in other industries, the tone is better, and in the Pittsburg district the mills have booked a line of fair orders in bars and plates. Structural and bridge materials are better taken.

Jobbers in boots and shoes are demanding prompt delivery on old orders, but new business is scarce. Further delay in fall and winter orders will entail reduction of forces at factories. Shipments from Boston in four weeks were only 302,558 cases against 394,379 last year, and it is necessary to go back to 1894 to find as small a total for the corresponding period.

It was not surprising that wheat declined still further this week, for the price had been held far above the quotation ruling at this date in 1899, and crop conditions are so generally satisfactory as to assure an abundance for all home requirements and the usual amount for exports. High prices have curtailed foreign buying to some extent, and in four weeks Atlantic exports of wheat, including flour, have been only 7,266,436 bushels against 8,430,431 last year. The shipments of corn make a more satisfactory comparison, in four weeks amounting to 12,720,435 bushels against 11,881,479 a year ago. But the price has declined about a cent this week, making a loss of 6 cents in less than two weeks.

Home money markets are in easy position, and northwestern banks have ample supplies of cash with which to begin the crop movement, but the south will draw upon its balances in New York.

Foreign commerce at this port alone indicates another heavy balance in favor of the United States for July. In spite of restricted shipments of cotton and wheat, and some timidity regarding goods ordered for Chinese ports, exports for three weeks exceed last year's by 45.6 per cent., while the gain in imports was only 2.1 per cent.

Failures for the week were 231 in the United States against 151 last year, and 28 in Canada against 20 last year.

To Build a Steel Signal Tower.

PHILADELPHIA, July 28.—A contract has been awarded for the erection of a steel signal tower 75 feet high on the roof of the Bourse building at Fourth and Chestnut streets in connection with the United States weather bureau. The tower will duplicate the signals displayed at the Delaware breakwater, and seamen about to sail from this port will be able to see at a glance the weather conditions outside the Delaware capes. During the day flags will be used and at night red and white electric lamps of 200 candle power each. Both flags and lights will be discernible through a glass at a distance of ten miles. The tower will be completed by Aug. 6, and the signal system will be immediately inaugurated.

A Medal For General Alexander.

MANAGUA, Nicaragua, July 28.—President Zelaya has presented to General E. P. Alexander of Savannah, arbitrator in the boundary dispute between Nicaragua and Costa Rica, a gold medal in recognition of his services in connection with the arbitration. The presentation was accompanied by an expression of the hearty thanks of the government of Nicaragua. Mr. Hackett, representing the Eyre-Cragin canal syndicate, is expected here today.

Supplies For German Army.

PHILADELPHIA, July 28.—The steamship Bosnia of the Hamburg-American line, lately impressed by the German government to carry supplies to China for the kaiser's troops, left port yesterday for San Francisco. She has in her hold over 8,000 tons of coal, a record breaking cargo in itself, and when she reaches the Pacific coast, it is said, she will ship at least 1,500 horses for the use of the German cavalry in China.

General Wood at West Point.

WEST POINT, N. Y., July 28.—A salute was fired in honor of the presence here of General Leonard Wood, governor general of Cuba, who stopped off here on his way to Washington to confer with the department. While here General Wood was entertained by Colonel Hein, acting superintendent.

PURSUING THE BOERS

Enemy Retreat In Disorder Before French and Hutton.

MRS. STEYN IN BRITISH HANDS.

Prisoners Also Retaken From De Wet—Brother of the Boer Leader Surrenders—Communication to Natal Opened by Buller.

LONDON, July 28.—The war office has received the following dispatch from Lord Roberts:

"French and Hutton continued their pursuit on July 25. The former crossed Olifants river and from the high ground on the east bank he could see Middleburg and the enemy retiring in great disorder. The main road north was blocked for several miles with horsemen and wagons. The enemy's rear was then seven miles north. The mounted force were still west of the river. Night was closing in, the rain was falling in torrents, and so it was impossible to follow. The night was terrible. In addition to the rain a strong east wind made the bivouac most uncomfortable. One officer, I regret to say, died of exposure, and the mortality among the mules and oxen was great. The men made light of hardships and were in famous spirits when I saw them yesterday.

"Hunter has occupied Fourierburg and, so far as I know, did not suffer loss. He found Mrs. Steyn, wife of the ex-president, and several of our men whom De Wet had captured at different times and whom he was unable to send to Machadodorp.

"The enemy in the Bethlehem hills are now closed in upon. Basutoland is closed to them. Harrismith is the only line open, and it will not be easy for them to reach there with guns and wagons.

"Broadwood is still watching Christian De Wet, who has taken up a position on high hills near Reitzburg, about seven miles south of the Vaal.

"P. De Wet, a younger brother of Christian, surrendered at Kroonstadt yesterday.

"Barron reports from Krugersdorp that he has reconnoitered the railway to Bank station, where the train was wrecked on July 19, and been enabled to replenish his supplies.

"Methuen's column, which reached the Krugersdorp-Potchefstroom railway, is now moving on Potchefstroom.

"Buller reports that the railway was opened to Heidelberg yesterday, giving us through communication to Natal."

The Powers Trial.

GEORGETOWN, Ky., July 28.—Sergeant F. Wharton Golden, the prosecution's star witness, was placed in the witness box yesterday in the trial of Caleb Powers, charged with complicity in the assassination of Governor Goebel. Unless present plans are changed the state will rest its case today at the conclusion of Golden's testimony. His statements yesterday did not vary materially from those made by him at the examining trial of Powers in Frankfort. W. Hampton, a Republican member of the legislature from Powers' home county, preceded Golden on the stand. He swore that Governor Taylor wanted the Republican members to start a fight in the house and assured him that he, as governor, would back them up.

Another Brass Thief Arrested.

WILKESBARRE, Pa., July 28.—Another chapter was added to the gigantic brass thefts from the railroads yesterday by the arrest of John Fisher, the largest junk dealer in the city. The prosecutor was the Lehigh Valley railroad, and the defendant was charged with larceny and receiving stolen goods. Fisher was given a hearing and held under $2,000 bail for trial. Two of Fisher's employees, Lewis Michalowski and Abram Troy, were also arrested and held in bail. It is alleged that the two employees know a great deal about the brass that was brought to Fisher's place, they being employed as weighmen. The railroads now have 16 cases against Fisher.

American Bar Honored.

LONDON, July 28.—Beneath the gabled roof of Middle Temple hall, with Van Dyck's noble portrait of Charles I hanging over them and surrounded by coats of mail of ancient Knights Templars, faced and relieved with coats of arms, some 50 leaders of the American bench and bar were last evening entertained by the judges and lawyers of England. United States Embassador Choate said after the banquet that it was the "greatest compliment ever paid to the American bar." All the legal luminaries of England were present except Baron Russell of Killowen, the lord chief justice, who was too ill to attend.

Another Milk Strike.

BINGHAMTON, N. Y., July 28.—The recent milk strike failed, but from present indications a second strike much more general in character than the first will be inaugurated Sept. 1. At the last meeting of the Five States Milk Producers' association held in this city resolutions were adopted the sense of which was that unless the sales and advisory committees either effect a sale of the association milk before Sept. 1 or fix a uniform price at which milk shall be sold to the present dealers and the price accepted by the dealers, the milk should be withheld from the market until such demands are acceded to.

The Burned Steamer Main Floated.

NEW YORK, July 28.—The North German Lloyd steamer Main, which has been on the mud flats off Weehawken since the recent fire, was raised yesterday by means of pontoons by the Merritt-Chapman Wrecking company. The vessel is now anchored near where she was beached and will be pumped dry and her cargo of grain discharged. It is not yet known when or where she will repair. The other burned liner, the Bremen, beached at the same place, is being prepared to be raised with pontoons, and it is thought that by the end of next week she too will be afloat.

Noted Oculist Dead.

BEDFORD, Pa., July 28.—Isaac Heilprin, a Washington oculist who had presented glasses to every president since Andrew Jackson, died suddenly at the Chalybeate Springs hotel. Mr. Heilprin had been an annual visitor to this summer resort for the past 32 years.

Secretary Hay Returns.

WASHINGTON, July 28.—Secretary Hay, having returned to the city, Dr. David J. Hill, the first assistant secretary of state, has gone on a much needed vacation to his summer home, Surf Side, Mass., accompanied by his family.

Depends on the Governor.

As stated in The Daily Press yesterday, the State law providing for the establishment of a district court in cities having over 17,000 population—which class Plainfield is expected to be in after the census returns are announced—does not leave the establishment of the court to the discretion of the people of the city affected by the statute. Notwithstanding this fact, it appears that there is a way out of complying with the law which some regard as imperative. The scheme lies with the Governor.

The appointment of a District Court Judge is made by the Governor. Now if the Governor should see fit not to make the appointment, then the district court act would be as a dead letter applied to Plainfield. Of course, it is probable that the Governor would be guided in his action in this matter just as he thought the sentiment of the people prevailed. If he thought that the people of the city were desirous of establishing the district court he would undoubtedly acquiese in their desire and exercise his power of appointment; but if he thinks the interests of the city do not require it, and the people are opposed to spending the money necessary to the maintenance of the court, he would not make an appointment, and thus the new law could not be applied to the city.

Taking this view of the situation, the New Jersey editor of the New York Tribune says in today's paper:

Plainfield is figuring upon the probability that under the recent census it may be entitled to a district court. The minimum of population necessary to such a court is seventeen thousand, and the estimates of several cautious citizens of Plainfield is that the census returns will show a population of not far from twenty thousand. The fact that New Brunswick is entitled to a district court under a recent act of the Legislature recalls the additional fact that Governor Voorhees decided not to make the appointment for that city this year, for the reason, as was understood at the time, that the people there were not eager for the establishment of such a court. Appearances indicate that Plainfield may not be any more unanimously in favor of a district court than New Brunswick was said to be some months ago.

If the district court act is not taken advantage of by Plainfield it will not be because it is not recognized as tending to put the petty judicial business of the community upon a sounder and more dignified plane, but because the expense of establishing and maintaining the court—$3,000 per year—is inexpedient at the present time from a tax-rate standpoint. The benefits to be derived from a district court in the way of putting an end to a major portion of the justices' courts transactions is anticipated as being something highly desirable; but, having got along with the system so far, many believe that we can stand it awhile longer rather than pay the bills for a new and better arrangement.

The Supreme Court of Rhode Island has just decided that flowers are a necessary feature of a funeral. The case under consideration was an action brought by a florist against the administrators of the estate of a deceased citizen, who had refused to pay the plaintiff for flowers furnished on the credit of the estate. The Court justified the expenditure, remarking that the custom of having flowers at funerals is well-nigh universal in this country, and that when not abused by extravagance or unseemly ostentation it is certainly to be commended as giving appropriate expression to our feelings of respect and love for the departed.

Replying to the Somerville Messenger statement that "there is considerable opposition to the scheme of having a sub-postoffice in North Plainfield borough," the North Plainfield Review says: "We wish to add that the opposition comes chiefly from outsiders. North Plainfield is anxious for a sub-station. Opinion is somewhat divided as to the advisability of establishing a regular office here at present, but as that question is not before the people there is no use discussing it."

Next Wednesday is Emancipation Day, a day for much rejoicing and celebration on the part of the colored people. It is a remarkable fact, however, that notwithstanding that Plainfield has a very large proportion of colored people in its population, and that this class of people are much given to festivity and celebration in many ways, there has not been an effort to have an enthusiastic observance of the day in Plainfield in several years.

The next elections before November will be as follows: August 2d, North Carolina; August 6th, Alabama; September 3d, Arkansas; September 4th, Vermont; September 10th, Maine; October 3d, Georgia. The Southern States and Maine and Vermont are too one-sided in politics to allow of any change from what they have been in years past.

The Somerset County Democrat, which supported Palmer and Buckner in 1896, announced its position for the campaign of 1900 in yesterday's issue. Not being satisfied with the Kansas City nominees and platform, The Democrat says that it will maintain an independent stand during the present campaign.

Congressman Salmon, who is one of the two Democratic members in the House of Representatives from New Jersey, will probably be renominated by the Democrats of the Fourth district. Congressman Salmon has made a creditable record in Congress.

WHAT THE SHEARS FIND.

Editorial Comment From Other Papers of Interest in Plainfield.

"Would it not be a good thing for Plainfield to put up street signs?" asks the Westfield Leader. "It is as easy to get lost there as in a wilderness. Westfield can give Plainfield some points on street signs." It is a fact that it is almost next to impossible for a stranger to find many streets in Plainfield. We have walked or ridden for blocks without meeting any one capable of directing us to certain streets and finally be compelled to disturb some private citizen by ringing his door bell in order to learn the location of some street. You can travel block after block without seeing a street sign in Plainfield. If the editor of the Leader wants some more comparisons let him come over to the borough and see how our streets are provided with street signs at each street corner.—North Plainfield Review.

The Plainfield Press, speaking of the Journal's frequent comments on Mr. Martine, says: "The Journal is undoubtedly sincere in its regard and estimation of Mr. Martine's political make-up, but whenever he has been a candidate for office the Journal was never willing to be as frank in its admiration of him as it is under the present circumstances." The Press is mistaken. The Journal has ever acknowledged Mr. Martine's high personal character and ability, even in the heat of political campaigns, but it cannot support Mr. Martine's candidacy, because the Journal is Republican and Mr. Martine is a Democrat. The latter fact is what astonishes the Journal. Mr. Martine is a man of such parts, a statesman of such ability and a gentleman so companionable, that he is good enough to be among the best of Republicans. Why he is a Democrat—and a free silver Democrat at that—is incomprehensible.—Elizabeth Journal.

We use a package of Grain-O every week. I am ten years old.

Things that Are Not Exactly News but Just as Interesting.

Many local horsemen are compelled to forego driving in the woods and mountains on account of the prevalence of horse flies. Theee insects attack the steeds with avidity until the animals, irritated beyond endurance, run away or do something else troublesome. Some horses become unmanageable at the first attack of the flies and so their owners dare not take them into the parts of the country frequented by the flies. Only the other day a young man of this city, well known on account of his fondness for horses, attempted to drive to Martinville by the way of Bound Brook and Chimney Rock Notch. After leaving the Notch the horse flies put in an appearance in swarms. They settled on the horse and soon the poor animal was nearly wild. It was with difficulty that the young man succeeded in taking the horse by the head and turning it around. Then he started homeward, the flies following nearly to Chimney Rock. The horse bled in a number of places from the stings of the insects.

The recent accident at New Rochelle, in which several persons were fatally injured by the explosion of a naptha launch, has given the proper opportunity to 'Sam" Moore, the foundryman of Elizabethport, to relate an experience he recently passed through with a naptha launch. The results were not as fatal, but Mr. Moore is not wildly enthusiastic on the subject of naptha launches at present.

Mr. Moore was invited to Keyport by a friend who had just purchased a new little yacht, the motive power for which was furnished by a naptha engine. The friend was very enthusiastic over his new purchase and when Mr. Moore reached Keyport insisted that that they should immediately view the craft. The yacht was tied up to a dock and the owner promptly jumped aboard and called to his friend to do likewise. Mr. Moore boarded the launch as his host was preparing to start the engine and give his friend a view of the practical working of it.

"It's perfectly safe," declared the owner as he busied himself with the preparations to start, "You can't possibly blow it up."

Now it happened that the pipe through which the naptha flowed was not perfect. A tiny leak allowed the volatile liquid to escape As the owner was talking there came a flash and bang. With one accord Mr. Moore and his host jumped. Mr. Moore landed on the dock while his host plunged headfiret into the water. A moment later the head of the yacht-owner appeared above the surface of the water. Blowing out a mouthful of water he called to his guest, "What are you running for? She is perfectly safe. You can't blow her up."

"What are you doing in the water?" demanded Mr. Moore. But the enthusiastic launch owner still doesn't see where the joke came in.

Dog Likes Medicine.

John Powers, the Somerset street druggist, has secured a valuable high bred terrier, and he hopes to be able to keep him. He has some doubts, however, as the pup has already developed and appetite for patent medicines, pills, shoes, clothing, etc., and it would not surprise the owner to hear of his death. While a customer was at the store yesterday the dog made away with a shoe lace, taking it out of the shoe and swallowing it before the owner could recover it.

THINGS THAT INTEREST SCOTCH PLAINS AND DUNELLEN.

Brief and Terse Observations Gathered by Alert Press Reporters to be Perused at the Supper Table at Your Leisure

DUNELLEN.

(Special Correspondence to The Press.)

Dunellen, July 28.—The proprietor of the merry-go-round, which has been located at Central Park for the past few weeks, seems to be having troubles of his own. On the Fourth of July, on which he had made preparations for a big day's business, a storm came up and ripped off the top canvas besides damaging the steam organ. Since then the carousal has been running more or less irregularly. Yesterday an agent of the Land Improvement Company was in town and stated that he would give the proprietor forty-eight hours to move, and unless the request was complied with forcible steps would be taken. As business has not been exactly of the best it is thought that the man will avoid trouble by moving the machine.

Garretson & Gray's crusher was shut down Thursday, as it was impossible for the teams to get through the heavy roads, caused by the rain. Work was resumed yesterday.

A pet cat belonging to John Cruleer sampled the contents of a saucer containing poisoned fly paper yesterday and as a result pussy's nine lives perished at once.

Christian Schephlin has given the use of his bowling greens to the young men of Dunellen this afternoon and about twenty have availed themselves of his kind offer.

Nearly a trolley load of borough citizens attended the band concert at Plainfield last evening, all of whom enjoyed the excellent programme.

The first of a series of band concerts is being given at Dewey Park this afternoon, and a number from the borough are in attendance.

Miss Josie Butscher and John Butscher, of Plainfield, and Charles Lussier, of New York, were visitors at the Park Hotel yesterday.

It is rumored in town that a gentleman's furnishing store will be opened by a borough man in the near future in the Todd building.

Frank Seaman, of Waterbury, Conn., who is visiting his parents on Rock avenue, called on friends in the borough Thursday.

Miss Kate Randolph, of Plainfield, is spending a week with Miss Hannah Randolph, of Greenbrook.

NEW MARKET.

(Special Correspondence to The Press.)

New Market, July 28.—Considerable excitement was occasioned yesterday by a foot-race between Aaron Brower, of New Market, and William Wilson, of Plainfield. The course was from the railroad to the foot of the hill on Main street. The New Market man won by several yards apparently without any effort.

The banks of the pond have been lined with fisherman the past few days and excellent catches of bass are made daily. A Plainfield man yesterday captured eighteen good-sized ones, some of them weighing over three pounds.

This place seems to be getting quite popular as a camping place. A second lot of Plainfield boys are now established in Vail's grove where they will remain for two weeks.

Miss Mabel Stutts, who was taken sick while at work a few days ago, is still confined at the home of her brother-in-law, John Stein, at Plainfield.

William Crosby, of Phillipsburg, spent Thursday with friends in town.

The Lehigh Valley will run an excursion to Mauch Chunk tomorrow.

David Tabb and family spent yesterday at Manhattan Beach.

'PLAINS AND FANWOOD.

(Special Correspondence to The Press.)

Scotch Plains, July 28—A broken electric light wire on the Forest avenue circuit in Fanwood yesterday came near bringing sorrow to several of the homes in the borough by the perhaps fatal shock of the deadly current to a number of children playing nearby. Fortunately the break was discovered by the playful sport of a pet fox terrier owned by the little daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. M. Palmer, who had gathered to play with a number of the other children of the neighborhood at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Leroy J. Ellis. While the children were in the midst of their games the animal, who had accompanied his little mistress, began making a tour of inspection along the roadway. Nearby a broken wire hanging from the pole overhead lay sizzling in the grass. The dog in playful sport grabbed the wire in his mouth and received the full shock of the deadly current. His whines and struggles to free himself from the deadly embrace attracted the attention of the little ones from their play and they gathered about the poor beast, not knowing what was the matter with him. Fortunately they were all scared by his struggles and kept at a safe distance. Some of the older ones in the neighborhood were called and saw what the trouble was and what a narrow escape the children had had. Word was immediately telephoned to Plainfield and a lineman was sent to repair the break before any further damage could be done. The struggles of the poor dog were soon over, as he paid for his discovery with his life, but in doing so probably saved the lives of some of the little ones.

Rev. G. M. Shott will be in his pulpit tomorrow after an absence of two Sundays. In the morning his subject will be "God's Word as Rain." For the evening service Mr. Shott is contemplating beginning a series of interesting sermons upon some of the light but instructive stories of the Bible.

A pleasant trip enjoyed by a number of the residents of the village each Sunday afternoon is a trolley ride as far as the Union Fresh Air Camp in Westfield. Devotional exercises are held at 4 o'clock, and the meetings are thoroughly enjoyed by those who attend.

Twilight Council, Jr. O. U. A. M., held a regular meeting in their rooms last evening. During the good of the order the council were entertained by a number of selections upon the phonograph.

Warden Chas. Dodd, of Elizabeth, was the guest Friday of his daughter, Mrs. Ernest Hand, of Mountain avenue.

Rev. Mr. Woodruff will lead the weekly prayer meeting to be held this evening in the Methodist church.

Miss Anna Parse, of Sprinfield, is spending several days at the home of her uncle, Stites M. Parse.

Miss Susie L. Parse was the guest of Plainfield friends yesterday.

WESTFIELD

(Special Correspondence to The Press.)

Westfield, July 28—The Westfield and Elizabeth Street Railway has repaired the damage done to the South avenue bridge some time ago by one of its cars, and keeps a red light on the bridge at night to warn the motormen to go slow.

There are some horse blankets at the Westfield lock-up that any one can have by describing them. One of Westfield's chronic suspicious characters was found in possession of them by a policeman, and the policeman promptly took them away.

Miss Nettie White, of New York, has been engaged by the Roselle Board of Education to fill the place of Miss Garretson, who has resigned.

Notes of the Newest Ideas For Hats and Bonnets.

It is now considered in the best taste to have the hat match the gown. Draped toques are much worn, and there are beautifully fine, soft straws which are as flexible and drape as well as cloth. Big, round bunches of flowers are placed at the side—parma violets, forgetmenots or buttercups. They are surrounded with leaves, like the florists' bunches, and the stems stand upright, forming an aigret.

Many enormous choux are seen made of tulle or of the clipped fibers of ostrich plumes. They are in all colors, but lavender and red predominate. Roses also are employed in profusion. Grapes and cherries are so much liked that they are no longer used for more elegant hats, while bunches of wheat are universal.

The illustration given today represents a dinner gown of mauve crepe de chine. The skirt is gathered all around the waist and is made over a plainly fitted lower skirt of mauve taffeta. The bodice, also gathered, has a collar and yoke of guipure over mauve silk, while around the shoulders is a drapery of mauve mousseline de soie bordered with guipure and fastened at the shoulders by jeweled buckles. A jabot of guipure passes down the front, and the transparent sleeves are of guipure. The wide belt is of moss green panne, and a knot of the green panne fastens the front of the fichu drapery.

THE SEASON'S STYLES.

Transparent Summer Costumes and Tailor Made Fashions.

Thin, diaphanous gowns are the feature of the season. Some of the most elegant costumes are of lace, but gauze, grenadine, crepe de chine and similar fabrics are immensely used, and, for wash goods, plain and dotted muslins, sheer nainsooks and all sorts of openwork materials.

Scarf draperies for the bodice are arranged in various ways, one method being to carry the scarf around the shoulders as a border to the yoke or guimpe. The scarf is gathered together and fastened at the middle of the back, and the ends are tied in front, being caught at the belt again at the side and dropping over the skirt.

Tailor made gowns retain their vogue in spite of the rage for thin, fluffy costumes. The tailor made gown is, as a matter of fact, indispensable for general use—shopping, walking, etc. The majority of skirts for these purposes are short, but are rendered elegant by inside frills of silk, and are worn over a silk petticoat.

The picture represents a tennis costume of white serge. The skirt is mounted in a watteau plait at the back, and around the foot is cut in scallops, which fall over a facing of serge. A pearl button ornaments each scallop. The bodice has an open collar, and that, with the revers, is scalloped to match the skirt and trimmed with buttons. The sleeves have scalloped caps. The belt is of white kid.

Semi-Newsy Items of Interest Gathered by Foreign Correspondents

England's Position in the West Indies. English writers are pressing the claims of Britain's West Indian colonies for assistance with vigor. When Jamaica petitioned the United States for annexation the fact awakened but small interest in the United Kingdom, as the people had forgotten the past glory of England's West Indian possessions. But a little sober afterthought has set the thinkers and writers of the country going, and they are now strongly advocating government aid to these struggling dependencies in the western Atlantic.

This is not because they love these dependencies more, but because they see English interests at stake, and a blow to England's supremacy of the seas should she lose these colonies which at the present time stand for but little, but which have in the past and may in the future be of inestimable value to the mother country. One writer, in describing these little colonies, says of them:

"The British West Indies, as at present arranged politically, comprise six distinct colonial governments—namely, Trinidad (with Tobago), Barbadoes, Windward islands (Granada, St. Vincent and St. Lucia), Leeward islands (Antigua, Dominica, Montserrat, St. Kitts, Nevis, Anguilla and the Virgin islands), Jamaica (with the Turks and the Caymans islands), and the Bahamas. In the days when steamships were a curiosity and the submarine cable a dream of scientists, when the West Indian sugar plantations discounted the wealth of Potosi's silver mines, each little island maintained its own political establishment. Those were the days of great prosperity, coincident with and following the stormy period of rapidly succeeding wars, during which our sea heroes were building the fabric of empire and inscribing the names of the West Indian islands in characters sufficiently lurid to be lasting on the pages of history. An indication of their wealth is found in the interesting fact that Jamaica alone, in the course of a few weeks, raised a popular contribution to the expenses of the last French war of £1,000,000. Yet while the Jamaica of Sir Henry Morgan is a familiar figure in British history, and a proud one withal, the Jamaica of Sir Henry Blake and her neighbors had to be rediscovered to this generation, and be accepted with contemptuous tolerance as mere over-seas burdens."

But England is awakening to the fact that these "over-seas burdens" may be advantageous places to hold and cater to if England is to maintain her sea prestige, and now they propose helping them first by extending again the sugar bounty.

To lose the domination of the seas means a loss of livelihood to England and the loss of her West Indian colonies might be a serious matter in the course of time when the Caribbean sea becomes the waterway to the Pacific by reason of the completion of an isthmian canal. The same writer, continuing, says:

"As a naval power, Great Britain practically dominates the Pacific now, not alone because of her well-distributed naval and coaling stations there, but also because, in the event of war, she holds the key of its near-by western gateway—the Suez canal. To maintain this position after the opening of an eastern gateway at Panama or thereabouts it will be necessary for her to hold the key of that also; and how can this be accomplished without immediately precipitating a collision with her jealous rivals, possibly even with that power on whose friendship through community of interest she must largely rely in the future?

"This is a wide and deep question of imperial policy with which, as such, we can of course have nothing to do in an article of this character. It is set forth solely for the purpose of giving force to the argument on behalf of the West Indies. A glance at a map will show that the projected canal lies on the inner side of the Caribbean sea, which is formed by the symmetrical chain of the Antilles extending from close to the shores of Yucatan in Mexico to those of Venezuela in South America. Although, unlike the Mediterranean, the Caribbean is not a land-locked sea capable of being dominated by an outer Gibraltar and an inner Malta, yet as a possible theater of naval operations, looking to the dominance of the future canal, it might almost be regarded as a British lake. The northern shores of this lake, indeed, are now practically American, the Haytian element not counting, but, arguing apart from the fact that British and American community of interests will probably make for an Anglo-American alliance, it will be seen that Jamaica naturally fits the canal as a key does its lock. Not that Jamaica alone, however perfectly fortified, could command the canal even against American opposition were that necessary. It derives its possibilities of invincibility from the support of the minor military stations and naval depots in the Windward islands, which are brought within mobilizing distance by the all-British cable connection via Bermuda, now needing only for its completion a comparatively short section from Jamaica to St. Kitts.

"When the true significance of these geographical conditions is considered, it does not need any prophetic prescience to foresee that, with or without the powerful aid of the United States, it is here that sooner or later, during the course of the mighty and perhaps revolutionary international activities of the coming century, Great Britain will have to meet her rivals in a supreme struggle, not only for predominance in the Pacific civilization, but for the maintenance of her imperial integrity itself.

"Thus, then, will the wheel of history once more bring the Caribbean strongholds into prominence, restoring them to their former importance as bulwarks of the empire. Herein lies the true strength of their claim for special consideration and active assistance from the mother-country in the critical crisis through which they are passing."

A New Circular Knitting Machine. An improvement in circular knitting machines has been patented by Messrs. Bettney & Hammersley, of Nottingham, the object being the production of a circular knitting machine which will produce plain and ribbed fabric, changing automatically from one to the other, without stopping the machine or removing the needle loops from one needle to another. These changes may be made on any number of needles, and needles have independent action, and the machine has reciprocating motion, which enables heels and toes to be made.

Another improvement wherein a seamless tubular fabric may be knit and the needles fed by a single thread—the fabric having at the same time regular woven or knit portions, and openwork or lace portions, the same extending throughout the length of the fabric—has been patented in Great Britain by H. Brown, of Pennsylvania, and consists of a knitting machine with frame cylinder and one set of needles only, which may be arranged in sets of short and long latched needles. The feed is carried by a regular cam cylinder, which is provided with an auxiliary cam, adapted at alternate revolutions of the cylinder to raise both long and short latch needles, so that the thread in one instance will rest below the latches of the short latch needles only, whereas in the other case it will rest below the latches of both sorts of needles. By this arrangement of needles and cams, openwork designs in variety are made.

The French Crop Reports. According to recent estimates, an area of 6,644,971 hectaires (16,419,723 acres) sown in wheat in France will yield 104,989,159 hectoliters (297,854,244 bushels), a mean yield of nearly 15 hectoliters (42.5 bushels) to the hectare (2.471 acres), against 18.64 hectoliters (52.8 bushels) last year, or a decrease of some 24,052,800 hectoliters (68,088,000 bushels), due to the severe winter. The probable production of rye will be 22,107,003 hectoliters (62,717,568 bushels), against 24,052,800 hectoliters (68,237,794 bushels) last year.

LAWN TENNIS Regaining Its Old Place Among Sports

LAWN TENNIS has certainly experienced a resurrection. The game to-day has a stronger hold on the lovers of outdoor sport than ever before. Golf temporarily eclipsed the sport of the court, racquet and net. It required but little persuasion to take even men like Champion Robert D. Wrenn, Larned, Neel, etc., from the tennis court to the sunny golf course. Even this early in the year, it seems no exaggeration to say that the new recruits enlisted in the cause of the tennis court indicate that the desertions have been more than made up.

Several reasons are eminently fitting for the return of the popularity of tennis. It will not suffice the writer to tell his readers that the game has come again and fail to give his reasons for believing this. In the first place tennis possesses natural attractiveness. It is foolish for the critic to maintain that only "dudes" and women should play the game. It is an accomplishment worthy of anyone to be able to put up a fast game of singles, to say nothing of the valuable athletic training that the game affords. No man can play real tennis for two hours without deriving benefit. It is the sport that drives away doctor's bills. The chracteristic tests of skill, endurance and nerve shown by tennis make it far from easy.

The chance for honors in the game is being rapidly increased. The preeminence of the select few experts of the racquet, so palpable in former seasons, is no longer a marked feature. The greatest cracks in the game retired and the sport was really helped. At least the stimulus given to the younger element is being so generally observed that it is taken for granted that the new blood will be much in evidence this year.

Another lever that has lifted the game was the introduction of club and open handicaps. The cry now is for even more of these. The mediocre players with the benefit of an allowance did not fear to meet the best players and gain experience if they could not gain first honors. Under the popular handicap system, theoretically, of course, all players are supposed to start equally competent to win. Besides, I might add the crack English players have promised to come over this season and tour the country. Dwight Davis came forward with an exceedingly timely offer of an international trophy.

Dr. Pim and Mr. Mahony, the great players from England, came here just in time to stir up the languid and their visit is generally said to have marked the upward climb. Then came the Eaves, Nesbit and Mahony tour and the fine work put up against the foreigners by the American players. "Bob" Wrenn's famous victory at Newport over Dr. Eaves, who was held as second best in Great Britain, is still discussed wherever tennis is played.

Interest in the coming international games for the Davis trophy is considerable. The English association has accepted the conditions as proposed by the United States National Lawn Tennis association. There was at least one point on which there was considerable discussion, but at no time were the matches in danger of falling through. England wished to have the same players compete in both singles and doubles.

It can be readily seen that Mr. Davis never had the idea of departing from the leading representative play plan when he offered the trophy. To give in to the English idea would have deprived the international match of contests between leading representatives of singles and of doubles, as such, and would have made the play possible by teams made up with reference to the combined merits of the various players in the two divisions.

To be explicit, the foreigners wished that instead of two men competing in singles and one team in doubles—not necessarily the same players—as originally laid down by Mr. Davis, the teams be made up of three men each, all of whom should play in both events. Instead of four matches in singles and one in doubles, the English committee wanted three matches in each event, the victory to be decided by sets, if matches were even, or by games if both matches and games resulted evenly. But the British did not insist on their point, and so the greatest tennis tourney of the decade is soon to be brought off.

Who will play for Great Britain? That is hard to answer, but to guess that the players will be the Doherrtys and Mahony, or Nesbit, Doherty and Gore or Nisbet, Mahony and Gore. Whitman, Ward and Davis will be the American team, in all probability. Larned is playing a stiff game again, but as for "Bob" Wrenn, it might as well be said that the famous rough rider who dodged bullets at San Juan has made up his mind that he will put in his leisure time at golf instead of tennis.

Champion M. D. Whitman is better than ever this season, and he threatens to make the tennis association go down into its stocking for money enough to buy another national emblem. He would win it again, he says, and retain permanent possession of it. Since 1881, the inaugural of the national tournament, but three champions have succeeded in getting the sole possession of the much-prized trophy, R. D. Sears, O. S. Campbell and "Bob" Wrenn.

It will be remembered that H. W. Slocum got his name on the trophy two times and failed to get the honors the necessary third time. Campbell began in 1890 and took the first honors two years in succession thereafter, and that is how he got the trophy. In 1893 and 1894 Wrenn was the champion, but he could get the prize by winning in 1895. That was Hovey's year, and Hovey did not threaten the trophy since then. However, "Bob," in 1896, succeeded in wresting the cup from Hovey and the young man calls it his own. Wrenn was first to go on the new trophy in 1897 because of his defeat of Eaves. The next year came the Spanish-American war and Wrenn was out of tennis. Whitman has twice won the trophy, and it looks now as if he would get it a third time.

The trophies for doubles are more coveted than any similar trophies in the world. For 11 years they have remained the original challenge trophies, withstanding all efforts at final possession. As the result of the frequent changes in temporary ownership, these trophies have inscribed on them some of the most famous names in American tennis. Campbell and Huntingdon and Hobart and Chase and Ware and Sheldon have had their names on twice each, but these teams were fated not to get the third inscription. Hovey, who was destined to fail in the singles, got on the doubles with Hobart. It will be recalled that last year it was expected by many that Ware and Sheldon would make the championship, but Davis and Ward were too much for them. Ware and Sheldon may enter the list again this year against the present holders, but it is not likely that Davis and Ward will be beaten.

SOUNDS THE DEATH TATTOO.

Spectral Drummer Who Is Constantly on Watch at Cortachy Castle.

There was no death tattoo beaten at Cortachy castle when the late earl of Airlie passed away, and the fact is remembered as the only instance in the history of the family upon which the spectral drummer omitted that ceremony. The story of his unremitting attentions to the members of this household is a weird one. In bygone days there was a drummer who drummed for the "Bonny House of Airly." The wretched player offended the earl of those days and was tied up in his own drum and flung from a high tower. After vainly pleading for his life the poor little drummer threatened that his ghost should haunt the family forever and ever, says a foreign exchange.

Legend has it that generation after generation the dead drummer has sounded the last post for earl and countess of Airlie, and the roll of his drum has through the long centuries blanched the faces of many inmates of Cortachy castle.

In 1845 a visitor at Cortachy was dressing for dinner. A tattoo was beaten beneath her window. The lady listened in surprise, for as far as she knew there were no bandsmen at the castle. Going down to dinner she said to her host:

"Who is it that plays the drum so skillfully outside the castle?"

The earl turned pale and shivered. The countess could not hide her fear. The face of every Olgilvy at the table was deadly white. Within a week the countess lay in her shroud. The drummer was the specter of Cortachy castle.

When the father of the earl of Airlie who fell in South Africa died it is said that the drummer did not sound his drum. It may be true. Perhaps he has not beaten it on this occasion. But the countryside will not be denied their ghost, and it may be that we shall soon hear that the spectral drum was heard at Cortachy the day before the gallant cavalryman fell in South Africa.

MOTOR CAR EXHIBIT.

Mr. Coles Displays at a London Show His Remarkable Skill with Modern Vehicles.

The general efficiency of the motor car was put to drastic test during the thousand-mile trial at Agricultural hall, London. There was a little spill one day, when the driver of a quadricycle was the victim of a loose head bolt, and crashed into the fence, fortunately without hurt to anyone; but against this accident may be set the performances of other vehicles of the same and other types, especially that of Mr. Coles upon a Benz victoria.

Mr. Coles first ascends two inclined planes, having a gradient of one in four, and so narrow that only the most accurate of steering prevents the car from toppling over, and he follows this by pulling it to a dead stop on a platform only a few inches longer than the wheel base. Finally, he runs the car down a steep flight of steps, and turns it sharp round to the right the moment he has reached the foot. Those feats were repeated daily throughout the week.

Clearly there is no fear of the motor car being crystallized into one type, for this exhibition of the Automobile club embraces such widely different vehicles as a steam lorry and a petroleum-driven bicycle, with phaetons, dog carts, vans, waggonettes, victorias, voiturettes, "quads," and tricycles in between. The only element of uniformity, or virtual uniformity, is that their engines are practically all of the gasoline type, three entries of electrical cars and as many of steam being the only exceptions out of over a hundred stands.

In France and in England alike it has lately become clear that the demand must be met for a lighter, smaller and cheaper vehicle than has hitherto been produced, and the voiturette, in various forms, is the result. The recent introduction of the water-jacketed variety of this engine, which is generally known in its 2¼ horse power air-cooled pattern, will undoubtedly stimulate the manufacture of the voiturette by English makers.

If appearences were everything the light steam car might be regarded as the motor vehicle of the future, for this American product glides about the arena with almost swanlike grace, and as silently as an electric launch. Its performances are very captivating, and the inexperienced spectator may be forgiven if he finds them more interesting than anything else at the show. It must be pointed out, however, that to produce the steam, three times as much petrol is required as would alone drive the vehicle, and that 25 to 30 miles is the limit of its journey without refilling of the boiler.—London Letter.

BICYCLE AND CRIME.

Prof. Lombroso Advances a Theory Which Seems Ridiculous to Thinking Americans.

"Every new mechanism adopted in our daily life multiplies the causes and the number of crimes. * * * No modern mechanism has assumed the extraordinary importance of the bicycle, either as a cause or as an instrument of crime. So marked is this that, whereas it used to be the somewhat intemperate fashion to seek in woman the mainspring of every masculine offense—'cherchez la femme'—we might now say, with perhaps less exaggeration, 'cherchez la bicyclette' in the majority of offenses committed by young men and in Italy at all events by young men of good social standing."

Such is the thesis on which Prof. Lombroso in the Pall Mall Magazine builds up a remarkable string of evidence against the bicycle, or at least the bicycle in Italy.

Cyclists have always been inclined to think that the effect of cycling upon public morality has been beneficial rather than otherwise, observes the Cycling Gazette, and, paradoxical though it may seem, Prof. Lombroso proves this to be the case in the end. Hence we may safely draw the conclusion, overlooked by the Italian author, that the bicycle, increasing human opportunities, may contribute to increased crime in proportion as a half holiday contributes to increased drunkenness.

Men who are criminals may use the bicycle as a vehicle for crime, while men who are not criminals are not likely to become criminals through cycling; men inclined toward drunkenness may embrace a half holiday to become drunk, while men of sober tendencies find the half holiday no temptation towards intemperance.

Dyspepsia Among Silkworms.

An epidemic of dyspepsia has attacked the silkworms in Italy and France. Food disagrees with them, many of them refuse to eat, and they are dying by millions on the trees.

SPORTING.

GOLF

The return match between the teams of the Park Golf Club and the Metuchen Golf Club on the former's links will be played here Saturday morning, September 1st.

Among those who took part in the invitation tournament on the course of the Shinnecock Golf Club, near Southampton, during the week, was A. R. Fisk, of this city. Fisk made a fair showing but failed to qualify for any of the three trophies played for.

Morgan T. Townsend has been appointed a member of the green committee of the Park Golf Club in the place of Fred P. Taylor, resigned. Taylor left town and so was compelled to offer his resignation. Townsend has also succeeded Taylor as captain of the club team.

While the equalling or excelling of the "bogey" score of a golf course is by no means a strange thing, the achievement of Morgan T. Townsend on the links of the Park Golf Club last Tuesday afternoon, differed from most such acts. They are usually accomplished by making a phenominal score on one or more holes which will bring the general average down. Townsend, however, played really par golf, equalling the "bogey" score for all the holes except the eighth, where he did it in one better.

The caddies of the two local golf clubs had their turn Thursday afternoon when four-men teams represent ing the two clubs met on the links of the Park Golf Club. Two lads did remarkably well, the Hillside team coming out ahead by a score of 20 to 5. McLaughlin was the only one of the Park Club caddies to defeat his opponent. The scores were as follows:

HILLSIDE.		PARK.
Kelly	0	McLaughlin	5
O'Loughlin	1	S. Galloway	0
Walden	5	J. Galloway	0
Kane	14	Steffaney	0

There are few of the large summer hotels which are making much of a bid for a vacation trade this summer, which have not golf links, either belonging to the hotel or a nearby club, within easy reach of the hotel. Many of the larger summer hostelries have had golf courses laid out by well-known experts and spent considerable money in keeping them in order during the summer months. The golfer is not content to leave his clubs behind when he goes away on his vacation but wants to keep right on with the game wherever he happens to be. Some of these courses are reported to be very good. The Hotel Netherwood and the Mountain Park Inn both have arranged with the local clubs whereby guests at either of those hotels can play on the local links on payment of the usual guests' fee.

The golfers of Metuchen have had their troubles in trying to promote the royal and ancient sport in that village. There are a few of the members who are steadfast in their support of the game and they are now fast overcoming the obstables thrown in their path. They had a fair course there but same trouble with the owners compelled the club to give it up and start all over again to lay out links and put them in good order. The ground was not in the best shape for golf but a year's care will make the course equal to the old one. The fairgreens are weakest part. They will require something to put them in good shape and to produce a proper turf. The members of the Metuchen Golf Club play right along, however, and their enthusiasm has won for club and game a number of new concerts.

TENNIS

The present season has shown a remarkable renewal of the interest in the game of tennis despite the fact that golf continues to find favor with increased numbers. In Plainfield the return of many of the young men to tennis has been remarkable. There are a number of private courts in different parts of the city where games are in progress almost every afternoon but there is no club court. Despite the fact that it is still the Hillside Tennis and Golf Club, the tennis department of that organization is a very small one. Last season the club held its annual tournament on the courts at the bungalow of George P. Mellick, but was only open to club members. At present the Westfield Club is the headquarters of the tennis enthusiastists of this section. The tournament held there on July 4th went to Thomas U. Smith, of this city, with Roy T. Phillips second. Then Fred G. Smith, Stanley Hunter, Fred K. Fish, Jr., and several other Plainfielders took part. It is to be regretted that a city the size of Plainfield should have to depend upon little Westfield as the only means to develop the stock of local tennis players.

ROD AND GUN.

David C. Smalley, Jr., of East Front street, accompanied by Prof. O'Reilly, of North avenue, went fishing yesterday to Amboy, leaving Plainfield about 4 o'clock a. m. They had good luck and remembered a few friends on their return, It was young David's first fishing trip. He wants "Ned Davis" and would go every day, and his father don't know how to pacify him.

HICKS SAID TO BE AHEAD.

Points on the Senatorial Scramble Among Middlesex Republicans.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

New Brunswick, July 28.—Republicans with the Senatorial "bee in their bonnets" are multiplying rapidly in Middlesex county. Those in the race so far are Leslie P. Johnson, Edward W. Hicks and Theodore Strong, of New Brunswick; Charles S. Edgar, of Metuchen; Adrain Lyons, of Perth Amboy, and John E. Montgomery, of South Amboy.

According to present indications the fight will be made by Hicks and Strong, with the chances in favor of Hicks, and the possibility that a third man may have to be named. In that event it is believed it will rest between Edgar and Johnson as Lyons and Montgomery will have to stand for a second term in the Assembly.

Hicks is a young lawyer of ability and two years experience in the Assembly, He is backed by Robert Carson, Collector of the Port of Perth Amboy, the reputed personal representative of General Sewell.

MANY FLORAL TRIBUTES.

Many Beautiful Flowers Given in Memory of the Late Mrs. Egel.

The funeral services of the late Mrs. George Egel were held yesterday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock from the house on Somerset street, and there was a very large attendance of relatives and friends. Rev. Dr. D. J. Yerkes, pastor of the First Baptist church, where the departed was a member, officiated, and spoke earnest words, eulogizing the departed and telling of her beautiful character that was evidenced through so much intense suffering.

There was a large display of floral tributes, consisting of pillows, wreaths and bunches of flowers from relatives and friends. The interment took place at Hillside Cemetery, where a short service was conducted by Dr. Yerkes. Those who served as pall-bearers were Peter Bowers, Andrew Wilson, John H. Kitchen, Alfred Winans, B. R. Waldron and Peter Saums.

—There will be Danish Lutheran services in Y. M. C. A. Hall Sunday evening at 8 o'clock. Pastor Menges will preach his farewell sermon.

VORACIOUS BEASTS.

Their Speciality Is Chicken—It May Be That They Escaped From a Circus.

Those who admire and appreciate good liars will probably read the following from the New York Sun with considerable interest:

Bound Brook, N. J., July 27.—Farmers in Somerset, Morris and Warren counties are trying to find out what sort of animals are gobbling up their stock. At Gallia, in Somerset county, Adam Hunter last Tuesday turned out several hundred chickens on his farm. He missed about one hundred and thirty and a pig. Jonas Hepburn, of Lamington, cannot account for a calf that has been missing since Sunday. While George Emerson, a farmer living near Millington, was making hay Thursday he heard a calf bellow. He ran toward the place where the noise came from and saw the calf torn in a dozen places, apparently by a wild cat. At Deep Gorge, in Warren county, Isaac Smith lost three heifers. Two were found dead in a cave above Gordon's Hill. At Poversher Hill, near Franklin, Hyman Sutton, a poultry raiser, has lost about three hundred chickens in the last three weeks.

While returning from church through a dense woodland, near Ralston, Wednesday evening, and driving at a lively gait, William Delbert felt something heavy on his buggy top. He had a revolver and shot through the buggy top. The animal leaped from the buggy. It is believed that the animals are some of those that escaped from a circus passing over the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western Railroad, near Mendham, about a month ago.

CONFESSED HIS GUILT.

Harry Elliott Sent to the County Jail to Await Sentence at Quarter Sessions of County Court.

Harry Elliott, the young lad accused of attempting to enter B. D. Newell's grocery a few nights ago, was given a hearing before Justice Nash yesterday. He admitted the charge made against him and made no defense. The justice had no alternative but to commit him to appear for sentence before the Quarter Sessions, which meets at Elizabeth every Wednesday.

There has been some talk as to the supposed injustice done Elliott in holding him and allowing the other lads to go free. The officials claim that as he was the one to plan the intended robbery and did all the work of placing the boxes against the door and the rest of the plan, he should be held. The other lads were simply onlookers and took no hand in the affair whatever.

Only $85 Not Paid in.

Of the $500 subscribed for the opening of Duer street into this city all has been collected except $85, and as this balance is needed very much at present Mayor Smalley hopes that the sum remaining will be paid at once. The new bridge will be along at an early date, and the expenses attendant upon opening the street in the borough necessitates the payment of the subscriptions to meet them.

Best of Friends Now.

By the dismissal of the complaint by Justice Moffett this morning, the assault and battery case of McCaull against Vail came to an end and it is reported that the two contestants are the best of friends. Vail appeared in court this morning, but McCall was among the missing. The case of Vail against McCaull was dropped the same way in Justice Mosher's court last Tuesday.

New Railroad Project.

There are rumors afloat that a New England company is about to build an electric railway from Easton to Bangor, and thence through Belvidere to Washington. The company is now building a line at Pen Argyl, and the superintendent has stated it is their intention to build as reported, but not until next spring.

Handsome Wagon.

One of the handsomest delivery wagons in Plainfield was that driven by James K. Arnold, the Somerset street grocer, this morning. It is a rubber-tired wagon and up-to-date in all its appointments.

The engagement of Miss Elizabeth J. Huff, of Centreville, N. J., to Arthur S. Mosher, of this city, is announced.

For Fairy Feet.

The old-fashioned sandal is coming in again, with its pretty strapped front. It has ingratiated itself by means of sandal slippers with three and five straps, each boasting its tiny bow and buckle, and the number is growing so that we may soon expect the high sandal shoe, which would give grace to the clumsiest foot, while it makes a pretty foot look like a fancy creation.—Detroit Free Press.

CHALLENGE MATCH WON BY M. T. TOWNSEND.

Defeated G. W. Faber 5 up and 4 to go for Green Committee Trophy on Park Links.

TOWNSEND'S FOURTH WIN.

EDGAR I. SERRELL MADE LOW SCORE FOR PRESIDENT'S CUP.

Three Others Tied for Second Honors for That Cup—Saturday's Scores Were Not up to the Usual Standard—Eight Cards Handed in.

The younger generation of golf players carried off all the honors at the links of the Park Golf Club Saturday afternoon. There was a fair field out and the weather was delightful but, with a few exceptions, the playing was not up to the usual standard. Edgar I. Serrell played good golf. Despite the fact that his handicap has been considerably reduced, he easily carried off first honors for the president's cup with a 91 net. William J. R. Thiers, William M. McCutchen and Charles Dupee all tied for second place with 97 net.

As there was no team match on for the afternoon, most of the cracks were on hand and took part in the weekly competition for the president's cup. There was also a meeting of Gustavus W. Faber and Morgan T. Townsend for the green committee challenge trophy which resulted in a victory for the latter.

Last week Faber won his second match for the trophy by defeating E. I. Serrell. Saturday, he met the next on the list of challengers which happened to be Townsend. Townsend had three victories to his credit. A victory for Fabor meant that the latter would tie Townsend and have a good show of getting a formidable lead before Townsend would get another chance to play for the trophy. As Faber and Townsend are considered two of the best players in the club, some good golf was expected. The match proved to be devoid of any exciting incidents. Neither player was at his best.

Townsend took the lead from the start and finally won 5 up and 4 to go. His score was 105, and included one 12, the result of a visit to a hazard. Faber did not turn in his score for the president's cup.

The standing for the green committee challenge trophy is now as follows:

Morgan T. Townsend	4
W. S. J. Thiers	2
Gustavus W. Faber	2
Fred P. Taylor	1
W. de la R. Anderson	1

Fifteen names were registered for the rounds for the president's cup, but only eight cards were turned in. Edgar I. Serrell and W. J. R. Thiers were paired together and put up the best game of the afternoon, their gross scores being the same, 97. They were the only ones to play under the 100. Thiers, Wm. M. McCutchen and Chas. Dupee scored a point each, the first they have made in the contest for the president' cup.

The scores were as follows:

	Gross.	Hand.	Net.
Edgar I. Serrell	97	6	91
Wm. J. R. Thiers	96	0	97
Wm. M. McCutchen	103	6	97
Chas. Dupee	107	10	97
H. D. Hibbard	107	8	99
Wm. R. Faber	115	15	100
Henry C. Wells	129	25	104
Morgan T. Townsend	105	0	105

The standing for the president's cup is as follows:

Morgan T. Townsend	6
Wm. R. Faber	5½
Charles A. Reed	3½
Samuel Townsend	3
George C. Werth	3
Meredith Dryden	3
J. H. Simpson	3
W. de la R. Anderson	3
Allan B. Laing	3
H. D. Hibbard	3
Herbert S. Rogers	2½
George T. Rogers	2
Henry C. Wells	1½
Gustavus W. Faber	1½
Donald A. McGee	1
Wm. M. McCutchen	1
Chas. Dupee	1
W. J. R. Thiers	1
Charles B. Morse	½
S. St. J. McCutchen	½

Summit's Special Election.

It was necessary to call a special meeting of the Union County Board of Registry and Election Friday to complete the arrangements for the special election to be held in Summit tomorrow to vote on the question of a bond issue to defray the city's share of the expense of joining in the joint sewer system. All preliminaries for that election have been completed. The ballots are prepared to read "For" and "Against" the entire bond proposition, and the vote must indicate the way he desires to vote by scratching one of these words with a pencil. It is believed to be almost certain that the bond issue will be indorsed by a large majority.

BOERS BURNED HIS HOME.

Robert Gloak, a Former Plainfielder, Has Had Thrilling Experiences in South Africa.

Councilman William Gloak, of East Second street, has just received a letter from his brother, Robert Gloak, a former Plainfielder being employed at the Potter Press Works, but who is now stationed at Kimberley, South Africa. It is the first letter he has received since the beginning of the Boer War, and the experiences related therein are thrilling and exciting.

Mr. Gloak is superintendent of the Kimberley water works and at the approach of the Boers on that city about five months ago he was forced to leave his home and all his possessions and, together with his family, flee to the town. Their home was burned by the Boers, but the water station was not destroyed. The city's supply was cut off. He passed through the entire siege with all its hardships, but at the withdrawal of the Boers again resumed his position at the water works.

Mr. Gloak is well-known in this city, having made a large number of acquaintances while employed at the local shop.

A POLITICAL FISH.

Caught by George Squire and Served to Party of Local G. O. P. Followers.

George A. Squire, the dapper little Elizabeth politician, has been after the finny ones at Barnegat. Last week he caught a splendid specimen of the channel bass, weighing thirty pounds, and shipped it to Andrew McCardell, of West Front street. A dinner was arranged at the Hotel Kensington Saturday evening and there Mr. McCardell summoned twenty friends to assist in eating Squire's bass. The fish was splendidly cooked and was backed up by a menu that proved eminently satisfactory. There was no political significance to the affair, but the one lone Democrat in the bunch found himself arrayed against some of the most powerful of the local Republican leaders.

JUDGMENT FOR ZIMMERMAN.

Common Pleas Court Decides Against Former Mayor Cooley.

The case of Peter Zimmerman, of New Brunswick, against former Mayor Justus H. Cooley, of the borough, which was tried before the Common Pleas Court at Somerville, on appeal, last month, was last week decided in favor of the plaintiff. Counsellor W. S. Angleman represented the plaintiff, and former Judge Coddington, of Reed & Coddington, appeared for the defendant. The decision just rendered by Judge Schenck gives the plaintiff judgment for $42 13.

United States as a World Power.

Charles A. Conant continues in the August Forum his examination of the position of "The United States as a World Power," dwelling in this second article more particularly on her advantages in the struggle for commercial empire. He points out that the elements needed for success in industrial competition exist in greater abundance in the United States than in any other country, and that the American genius for combination and organization, reinforced by the natural resources of the country, must eventually place the United States in the forefront.

Politicians Attending to Business.
(Special to The Daily Press.)

Flemington, July 30.—Grand View Grange, No. 134, held its annual picnic in Prall's Grove, near Flemington, Friday. It was the largest gathering of the kind the Grangers have ever held. Many politicians were present, looking after their interests. Among those who delivered addresses were Senator John R. Foster, Mortimer Whitehead, Newton B. Rittenhouse and Rev. Mr. Cox, pastor of the Croton Baptist church.

Tearing Down the Buildings.
(Special to The Daily Press.)

Elizabeth, July 30—The work of tearing down the Linden Park Racing Association's buildings began Friday. The buildings are to be taken to Trenton and erected on the grounds of the Industrial Fair Association.

May be Settled.

The contract cases of Wm. A. Schorb and John M. Schorb against Wm. Trust are on the calender at Justice Mattison's court for this afternoon. The chances are the cases will not be tried, as there is a possibility that they may be settled out of court.

A HEART TO HEART TALK

MISS HAWKINS GAVE EXCELLENT IDEAS TO ENDEAVORERS.

Popular Meeting Held in Trinity Church Last Night—Music a Special Feature.

A popular service was held last evening at Trinity Reformed church, under the auspices of the Christian Endeavor Society. There was a gratifying attendance of young people to enjoy the meeting. The music was a special feature of the service. It was led by F. S. Cutter, assisted by an augmented choir, consisting of Miss Minnie Williams, Miss Etta Krymer, Mrs. E. E. Anthony, Miss Olive Newell, A. J. Moore, F. S. Cutter, Elmer E. Cutting and T. R. VanZandt. Arthur L. Titsworth was organist.

George Bolsterli, vice-president of the Endeavor Society, presided and after conducting the responsive reading, Dr. Schenck, the pastor, read the Scripture lesson and offered prayer. Mr. Bolsterli then introduced Miss Florence G. Hawkins, of this city, who made an address.

Miss Hawkins said that she did not come prepared to deliver an address, but rather to hold a heart to heart conversation. She dwelt upon the word unity and spoke of all Endeavorers being banded together serving one Master. She said that while Christ went into the mountains to pray, He did not stay there, but afterwards went down among the people to teach and help them. So it should be with Endeavorers. After they are filled with enthusiasm and Christ's spirit they should go about doing good in Christ's name.

The speaker dwelt upon the grand thought that Endeavorers are striving to do whatever Christ would have them do. Her message to those present at the service was "Unselfish ministering and service," and then analyzed the word unity. The first letter she said stood for "Unto one of the least of these my brethren;" the next letter "Not by might, not by power, but by My spirit," saith the Lord. The third letter she interpreted as "In whateo we share," and the next letter "Touch of His hand," while the last letter in unity was designated as "Why." In her interpretation of the various sentences Miss Hawkins told applicable stories that simply, yet impressively, illustrated the many points she wished to bring out.

In conclusion she spoke of carrying crosses. She impressed all that it is far easier for each one to carry his own cross instead of that of another, and that while all Endeavorers are banded here in Christian work, she hoped that all would remain so, and that when Christ calls His children home they will all go as an unbroken band.

Miss Hawkins was very much in earnest as she spoke and she held the close attention of everyone present. Every word was filled with inspiration and encouragement. After the service many remained to shake hands with her and thank her for the helpful words so truly spoken.

TANGLED UP IN BICYCLE.

Peculiar Accident That Happened to James Richmond at Perth Amboy.

A peculiar accident befell James Richmond, of New York, who is visiting relatives in this city, while on a bicycle ride to Bay Cliff, S. I., Saturday. He had dismounted and was hurrying down the Smith street hill at Perth Amboy to catch the Staten Island ferry boat. One of the pedals struck his foot and he fell on top of the wheel. He became entangled in the frame and it required the assistance of bystanders to release him. The rim of the rear wheel was smashed and one pedal was broken. He was forced to give up his ride and return home.

Steam Roads Losing Patronage.

It is reported that the ticket agents along the line of the Jersey Central between Jersey City and Somerville, are complaining about the light travel. They say that the trolley has taken a majority of the local travel and where they used to sell two and three hundred tickets a day, they are now only selling about seventy-five and a hundred. The only remedy for this is said to be a lowering of the rates on the railroad. This, it is thought, will bring back a good deal of the former patronage.

TRIED TO BAR OUT HANK'S HOUSEKEEPER

A Noisy Time Between Rival Factions for Supremacy in East Fourth Street Cottage.

EIGHT OF THEM ARRESTED.

TOLD CONFLICTING STORIES IN COURT AND FINED $5 EACH.

Police Have Been Watching the Place for Three Months—Cuff's Wife Now Languishing in the County Jail.

While his wife languished in the county jail, William H. Vandeveer, alias Hank Cuff, colored, felt lonely and brought Mary Holland, alias Mame, to his cottage, 320 East Fourth street, as a housekeeper. Lucy O'Rourke and Georgie McGuire, recently of New Brunswick, had remained in the house since the incarceration of Mrs. Vanderveer to loook after the children. They objected at the advent of "Mame." They barred the door against her Saturday. Then Mame and Hank bombarded the establishment with tomato-cans and cucumbers until Mame effected an entrance with the aid of a fence picket.

The troubles were summarily quelled early Sunday morning when Patrolman Totten and Watson raided the place and captured the regular inhabitants of the house, together with several visitors. All were arraigned before Mayor Rockfellow this morning and given their choice between a fine of $5 or thirty days in jail.

For three months or more the Vanderveer establishment has been under police surveillance. Several weeks ago Mrs. Vanderveer was arrested and sent to jail for sixty days. Since her departure Hank has been trying to adopt a housekeeper. He has brought her to the house on several occasions. The other occupants of the house objected. The noise of Saturday night's bombardment and the accompanying rapid fire of curses and foul language attracted both Patrolmen Totten and Watson to the scene.

The officers arrived after the bombardment was over and the attacking party had forced the rear door with a fence picket. The defenders, armed with a butcher knife, were preparing to repell the invasion. The appearance of the officers caused a cessation of hostilities. Mary Holland was ordered away and the others were told to go to bed and keep quiet.

After the departure of the officers the battle was renewed until William Thompson, a colored boot-black living in a wing of the same house, couldn't stand the disturbance and began to whistle for a policeman. Then the noise ceased.

Some of the visitors fled, but they were met by the officers and gently but firmly requested to return. Then the policemen went to the Vanderveer establishment and demanded entrance. There was much excitement within, but the door was finally opened and the occupants of the rear room were all apparently in a deep sleep. All were arrested and locked up.

When brought before Mayor Rockfellow this morning the eight colored prisoners, four men and four women, professed entire ignorance of any trouble. Their defence was remarkable. John Cuff was the only one who admitted that he had been there at all. He was sound asleep, he declared, when the police woke him up. The rest of the party were, according to their story, scattered all over the face of the globe.

Besiegers and besieged were allowed to argue a little over the testimony until they forgot that they were not there and told the substantial facts. The party consisted of William H. Vandeveer, alias Hank Cuff, John Cuff, Edward Francier, of New York, George Burrell, of Westfield, Maria Wiggins, Mary Holland and the two from Brunswick, Lucy O'Rourke and Georgia McGuire.

Mayor Rockfellow declared them all guilty and said that the city was determined to break up all houses of that character. He sentenced the prisoners to pay a fine of $5 each or go to jail for thirty days. It is expected that most of the fines will be paid before night.

DIED GOING TO DOCTOR.

PATHETIC ENDING OF A BABY'S LIFE FRIDAY AFTERNOON.

Nurse Girl was Carrying Infant to Dr. Adams', and When He Got To It Life Had Become Extinct.

A very pathetic case was brought to the attention of Dr. Adams last Friday afternoon at his home on Grove street, when the five-months-old son of Mr. and Mrs. William Gratner, of West Second street, was brought to his office by a nurse girl for treatment. The child had been afflicted with convulsions and had suffered with one on the way to the doctor's home. The nurse hastened with all possible speed for she thought the doctor could bring the child through all right. Little did she think that he was past help as she proceeded on her journey.

When the doctor's home was reached the nurse learned that the physician was out, but was expected in every minute. The family told the nurse to bring the child in, which she did, and he was placed in a hot bath, that being considered the best treatment. Everyone thought the child was in a comatose condition, and the fact that he showed no signs of life did not prevent them from doing all that was possible.

Dr. Adams arrived soon afterwards and a hasty examination of the child by him disclosed the fact that the child was dead and it was clearly evident that he had died on the way from the home to the doctor's house. The body was then cold as a stone. The sight was an affecting one and the nurse girl was broken-hearted with grief. It was pathetic to see her place the child in the baby carriage and return home with the lifeless form. At the house the mother was grief-stricken when she learned what had happened.

The funeral services were held yesterday afternoon from the house.

AT THE ROCK.

Outing of the Thistle Club on Historic Ground Made a Pleasant Time for Scotchmen.

Nearly sixty members and friends of the Scotch Thistle Club, of this city, enjoyed a picnic to Washington Rock, Saturday afternoon. The journey to the rock was made by stages which left town about 2 o'clock. On arriving at their destination, the time was spent in playing Scotch games, such as quoits, throwing the hammer, running and jumping and other athletic amusements. No prizes were given but the different contestants made every effort to win. Towards dusk everybody partook of refreshments which had been brought and the singing of songs made the time pass quickly. It was late before the start for home was made, but everyone was satisfied with the day's outing. It is the intention of the club to make the picnic an annual event.

A Serious Fracture.

The unfortunate accident which occurred to Mrs. Ann Dunn, of Elm place, last Thursday evening at the conclusion of her birthday celebration, has proved to be rather serious. The arm which was injured is fractured just above the elbow, in a place where knitting will be slow if at all. She may never regain the full use of the arm. Mrs. Dunn carries her eighty-five years well but her advanced age is against her in the mending of the broken bone.

Died From Hasty Consumption.

After an illness of about four weeks from hasty consumption, Charles Wood, formerly of this city but later of Dunellen, died at St. Michael's Hospital, Newark, Saturday morning. He was twenty-five years old and is survived by a mother and two brothers, all of whom live at Dunellen. The funeral services were held from St. John's church at that place this morning at 9 o'clock. The interment was in St. Mary's Cemetery.

Boroughites are Good.

Peace and quiet reigned supreme in the borough Saturday night and yesterday and the services of the marshals were not needed once. Boroughites are daily congratulating themselves that they are such an orderly set of people, and aside from the salaries paid the marshals there is little or no expense attached to that department of the borough government.

Good Time for the Tots.

About twenty of the little tots belonging to the Children's Home were pleasantly entertained by Mrs. George P. Mellick at her summer home near the Hillside golf course Saturday. They raced, romped and played to their hearts' content all the afternoon, and when they were thoroughly tired out refreshments were passed. The return home was made at 5 o'clock.

REFUSED TO SELL.

Then the Next Day the Horse That a Big Offer Had Been Made for Took Sick and Died.

During the past two weeks J. Sherman Hobbs and family and O. E. Blanding and family, of Pearl street, have been enjoying the cool breezes in a cottage at Manasquan. Mr. Blanding returned home yesterday, but the rest of the party will remain at the shore for another two weeks.

There was an unfortunate occurrence that marked the trip to Manasquan two weeks ago. Mr. Hobbs had just purchased a very valuable horse, a new rubber tire runabout and was prepared to enjoy the pleasant drives about Manasquan and vicinity. He and Mr. Blanding drove from Plainfield to the shore, and on the road they stopped at a hotel for dinner. A traveler at the same place noticed Mr. Hobbs' horse and wanted to buy him, offering his own animal and $150 to boot. Mr. Hobbs decided, however, that he did not want to sell, and he proceeded on his journey.

The drive was a long and hot one and the horse not only became very tired, but was overheated and caught cold. When Manasquan was reached the animal was quite sick, and a veterinary was called. Everything possible was done for the horse, but nothing helped him, and he died the day after the arrival. Mr. Hobbs feels his loss very much as he prized the horse very highly.

HAD APPENDICITIS.

Dr. Endicott's Son George Taken Seriously Ill While Visiting up in New York State.

George Endicott, son of Dr. Endicott, of Park avenue, who has been spending the summer near Copake, New York State, was taken suddenly ill last week. The examination by a local physician pronounced it a case of appendicitis. Word was sent to his father on Friday, and he left at once for Copake to learn the exact condition of his son. The doctor found that the boy did have a bad case of appendicitis, and he sent at once to Plainfield for a trained nurse. Miss Stuart was secured and she hastened to the bedside of the patient. Saturday a telegram was received here from the doctor stating that the operation had been performed and the young man was resting well. Another telegram yesterday morning from Miss Stuart, on her arrival, announced that George was doing well with chances for recovery. Dr. Endicott is expected to return home some time today.

Will Go To Westfield Camp.

The members of the Christian Endeavor Society of the First Presbyterian church, and any others who care to accompany them, are invited to meet at the Watchung avenue terminal of the Street Railway Company at 7 o'clock tomorrow evening for the purpose of visiting the Fresh-Air Camp at Westfield.

Endeavorers Coming by Trolley.

The Christian Endeavor Society of the First Reformed church, New Brunswick, will come to Plainfield this evening by trolley and attend the consecration service to be held under the auspices of the Christian Endeavor Society of Trinity Reformed church. A cordial invitation is extended to the public.

Ready to Fight.

James Hickey and Andrew Benford were considering the best means of settling an argument Saturday night. Their language was in a loud tone and one of them had his coat off. Patrolman Vanderweg locked them both up. Sentence was suspended on them this morning by Mayor Rockfellow.

A Family Picnic.

Mr. and Mrs. Cadmus, of Plainfield avenue, gave a picnic Saturday afternoon in honor of their grandchildren who are visiting them from Albany. A number of children in the neighborhood were invited and the afternoon was passed pleasantly near Green brook on the Cadmus estate.

Prize Choristers.

The prize choristers of Grace church for July are V. Miner, A. Yaeger, H. Grant, R. Bingerman, H. Smith, R. Sherwin and the Misses M. Yaeger, B. Miner and C. Miller. Miss Margaret Yaeger, Miss Beatrice Miner and VanWyck Brooks received the Grace church cross.

No Danger of Drowning Now.

The Cranford lock-up has been pulled out of the mud in the cellar of the hosehouse and put above ground in an addition built to the hosehouse. A drunk or disorderly can now be locked up without danger of being drowned should the river rise suddenly.

—The quartette choir at the Crescent Avenue church will not sing during August.

HILLSIDE GOLF TEAM LOST BY ONE POINT.

First Defeat for the Plainfield Players in East Jersey Golf Association Tournament.

MADISON TEAM VICTORS.

THE HILLSIDE TEAM WAS WEAKER THAN IT HAS BEEN.

Madison Course New to Plainfielders and Stringent Boundary Rules Proved Expensive for Them—Score 8 to 7.

The greatest surprise of East Jersey golf circles was the result of the team match Saturday afternoon on the links of the Madison Golf Club when the team from the club succeeded in defeating the hitherto invincible team of the Hillside Tennis and Golf Club. It was the first defeat for the Hillside club in the East Jersey Golf Association tournament and also Madison's first victory. Madison won by a single point 8 to 7. Many supposed that the result was reversed as several of the New York newspapers yesterday incorrectly gave the score 8 to 7 in favor of Hillside.

Madison has, up to this time, played a rather unimportant part in the tournament. Saturday the Madison Club gathered the strongest team that has yet represented it which included several players from Baltusrol and Morris county, one of the crack St. Paul School team and another from St. Mark's. The Hillside team, on the contrary, was weaker than usual. Frank Reinhart was ill and could not play. W. L. Glenny put in his appearance at the last moment although not feeling well.

The course of the Madison Club is a six hole one, on which five of the greens are blind. It was new to the players and some stringent boundary rules proved very expensive for them.

Glenney put up a fair game and won from his man two up. Talmage kept getting out of the bounds and failed to do better than halve the match. Wharton finished three up and Baker two up. Wright had troubles and only halved his match. In the absence of B. M. Shepard, Morris Dumont acted as captain. He found the course quite troublesome and finished three down. VanBoskerck was even more bothered and ended five down. While the Madison squad put up a good game, they could have ordinarily stood no show against the Hillside team which has downed Newark and Glen Ridge without any trouble.

The scores were:

MADISON GOLF CLUB.		HILLSIDE.
Morrow	0	Glenney	2
Plum	0	Talmage	0
Wilder	0	Wharton	3
Tilden	0	Baker	2
Willis	0	Wright	0
Searborough	3	Dumont	0

HER LIFE EXEMPLARY.

Rev. Dr. Schenck Eulogized Late Mrs. Goodman for Her Christianity.

The funeral services of the late Mrs. Catherine Goodman were held yesterday afternoon from the house on Manning avenue. There was a large attendance of friends and neighbors. Rev. Dr. Schenck, of Trinity Reformed church, and pastor of the departed, spoke beautifully of Mrs. Goodman's Christian character and of her patience in suffering. He also spoke of her exemplary life and of her liberality to appeals from the church and the cause of Christ. Dr. Schenck read two Psalms and a portion of Scripture dear to the heart of the departed, which was marked in her Bible as precious to her.

During the services Elmer E. Runyon sang "Asleep in Jesus," and "Nearer My God to Thee." There were several beautiful floral tributes including a sheaf of wheat upon which were the words "Our Grandmother, and a pillow bearing the inscription "Our Mother."

Four elders from Trinity Reformed church acted as bearers, G. L. VanEmburgh, G. Q. Dolliver, F. E. Smith and A. L. Force. The interment took place in the family plot in the North Plainfield cemetery.

Boat for Their Pleasure.

Dr. J. Hervey Buchanan and Wilbur Randolph, of Duer street, are just now busily engaged in building a large boat which will be used by them on New Market lake. The builders have not yet decided what motive power will be used, but they are seriously thinking of using steam. Mr. Randolph is an expert machinist and engineer. They hope to have the boat ready for the carnival on the lake in the fall.

NORTH CAROLINA POLITICS.

Elections This Week Will Probably Favor Negro Disfranchisement.

RALEIGH, July 30.—A general election will be held in this state next Thursday, and the question of the adoption of an amendment will be voted to the constitution limiting the electoral franchise. There is apparently little doubt as to the result of the election both as to the amendment and state ticket. It now seems to be simply a question of majority. The opponents of the amendment acknowledge that it will be adopted. As the amendment and the Democratic state ticket will run very close together the Populists and Republicans have practically abandoned their state ticket in an effort to elect a majority of the legislature and return Butler to the United States senate.

In accordance with this plan the fusionists are making a desperate fight for the legislature, and the campaign is being conducted personally by Senator Butler. Republican Chairman Holton is rendering him all possible assistance. In close counties and senatorial districts they are sacrificing everything for the legislative ticket. The Democrats, however, allege that the effort is a futile one and that the legislature will be safely Democratic. There are now just three more days until the election. Both sides are hard at work, and active campaigning will continue up to Wednesday night. It is the bitterest and most exciting campaign this state ever has known. The battle has been fought on the race issue, brought to the front by the proposed franchise amendment, by which 80,000 ignorant negro voters are to be disfranchised.

For the past month at least a thousand speeches a day have been made in the state, and the people are aroused to such a pitch that bloodshed is feared. So far there has been none, and the best elements of both sides hope there may be none, though in many eastern counties the red shirts have declined to allow fusion campaigners to speak.

A SHOCKING ACCIDENT.

Lighted Cigarette Thrown Into Powder Causes Fatal Explosion.

SPRINGFIELD, Ills., July 30.—Ten persons were injured, two fatally, by the premature discharge of the evening gun at the Illinois national guard encampment, Camp Lincoln, last evening. The explosion was caused by some one throwing a lighted cigarette into powder which had fallen to the ground.

The accident occurred in the presence of a large crowd of visitors to the camp. Corporal Balsley and Jesse Ruppert, acting quartermaster, were loading the gun, assisted by several men of Battery A. A sack of powder was placed in the mouth of the cannon, and Ruppert was about to drive the charge home. The powder sack was too large for the gun, and in forcing it into the cannon the canvas was torn, and some of the powder fell to the ground just below the nozzle of the cannon. Private Ruppert stood facing the gun, ramrod in hand. Balsley also faced the gun, and a number of soldiers and civilians were gathered around despite the commands to keep back.

Suddenly some one said, "Watch them scatter." There was a flash of powder on the ground. The flame was communicatetd to the powder which was being forced into the cannon, and the gun was discharged, the ramrod being broken and shot from the cannon. Balsley and Ruppert had their clothes blown from their bodies, which were blackened by powder. Others staggered back, burned and blinded.

All of the wounded were taken to hospitals. Some say it was a man in uniform who threw the cigarette, but Harry Peters, who was an eyewitness of the explosion, is of the opinion it was a small boy.

The Rev. Horace Porter, first assistant pastor of Plymouth church, Brooklyn, is dangerously ill in a sanitarium as the result of a bicycle accident.

Mr. Bryan's Speech Nearly Ready.

LINCOLN, Neb., July 30.—Mr. Bryan is so well along with his notification speech and his plans are so well developed that he hopes soon to be able to announce his itinerary for the trip to Indianapolis and return. He has no knowledge of the time and place for his notification by the Populists and Free Silver Republicans, and it is not believed his present itinerary takes into consideration that function. Local politicians had hoped that if it was to be in the west Mr. Bryan's home in Lincoln would be the place selected, but it is now thought Topeka will probably secure the meeting. It is possible the trip to Chicago of Secretary Edgerton of the Populist national committee may have some bearing upon the question. Mr. Edgerton left last evening and will remain several days. He expects to see Charles A. Towne while in Chicago.

More Klondike Gold.

VANCOUVER, B. C., July 30.—The steamer Cutch has arrived from Skaguay with nearly $250,000 in gold dust on board. Her most prominent passenger was E. C. Senkler, a gold commissioner at Dawson, who is on his way to Ottawa to consult with the government there on official matters.

HUNTINGTON, W. Va., July 30.—One thousand miners in the Davy coalfields were today granted 10 per cent increase in wages. The mines throughout the state are running at their fullest capacity and are unable to keep up with orders.

BRIDGE WORK
In Dentistry is the best substitute for nature's work that can be done. Sound roots may be built up and crowned and thus fill up an unsightly space. It has to be made of a material that has strength and durability and one that will not discolor. Gold is the one that stands the test. That is the secret of the expense. SKIES GROW DARKER

Daily Reports of Massacres by Chinese.

SHANGHAI SAYS ENVOYS ARE SAFE.

Uprisings Reported In Many Provinces—Prince Tuan Gets an Abundance of Heads—Sheng May Be Punished For His Duplicity.

LONDON, July 30.—The Shanghai correspondent of The Daily Telegraph says he is still firmly convinced that the ministers are safe, but with the exception of an alleged message from the Japanese legation in Peking, dated July 19, brought by a runner, saying that the legation was still defending itself nothing has yet been published giving anything in the nature of proof.

On the other hand, the daily increasing reports of the massacre of missionaries and foreigners leave only the most slender thread upon which to hang a hope.

The general situation is steadily becoming darker, and a crisis is said to be fast approaching. It is rumored in Shanghai that 10,000 Chinese troops have been secretly moved into that vicinity and that the commander of the Kiang-yu forts has been ordered to fire if any further addition is made to the number of foreign ships ascending the river. Rioting has already occurred at Kiu-kiang, the mobs threatening death to foreigners.

With the arrival of the second Japanese division the allied forces at Taku and Tien-tsin will number 70,000. The river floods near Tien-tsin are diminishing.

It is reported that Russians from Harbin have arrived at a point 150 miles north of Peking after severe fighting.

The Shanghai correspondent of The Times, wiring yesterday, says:

"I learn that Li Ping Hong and Lu Chuan Lin, governor of Kiang-su, both rabidly antiforeign, are advancing toward Peking with large bodies of troops. Their advent must seriously affect the situation there.

"Today the consular body decided that the situation demands the presence of a military force in Shanghai, and the consuls have notified their governments accordingly."

The Canton correspondent of The Daily Telegraph in a dispatch dated Saturday says:

"The Triads have become numerous and threatening in Hainan. The taotai and the local mandarins are terror stricken and decline to protect foreigners. All the missionaries except three have left with their wives and families. The natives of the Nodoa district of the island were so frightened that they all joined the ranks of the Triads.

"Serious disturbances are expected between Aug. 1 and 15 during the festival to be held to appease the shades of the dead. The Boxers are charging large sums to the Chinese for passports from Peking to Tien-tsin. Lao Yun Fu, the Black Flag chief, has refused to march on Peking unless Viceroy Tak Su will furnish him with 20,000 soldiers.

"The Chinese authorities have just disclosed a Boxer plot devised by Soon Mun to blow up the Mansato temple and to destroy the Cantonese officials while performing ceremonies in honor of the emperor's birthday. If the plot had succeeded, the Boxers would have attacked Canton, looting the city and murdering foreigners and all persons favorable to foreigners.

"Chinese newspapers assert that Prince Tuan offered rewards for all heads of foreigners brought to his yamen in Peking. The Boxers, finding it difficult to get enough of these, decapitated all Chinese having high noses and deep eyes, and in this way they presented so many pretended foreigners' heads that Prince Tuan's exchequer suffered a painful strain."

The Shanghai correspondent of The Daily Express, telegraphing yesterday, says:

"A new imperial edict promulgated this evening urgently orders all viceroys and provincial governors to endeavor to negotiate peace with the powers whose ministers are 'held as hostages pending the result of the overtures for the abandonment of hostilities against China.'

"The viceroys are also commanded to guard their territories vigilantly against attack and to prevent by all means in their power the advance of the foreign troops, especially along the Yang-tse Kiang. The decree says that the officials will answer with their lives for any failure to execute these orders.

"Commands are also given that not a single foreigner shall be allowed to escape from the interior, where there are still fully 2,000 Europeans connected with missionary work in isolated situations.

"When the governor of Shangtung communicated to the consuls the imperial decree of July 24, he omitted important passages addressed to Li Hung Chang:

"'It is admittedly inadvisable to kill all the ministers, but it is equally unwise to send them to Tien-tsin. It will be much wiser to keep the survivors at Peking as hostages.

"'You are commanded to hasten to Peking. You are incurring imperial displeasure by delay. You have been appointed viceroy of Chili because, with your military experience, you will successfully lead the imperial armies against the foreigners in Chili, which Yu Lu, the present viceroy, is unable to do owing to his ignorance of military affairs.'

"Li Hung Chang replied to this edict asking to be allowed to retire on account of his age.

"Sheng now admits that he has had telegrams since July 19 announcing that every foreigner in Pao-ting-fu was murdered, including 40 British, French and American missionaries, and announcing also that two French Jesuits and 1,000 converts have been massacred at Kwang-ping-fu, on the borders of Shangtung and Chili. A majority of the consuls favor strong measures against Sheng's duplicity.

"Local officials assert that the Italian priests murdered in Hunan were wrapped in cotton which had been soaked with kerosene and were slowly roasted to death. It is believed that all foreigners in Chili have by this time been massacred, and the wave of massacre is spreading toward Ning-po and Hong-chow, from which point 30 English and American missionaries are endeavoring to escape in boats down the river to Kiang-su. Officials here anticipate a general rising along the Yang-tse Kiang about Aug. 1."

Two Thousand Christians Massacred.

TOKYO, July 30.—It is reported from Shanghai that the Boxers attacked the missionaries and native Christians at Paoting-fu on July 8. A foreign physician and 2,000 converts were massacred. The Chinese general Li Ho Keh is now marching on Peking. He has ordered his troops to exterminate all Christians. Already one French priest and from 2,000 to 3,000 natives have been slaughtered.

IMPORTANT NEWS EXPECTED.

Washington Officials Hope to Hear From China Soon.

WASHINGTON, July 30.—There is a growing expectation at the state department that news of the utmost importance may be forthcoming at any moment from Peking. The few cablegrams that were received yesterday referred to minor matters and did not touch at all upon conditions in the Chinese capital. It is believed that the basis for this expectation is the knowledge on the part of the officials that certain machinery heretofore set in motion may result in the opening up of communication through some secret but reliable channels. It is known that a second effort has been made by our own government to get another message from Mr. Conger and that nearly all of the powers also have resorted to private agencies in their own interest with a like object.

General Droward, the British commanding officer at Tien-tsin, sent out two messengers to Peking, and it is believed that the Japanese did the same. Up to date not one of these messengers has returned to Tien-tsin nor has there been a single word heard from any of them. This fact, however, has not caused the abandonment of hope, and this is true in particular of the message expected from Mr. Conger. Minister Wu is perhaps the basis for this hope on our part, and he maintains an unshaken confidence in his original assertion that the news, when it does come, will show that the legationers are alive. The message reported to have come through Missionary Wilder at Chefu is regarded as most promising.

Minister Wu had no cablegrams himself yesterday nor had the state department any directly from China. Nothing further has been heard as to the date set for the beginning of the movement from Tien-tsin toward Peking, and it is said here that this is a detail that must be fixed by the military commanders upon the spot. A message came to the war department from the quartermaster on the Lenox announcing the arrival of that ship, together with the Conemaugh, at Kobe, Japan. They have aboard the mounts for the Sixth cavalry, and although they will start for Taku at once not less than five days will be consumed in this last stage of the voyage. It is doubtful whether General Chaffee would care to leave Taku without horses for the Sixth cavalry, particularly as, according to all reports, mounted cavalry is needed for successful operations in the flat country lying between Tien-tsin and Taku. This fact alone may delay operations until late in the present week, though at least a portion of the international column may start on the day fixed.

GENERAL WILSON DEPARTS.

Former Provincial Governor In Cuba Starts For China.

NEW YORK, July 30.—Brigadier General James H. Wilson departed last night at half past 5 o'clock for San Francisco, where he will embark on Aug. 3 on the Japanese steamer America Maru for the seat of the disturbances in China. He was accompanied by his aids, Lieutenants J. H. Reeves and G. Soulard Turner. The general, who was until recently governor of the Cuban province of Matanzas, has been ordered to China to take an active part in the military operations there. He has been in China before, having spent a year there and is entirely familiar with the territory which is the scene of the insurrection.

Concerning the situation in China the general said that he could say little. When asked if he thought that the various foreign forces in China could be merged in a homogeneous whole, the general said that such a thing was possible and that it depended largely upon the skill and tact of the generalissimo. In view of the pressing needs of the situation he said that he felt sure there would be no great difficulties in the organization of the allied forces. He said that there would be much preparation required for the advance on account of the scarcity of forage along the routes to Peking.

A Row In Chinatown.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 30.—A fierce dispute has broken out in Chinatown between Ho Yow, the Chinese consul general, and Tong K. Chong, editor of The Chinese World and of The Oriental and Occidental Press, one of the leaders of the Reform association, which seeks to raise an army and overthrow the empress dowager and restore the emperor, Kwang Hsu, to the throne. The editor devoted three pages of his American paper Saturday to a scorching of the consul general and an alleged exposure of his weakness and deception. The consul general retaliates with the explanation that the editor is leading a revolutionary party which has 3,000 members in Chinatown, all of whom he has watched by spies and detectives.

Troops Off For China.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 30.—The transport Hancock sailed at 10 o'clock yesterday for Taku, via Nagasaki, with four batteries of the Third artillery, numbering 475 men, under command of Captain Charles Humphreys. Major Hugh J. Gallagher, chief commissary of Major General Chaffee's staff, was among the Hancock's passengers.

Michael Unfairly Defeated.

PROVIDENCE, July 30.—Jimmy Michael, the bicycle rider, was declared defeated by the referee in his match with Ben Monroe of Memphis at Crescent park yesterday afternoon. The trouble grew out of the terms of the contest, by which Michael's manager, J. C. Kennedy, controlled everything. The local track could get Michael here only by agreeing to Michael's requirements for pace, and when the referee called Monroe off the track and awarded him the race the big crowd which had paid double admission price to see Michael was furious and would have made matters interesting for Kennedy, whom they considered, as did the referee, responsible for the fake exhibition, could he have been reached.

Hop Growers' Picnic.

UTICA, N. Y., July 30.—The annual picnic of the hop growers of central New York was held at Sylvan Beach Saturday. It is estimated that 20,000 people were present. Mayor McGuire of Syracuse made the address. Politicians from five counties were on hand in large numbers.

KING HUMBERT SLAIN

Italy's Ruler Shot Through the Heart.

ASSASSIN IMMEDIATELY ARRESTED.

The King Had Been Attending a Distribution of Prizes at Monza and Had Just Entered His Carriage When Fatal Shot Was Fired.

MONZA, Italy, July 30.—King Humbert has been assassinated. He was shot here last evening by a man named Angelo Bressi de Prato and died in a few minutes.

The king had been attending a distribution of prizes in connection with a gymnastic competition. He had just entered his carriage with his aid-de-camp, amid the cheers of the crowd, when he was struck by three revolver shots fired in quick succession.

One pierced the heart of his majesty, who fell back and expired in a few minutes.

The assassin was immediately arrested and was with some difficulty saved from the fury of the populace.

Humbert I, king of Italy, was born March 14, 1844. He was the son of King Victor Emmanuel and of Queen Adelaide of Austria. In 1868 he was married to his cousin german, Maria Margaret of Savoy. He succeeded his father as king in 1878 and had made in most respects a model ruler.

Victor Emmanuel, Prince of Naples, who now succeeds as king of Italy, is 31 years old, having been born Nov. 11, 1869. He was married four years ago to the Princess Helena of Montenegro, who is 27 years old. They have no children. The Prince of Naples is very small of stature, has kept to himself a good deal and is by no means popular.

If anything should happen to him, the crown of Italy would go to his cousin Emmanuel, Duke of Aosta, who is married to the Duke of Orleans' sister and who is a son of the late Amadeo, Duke of Aosta, who was for a short time king of Spain. The duke has a son and three brothers, the Count of Turin, the Duke of Abruzzi, now somewhere in the arctic regions, and the Count of Salemi.

Monza, the scene of the assassination, is a summer resort about nine miles from Milan and is much frequented by the Milanese. The royal palace was built in 1719 by order of the Archduke Ferdinand of Austria after designs by Piermarini. It stands in a beautiful and very large park, surrounded by walls and laid out in many winding drives.

The last attempt upon the life of King Humbert was made on the afternoon of April 22, 1897. The king was proceeding to the Campanella race track, when a man approached the carriage on the pretext of presenting a petition to the king. As he reached the carriage door with a scroll in one hand he drew a dagger with the other and lunged at Humbert. The king parried the blow, and the assailant, who proved to be Pietro Acciarita, an insane young blacksmith, was arrested by the royal escort. The king then went on to the races as if nothing had occurred and received an ovation.

The News at Rome.

ROME, July 30.—The news of the terrible event did not arrive here until after midnight. Signor Saracco, the premier, immediately summoned a meeting of the cabinet, and the ministers will start at the earliest possible moment for Monza. The Prince and Princess of Naples are on board the Yela, yachting in the Levant.

Great Call For Ice.

BANGOR, Me., July 30.—The Maine men who sold out their ice properties last winter to the trust, or the American Ice company, realize now that they made a great mistake, for instead of having any difficulty in disposing of their crop they would have had more customers than they could supply. The Penobscot river properties were sold to the trust for less than would have been obtained for the houses once full of ice. The entire outfits, including whatever ice the houses contained at the time, were disposed of for less than the value of one crop at present prices.

Captain Little Dead.

WASHINGTON, July 30.—General Brooke, at New York, has informed the war department of the death at Governors Island of typhoid fever of Captain John Little of the subsistence department. Captain Little was a native of Tennessee and graduated from the Military academy in 1885. He became a captain in the subsistence department in 1898 and served with distinction in Cuba and Porto Rico. He married a niece of the late General Sherman.

Commissioner Rockhill En Route.

CHICAGO, July 30.—Special Commissioner William Rockhill, appointed by the government to ascertain the true situation in China, passed through Chicago yesterday on his way to the orient. He arrived at 3 o'clock and at 6:30 was speeding toward San Francisco, whence he will sail on the Japanese steamer America Maru on Aug. 3. Mrs. Rockhill accompanies her husband and will remain in Shanghai while he conducts the investigation.

Commissioner Duell to Resign.

SYRACUSE, July 30.—Commissioner of Patents Charles H. Duell, who has been for some time in Syracuse taking his vacation, contemplates resigning at an early day. It is said that Mr. Duell's plans are not entirely settled, and he is not certain yet as to what time he will retire, but unless he changes his present plans it will be within a short time.

Miss Ogle's Body Claimed.

NEW YORK, July 30.—The body of Nellie Blair or Ogle, the young woman who committed suicide at the Presbyterian hospital on Friday, has been sent by express to St. Louis on order of the dead girl's mother, Mrs. Ogle of 3550 Caroline street, St. Louis.

Parachute Accident.

ALBANY, July 30.—In a parachute accident yesterday at Lagoon Island Milton E. Pinball, the aeronaut, had a fall of 100 feet and was seriously injured. He landed on his right leg and was unconscious for some time. It is thought he will recover.

A LITTLE BIG WASTE.

DISTINGUISH between economy and wisdom. Sitting at home to save shoe-leather is economy, but it is scarcely wisdom. In the same way, doing without Ivory Soap is economy but it isn't wise; your risks are greater than all possible saving. Every cheap soap contains free alkali. Now, free alkali will eat its way through the new oil cloth on the kitchen floor Imagine then what it will do in a single Monday's washing! Is such economy wise?

BOERS FOIL BRITISH.

Lord Roberts Retires to Pretoria Tired of the Chase.

BAD WEATHER HAMPERS OPERATIONS

Men and Animals Die From Exposure—President at Watervalonder. Big Fight Expected—Flight to Europe Hinted.

LONDON, July 30.—Operations in South Africa have again arrived at a sort of standstill. Pretoria telegrams announce that Lord Roberts has returned there with his staff, apparently finding it useless to spend his energies against a constantly retreating foe.

Commander General Botha, with several thousand Boers, like General Christian De Wet, has thus eluded Lord Roberts' grasp.

General Delarey is besieging General Baden-Powell at Rustenburg, in western Transvaal. The relief force sent to General Baden-Powell's assistance, under Colonel Hickman, proved too weak to be effective and was obliged to fall back on Pretoria.

The operations have been hampered by bad weather, thunderstorms and deluges of rain, accompanied by intense cold. Lieutenant Maclaren and three highlanders have died of exposure, as well as many horses and cattle.

A dispatch to The Daily Telegraph from Lourenco Marques says that President Kruger is now at Watervalonder. He adds that a big fight is expected and that if the Boers are beaten President Kruger will trek through Swaziland to Delagoa Bay and take a steamer for Europe.

General French has occupied Middleburg and General Pole-Carew, with the Guards' brigade, has arrived at Brug spruit, 20 miles west of Middleburg.

The war office has received a dispatch from Lord Roberts explaining that only one train was captured on the night of July 21 between Kroonstadt and the Vaal and that it contained supplies and two officers and 100 men of the Welsh fusileers.

A dispatch from Fouriesburg, dated July 27, shows that the capture of Fouriesburg was preceded by heavy fighting to force a passage of the passes, which was stubbornly contested for two days. General Hunter's forces had the hardest work in forcing Relief's nek, his casualties amounting to about 100.

Upward of 6,000 Boers, with a very large number of wagons, a large quantity of stores and many cattle, have now been driven into the mountain passes, where they are watched by British troops. Their escape from that point will be very difficult.

Bomb Thrown In St. Louis.

ST. LOUIS, July 30.—Early yesterday morning some one threw a dynamite bomb into the doorway of the house at 3750 Evans avenue, conducted by Mrs. A. Heisler as a boarding house for nonunion Transit employees, blowing in the door and wrecking every pane of glass in the front of the house. In 3752, adjoining, also a boarding house for Transit employees, all the windows were shattered by the force of the explosion, and the front door was torn off its hinges, one bomb doing the work. Only a few inches of space separate the entrances. Fortunately none of the inmates was injured.

Steamer's Cargo on Fire.

PHILADELPHIA, July 30.—The Clyde line steamer Goldsboro has arrived here from New Yorw with a portion of her cargo in flames. The fire started in the forehold and is supposed to have been the result of spontaneous combustion. As the Goldsboro came up Delaware bay her distress signals were seen by the tug Atkin Hughes, which went to her assistance and pumped water into her hold. At Chester the fireboat Edwin S. Stuart drew alongside and proceeded up the river with her.

Irish Rebellion Favored.

CORK, July 30.—At the Nationalist demonstration held here yesterday Mr. John E. Redmond, leader of the United Irish party in parliament, made a vigorous appeal for funds to assist the candidates of the party at the forthcoming general election. During the meeting handbills were distributed discouraging the work of recruiting for the British army and urging that as England's army was now "discomforted" in South Africa the time was ripe for an Irish rebellion.

The Fishermen's Strike.

VANCOUVER, B. C., July 30.—The Fishermen's union of New Westminster, after a long session, declared off the Fraser river salmon strike, but the membership of that union is not nearly so large as that of Steveston. The strike situation at Steveston remains the same. Labor Commissioner Bremner has not yet succeeded in making a settlement between the cannery men and the strikers. Meantime the militia will remain at Steveston.

New Wage Scale.

SCRANTON, Pa., July 30.—By a new wage scale adopted after various conferences with the grievance committees of the several brotherhoods the employees of the Erie and Wyoming Valley railroad will hereafter work a ten hour day and get paid for all overtime. The schedule also provides for an increase of 10 per cent in engineers' wages and 5 to 8 per cent for conductors, firemen, trainmen and flagmen.

The President's Sunday.

CANTON, O., July 30.—President McKinley attended services yesterday morning at his own church, the First Methodist. Special music was sung by the boys' vested choir of Wheeling. Rain during the afternoon prevented the customary drive and greatly reduced the number of callers. In the evening the president and Mrs. McKinley were the dinner guests of Judge and Mrs. Day.

Buffalo Bill's Show In a Collision.

DETROIT, July 30.—Section 1 of the Buffalo Bill Wild West show's train suffered a severe collision near Milwaukee Junction, resulting in the smashing of a show employees' sleeping car containing some 40 sleeping inmates. One of the latter is dead, and nine others are in Detroit hospitals suffering from more or less serious injuries.

Newspaper Man Dead.

SYRACUSE, July 30.—Edward Clark, an old time newspaper man, died yesterday. He was born in Philadelphia in 1837, but had been an editorial writer on Syracuse dailies for years.

Troops Leave Cuba.

SANTIAGO, Cuba, July 30.—The Second battalion of the Fifth United States infantry, Major Borden commanding, left today for the United States by the transport McPherson. The companies at Guantanamo and Baracoa will be taken aboard en route. The officers have received instructions to prepare warm clothing for a hard winter campaign and to be ready to re-embark shortly after arriving at New York. All the men are enthusiastic at the prospect of active service in China.

The Umbria Again In Port.

NEW YORK, July 30.—The Cunard line steamer Umbria, which has just arrived from Liverpool and Queenstown, resumes her place on the line after a long absence. The Umbria made two trips to South Africa with troops and supplies and was engaged about three months on the South African coast carrying refugees and soldiers to and from various ports. The government after releasing the Umbria from the army service refitted and refurnished the vessel.

Drink Crazed Man Shoots to Kill.

ST. LOUIS, July 30.—Crazed by strong drink, Charles Holbert, a foundry man, ran amuck with a revolver through the streets of Denverside, a suburb of East St. Louis. As a result of his indiscriminate firing Oscar Holton, a peddler, was killed and Jerry Jakes received a bullet through both thighs, making a serious wound. Holbert then fired at his wife, missing her, and finally put a bullet through his brain.

Crushed Under an Engine.

BINGHAMTON, N. Y., July 30.—Harry Green of Hubbardsville, 20 years old, a Lackawanna brakeman on a milk train, attempted to step on the step of the engine when he slipped and fell under the wheels. Both legs were crushed and his head cut. He died a short time after being taken to the city hospital.

Break In Erie Canal.

SYRACUSE, July 30.—A dispatch to The Post-Standard from Ilion says that a bad break in the Erie canal at Frankfort has stopped traffic from Utica to Little Falls. A large force is engaged in repairing the break, but it will be several days before it will be repaired.

READERS of The Press, anticipating leaving Plainfield for a summer vacation, should send their address to the business office. The Press will be forwarded without extra charge.

Plainfield is not the only town in Union county that is troubled about sewage disposal, for Summit is in a like position. But Summit has reached the point where it is ready to act decisively on a plan which it is hoped will prove an effective remedy for its sewage troubles. Tomorrow the voters of Summit will decide at a special election the question of issuing $130,000 bonds for sewerage purposes. Of this sum, $45,000 is to be used for sewers inside the city, mainly in the eastern section, which at present has no sewerage system. The rest of the money, $85,000, is to be used to connect the sewers with the trunk sewer system, which South Orange, Irvington, West Orange and other places are to build to Staten Island Sound, dividing the expense among the towns and cities benefitted. Summit has agreed to join this sewer plan, acting unanimously through its Common Council and Mayor, but it was considered necessary to have an election to allow the issue of the bonds. The vote will probably favor the bond issue, although there is some opposition.

The usual crop of freak election bets are bobbing up as characteristics of an American political campaign. Though all national campaigns have seen almost every conceivable outlandish notion inculcated into bets presuming to test the confidence and faith of men in the success of their favorite candidates there seems to be enough ideas still left to be classed as unique. In fact, one of the freakest of freak election bets we have ever heard of comes to our attention in a dispatch from Coldwater, Michigan, in which it is stated that "Arthur Williams, proprietor of a livery barn, and George Stebbins have made a freak election bet. If Bryan is elected Williams is to support Stebbins's mother-in-law during the remainder of her natural life. Should McKinley be re-elected Stebbins is pledged to twist publicly the tail of a vicious mule belonging to Williams once a day for three weeks or until the twister is disabled permanently. The agreement is backed by a forfeit." Next?

The only officers which the voters of Union county will elect this fall will be three Assemblymen. As the present Republican Assemblymen are all serving their first term, it is probable that they will be renominated by their party. Whom the Democrats will be likely to name for Assemblymen will not be known until the nominations are actually made, as there are no candidates in sight for the nominations and none are likely to be.

Cheer up faithful Prohibitionists. The Chicago Voice announces many recruits to the cause of Prohibition in the Shenandoah Valley. The towns of Natural Bridge, Lexington, Buena Vista, Glassgow Fancy Hill, Limber Ridge, Riverside, Midvale, Buffalo Forge and Goshen have all voted "dry," it says. Rockbridge county, except one district, is now under Prohibition.

An alarming state of affairs has been discovered in a Jersey City public school where a physician has been examining the eyesight of the pupils and he finds but few perfect optics. The examination of 315 pupils revealed that only 69 had perfect eyes, and 71 were in danger of permanent defects, as they were cases where glasses were not worn but were needed.

New Jersey has just claims for great political prominence now. Hanna, Hill, Croker, Murphy and Jones are all sojourning at shore resorts in the State. Consequently, nearly all the important political news of the present time is being sent forth from Jersey. New Jersey may be small, but she makes up in conspicuousness and importance what she lacks in size.

The New Brunswick Home News says that the 1900 population of its home city will be little, if anything, over 20,000. Such a frank confession is good for the soul of The Home News, but it looks bad for the boasting that The Home News has indulged in during the past.

Down in Monmouth county, judging by recent events, the only safe thing to do if you are a gambler, and are desirous of escaping the vengeance of the law, is to avoid being of the small fry.

The Philadelphia Leadger opines that with Gloucester dry and Atlantic City moral, there will soon be no refuge for the wicked outside of politics.

Thus far in the campaign the principal issue seems to be to find out what the "paramount" issue is.

The true story of "What Happened to Jones?" will be known better when Hill and Croker meet.

WHAT THE SHEARS FIND.

Editorial Comment From Other Papers of Interest in Plainfield.

Union county rejects with the emphasis of conviction the unidentified allegation that James E. Martine, the "Farmer Orator," is boss, and declares with equal emphasis that Mr. Martine "is a statesman." And yet the sad fact remains—it has become almost a reminisence now—that the political party to which he belongs has never given him the opportunity to develop his talents in either capacity, although his willingness to accept the responsibility has never been seriously questioned.—New York Tribune.

Why do the political writer writers assume that Frank Bergen, of Elizabeth, desires a place on the bench? Mr. Bergen has no desire for a judicial career. This brainy Republican of Union county is too active a man, with two many and varied business interests, to be satisfied with a life which he considers more or less moribund. If Mr. Bergen cares for preferment it will will be along some other lines, and if he has political ambition, no doubt it will be granted.—Orange Journal.

Things that Are Not Exactly News but Just as Interesting.

A land turtle, probably over a century old, was found on the VanDolah homestead, near Sandy Ridge, a day or two ago. The initials of D. W. and G. V., 1806, intended for David Wilson and Garret VanDolah, who were well-known residents of that vicinity seventy-five years ago, were engraved on its shell.

Among the incidents at the Democratic national convention, recently held at Kansas City, in which the Jersey delegation figured prominently, was the fight on the convention floor between the Jersey and Texas delegations for the seats formerly occupied by the Jerseymen. James E. Martine played a prominent part and it is said that he nearly came to blows with the angry Texans. The Texas Democrats took possession of the Jersey seats when the eastern delegation was on its way to the hall. There was trouble right away when that fact was discovered. Martine took a lively part in the angry debate that followed. Finally one of the Texans lost his temper completely and shouted to the "Farmer Orator" to go to ——.

"Go to Texas, yourself," promptly replied Mr. Martine.

As the scrap grew fiercer, Mr. Martine finally declared that the Texas delegates were all like their governor, a crowd of hogs, with a prefix or two before it. That was too much for the western men and it required the personal intervention of the convention officials to prevent more serious trouble.

Gentlemen:—Our family realize so much from the use of GRAIN-O that I feel I must say a word to induce others to use it. If people are interested in their health and the welfare of their children they will use no other beverage. I have used them all but GRAIN-O I have found superior to any, for the reason that it is solid grain.

PLAINS AND FANWOOD.

(Special Correspondence to The Press.)

Scotch Plains, July 30.—Scotch Plains has once more been brought before the public by yellow journalism. The News of Friday evening printed an exaggerated account about some alleged trouble over the distribution of the special officers' caps, etc. The New York papers of Sunday exaggerated the article still further and said the entire police force of Scotch Plains had resigned with the exception of the chief. The whole thing is yellow journalism of the worst kind. When the appointment of special officers was made sometime ago by the township committee it was decided to give the appointments to the two constables, Wm. Trayno and George Allen. No salary was attached to the position but when on duty were to be paid two dollars per day. The township committee bought caps, etc., for the specials to use should they ever be called for duty. Constable Allen was the first to arrive for his paraphernalia which was in the hands of the township clerk. The two hats were numbered 1 and 2. As No. 1 cap seemed to fit him perfectly he took it. Constable Trayno arrived for his uniform later. He had been told by the committee that he was to receive the No. 1. When he found it had been taken by Allen he left the other cap until the mistake, as he thought, could be straightened out. This is no difference in the hats, neither does Scotch Plains have a police department, consequently there can be no chief of police. The whole thing is not even news and Constable Trayno objects very strongly to being made the victim of such journalism. He says there is no truth in the article saying he had tendered his resignation as Constable.

Rev. G. M. Shott, of the Baptist church, who has been enjoying a short vacation, occupied his pulpit again yesterday. In the morning as a prelude to his sermon he said: "I feel as though I should speak a few words to show my grateful appreciation for what results have been accomplished in the league work during my absence. Grateful because we can see God's hand in the work. When this work was started many of you who have lived here for years were unable to see the sins about the old town, because you staid about your own firesides at night or had become used to them. When I started the work many raised a hue and cry, but I am now able to tell you that the minions of the law could see it when their attention was called to it, and you see the result. Our work as a league in a public way is about at an end for the present. My attention has been called to other violations of the law and we will work quietly along this line, using different methods to what we have been using. For what we have accomplished in the past I give all the glory to God and the State officers, who have done their duty well, and deserve the credit."

Rev. J. H. Perks, D. D., led the monthly conquest meeting of the B. Y. P. U. in the Baptist church last evening. Subject: "Mission Work in Mexico." During the meeting Rev. Mr. Shott gave a short but interesting talk about his trip to the National Convention recently held at Cincinnati, O

RATHBONE AWAITS BAIL

Much Sympathy Expressed For the Former Director of Posts.

HAVANA, July 30.—The court before whom Mr. Estes G. Rathbone, formerly director of posts of Cuba, was arraigned Saturday after his arrest on a charge of fraud issued an order directing that the prisoner be removed to the Carcel, but Lieutenant Colonel Scott, acting governor general, advised that he be allowed to remain in the Vivac until it was known whether bail would be secured. His attorneys are confident of getting a satisfactory bondsman today. Many persons called upon Mr. Rathbone to express their sympathy with him in his predicament. Among them was General Lee.

The decree calling the constitutional convention and providing for the election of delegates meets with almost universal approval at the hands of the Cuban press. The element which has always clamored for independence sees in the convention the probable consummation of the plans of a lifetime. The Cubano says that the United States government has been "frank and honest in declarations that are of vital importance to Cuba." The Discusion publishes a strong editorial in favor of the convention, but expresses the opinion that twice the number of delegates fixed by the decree will be necessary if the convention is to represent all parties and opinions.

There is another element that takes a somewhat different view of the convention and of the powers which the United States government seems about to delegate to the Cubans. The Autonomists, Cuban capitalists generally and Cuban and Spanish merchants alike look with concern upon the prospective devolution of large responsibilities upon inexperienced hands, and the word has gone around among them to try to elect the very best class of delegates possible. Probably they will rally to the banner of the Union Democratic party.

A PLAN THAT FAILED.

The Amnesty Celebration at Manila Proved a Fiasco.

MANILA, July 30.—The two days' fiesta in Manila organized by Senor Paterno and his political followers to commemorate the amnesty resulted in a fiasco. The people were passive, unenthusiastic and not even interested.

Failing to perceive any tangible, effective results of amnesty, they say they can see no reasons for celebrating.

Judge Taft and his colleagues of the commission felt constrained to decline to attend the banquet, as they had been informed that the speeches would favor independence under American protection, and they could not passively lend their acquiescence by being present.

Senor Paterno, foreseeing the suspension of the banquet without the Americans, frantically appealed to them to attend, promising that there should be no speeches.

The provost's precautions were extreme. The guards were doubled both days, and the authorities forbade the display of Filipino flags and of pictures of President McKinley and Aguinaldo fraternally framed.

The fiesta is generally considered to have been premature and unfortunate.

During last week's scouting ten Americans were killed and 14 wounded. One hundred and eighty Filipinos were killed and 60 taken prisoners. Forty insurgent rifles were captured.

Dady Blames Wood.

NEW YORK, July 30.—A bill of complaint has been filed in the United States circuit court in the case of Michael J. Dady against Major General Leonard Wood, governor general of Cuba. Mr. Dady sets forth various complaints against General Wood and General Ludlow. He says that in 1894 he secured a contract, approved by the common council and signed by the mayor of Havana, for the work of sewers and paving of streets. When the island was occupied by the United States, his work was suspended. A new municipal charter for Havana having been framed, Mr. Dady says that it brought loss upon him and deprived him of all remedy whatsoever in the nature of an action for damages for the violation of his rights.

THE WIFE'S WAY.

Luck of a Husband Who Tried to Prepare for an Impending Water Famine.

The man with the red mustache happened to be in the neighborhood of his own home at one o'clock the other day, so he concluded to go in and get a bite to eat. His wife and the maid were both out, but the icebox had a supply of cold and uncooked viands and he helped himself and sat down to a meal of his own preparing, says the New York Sun. While he was drinking a second cup of coffee, he heard a man in the lower hall bawling out some information which might have been a trainman's statement of incoming and outgoing trains, or a crier's call to court, or any other unintelligible warning. Thrice was this strange cry repeated and then the man with the red mustache went out to see what was the matter. When he stepped into the hall the man who had been raising all the rumpus appeared at the top of the stairway.

"Oh—oh—ah—ah—ee—ee," he shouted, vigorously.

"Hello," said the man with the red mustache. "What's the matter?"

"Hello," returned the strong-lunged individual, in to-all-whom-it-may-concern tones. "You live here? I was just going to ring you up. Water main's broken in this street. Water will be turned off at three o'clock to allow of repairs. Won't be turned on again until to-morrow evening. We've sent men around all through this neighborhood to tell everybody, so's you can draw off enough to last you for the next 24 hours."

The bearer of evil tidings passed on up to the floor above to notify the tenants there of the impending water famine, and the man with the red mustache returned to his luncheon. When he had finished eating he made a calculation as to the amount of water that would be required to tide a family of three over 24 hours of absolute drought. As a result of his reckoning he made stupendous preparations for the approaching dry spell. He filled the bathtub with water, likewise the wash boiler, four pitchers, the dishpan, the stew kettles and the teakettle. Then he went back downtown thanking his lucky star that he chanced to be home in that particular hour of need.

When the man with the red mustache got home in the evening he found his wife fretting and fussing around hysterically.

"I'm glad you've come at last," she said. "I've had the most terrible time. Everything has gone wrong. Patty hasn't come home yet and to make matters worse she went away leaving the luncheon dishes unwashed. Besides that she left the bathroom and kitchen all slopped over as if we had been going through a spring deluge. And now I can't get any water to cook supper with. I've pounded on the pipes till my hands are sore and called down the tube to the janitor till I'm hoarse. The water pipes only respond with a dull, hollow echo and the janitor doesn't give me even that much satisfaction. Whatever I shall do I don't know for there isn't a drop of water to be had for love or money."

The man with the red mustache stopped on the threshold and peered cautiously into the kitchen.

"No water?" he said. "Why, you ought not have any trouble on that score. I happened to be here when the man came around to notify us that it would be shut off, and I filled everything about the place so we'd have plenty to do us."

His wife looked back at the teakettle and the dishpan and the row of pitchers with a despairing glance.

"Oh," she said, weakly, "I emptied all that out when I first came home."

FOR BEAUTY SEEKERS.

A Few Suggestions for the Consideration of the Fair Members of the Household.

Girls with red hands would do well to let coffee alone, says the St. Louis Republic.

Onions are good as a spring medicine for the complexion, but recommended only for thin persons.

A few drops of tincture of benzoin are good for the skin. Too much will make the skin tingle and burn.

To clear the liver and give you an appetite for breakfast begin the day by drinking a large glass of orange juice. If you really wish to be beautiful and to live to a ripe old age eat nothing but oranges.

When cared for properly the feet are washed night and morning, and the nails trimmed and attended to carefully at least once a week. If there are callous spots, once a week wash the feet in strong borax water, as warm as you can stand it. Dry and rub with alcohol to harden the skin.

If you are stout and want to get thin try the standing-run exercise. Double your arms against your waist and put a clinched hand on each shoulder until you look like a fowl with wings trussed for baking. Then run as fast as you can, but do not move from the spot on which you are standing.

Apple Gems.

Put into the sieve one-half pint of flour, two-thirds of a cupful of sugar, one teaspoonful of soda and two teaspoonfuls of cream of tartar, and sift into a pan. Rub into the flour thus prepared one-third of a cupful of butter, and add enough water or milk to make a rather stiff dough. Roll out into a sheet one-third of an inch thick, and cut into cakes half of an inch in diameter. Drop each cake upside down into a saucer of granulated sugar, pressing down a little so as to give an even coating of sugar, and put the cakes into a tin with plenty of space between. When they are wanted split each cake through the center with a sharp knife and spread with apple jelly.—Farm and Fireside.

THE PROGRESS OF WOMAN.

A SYMPOSIUM BY
SUSAN B. ANTHONY, :::: MAY WRIGHT SEWALL,
SENATOR GEORGE F. HOAR.

Fifty Years of Work For Women.

By Susan B. Anthony.

At the beginning of my public work 50 years ago, like other women, I was interested in a variety of reforms which I confidently believed we should be able to accomplish. With the greatest zeal I plunged into the temperance movement. At that time the only organizations of women for any purpose were a few of what were called moral reform societies and, in New York, Boston, Philadelphia and perhaps a few other cities, antislavery societies, a sort of annex to the men's associations. The temperance work was almost wholly in the hands of men, but women were beginning to organize small bands called "daughters' unions." These were violently antagonized by the masses of women themselves, who considered them wholly outside of woman's sphere. They were actively supported in this belief by the men, who insisted that it would take women out of the home and disrupt domestic life. This was especially true of the clergy, who, in addition, declared it to be in direct violation of the will of God and the commands of St. Paul.

But a few women believed that this work for the protection of the home was strictly within their proper sphere, and that they had a perfect right to organize and break the silence so long imposed upon them. But what was their amazement when, having accepted invitations to the men's temperance conventions, they were told that they "were invited there to listen and learn, not to speak." Although armed with credentials from their own societies they were refused recognition as delegates, shut out from all committees and, when they tried to plead their own cause, literally howled down with cries of "Shame, shame!" This happened not only once, but many times, the men engaging in it belonging to the highest positions in the church and state.

No advanced step taken by women has been so bitterly contested as speaking in public. For nothing which they have attempted, not even to secure the suffrage, have they been so abused, condemned and antagonized. In this they were defying not only the prejudice of the ages, but also what the world had been taught was a divine command. This was not because they advocated unpopular doctrines, but it extended even to the conventions of schoolteachers and to prayer meetings themselves. "I suffer not a woman to speak in public." This was the law and the gospel enforced by man.

The battle for this right has long since been won. She is welcomed on every platform the length and breadth of the land, and there is not a question which she is debarred from discussing. Indeed the assertion may almost be justified that the people find more enjoyment in listening to a woman than to a man. The temperance question has been virtually handed over to women. The emancipation of the slave, for which she pleaded so eloquently and sacrificed so much, was accomplished nearly 40 years ago. The number of women in organizations approximates the number of men, and they are working with just as much faith, courage and energy to accomplish their various objects. But they are striving with one arm in a sling. They are working without tools, they are fighting without weapons, and, as the inevitable consequence, the results must be inferior to those accomplished by men, fully armored and equipped.

When I began reform work, like all women who undertake it, I expected immediate and complete success. I had not the least realization of the disadvantages under which women worked. My first lesson was the denial of my right to speak. The second came when I went before the New York legislature with a petition signed by 28,000 women asking for a "Maine law." Eight months of weary tramping up and down the state had been spent to secure these names, and when it was under discussion in the assembly one of the members said contemptuously: "Who are the signers of this petition? Nobody but women and children!" It then came upon me with great force that if women's votes had contributed to his election and if they could defeat him when again a candidate he would not have treated their signatures with sneering disrespect. I saw in a flash the secret of woman's powerlessness, and I resolved then and there that my work henceforth should be to make her name worth as much as a man's on a petition to a legislative body.

With this one object in view I have labored for nearly 50 years, almost without giving the weight of my name, my voice or my pen for any other purpose. I never have wavered for one instant in my belief that in the ballot lies the supreme source of power. Its possession brings self respect to the individual and commands the respect of others. Rev. O. B. Frothingham said:

"Though a man may possess all the world deems most desirable and have not the ballot, he is sure of nothing, because he has not the power to protect that which he has. On the other hand, if a man have nothing and yet possess the ballot, he has all things, for he holds the key with which he may unlock every door."

When the great civil war broke out women consecrated their efforts to the duties which it brought. Until the close of the war I put aside all else and gave my services freely and willingly to help secure the emancipation of the slave. When this was accomplished and the war ended we turned our attention once again to the obtaining of freedom for ourselves.

We were defeated, and in 1870 had the bitter humiliation of seeing every class of men in the United States, native born or naturalized, created our political superiors while we were relegated to the plane of idiots, lunatics and criminals. It was only a short time until the plantation negroes were looking us in the face and telling us that women did not know enough to vote, just as the Huns and Poles, the Italian "dagoes" and the naturalized sons of Russia have been doing ever since.

Every succeeding decade has beheld a larger and larger ratio of women joining the ranks of the educated, the wealthy and the leisure classes and has seen them utilizing this education, this wealth, this leisure, all their splendid powers, in the improvement of social conditions and the uplifting of humanity. During every one of these years the women of every state have petitioned their legislatures to confer upon them the franchise, which would infinitely facilitate their work. And all these states have petitioned every congress during this time to add a sixteenth amendment to the federal constitution which shall enable women to exercise their right to vote. Within these three decades the full suffrage has been granted in four states, but in 13 different elections it has been voted down. In nine of these campaigns I personally canvassed the states and gave from two to ten months of the most exacting labor.

In looking back over the last 50 years I see many gains which have come to women—indeed, a complete revolution in the status and condition. But in looking forward I ask myself this question: "How long must the greatest brains, the most commanding ability of the women of this country, continue to be absorbed in this struggle to secure their own freedom, the power to do their work, which the nation needs and which waits for them?"

Fitness of Women to Become Citizens From the Standpoint of Education and Mental Development.

By May Wright Sewall, President of the International Council of Women.

From the close of the Revolution we find all the distinguished American patriots and publicists expressing the conviction that a self governing people must be an educated people. It is no longer to produce an educated ministry, but to insure educated citizens, that schools are maintained and colleges multiplied.

The whole system of state universities, those institutions from which the higher education of the entire west is mainly derived, is built upon the principle that not only the government is responsible for the elementary education needed by the humblest citizen to enable him to cast an intelligent vote, but that it is also responsible for providing opportunities for the more advanced intellectual development needed by the teachers, the guides and the leaders in all departments of life in their direction of public affairs.

In the latest report issued by the bureau of education the number of girls continuing in school long enough to complete the course of study in the secondary schools largely exceeds the number of boys.

The average length of time which girls spend in school exceeds by nearly three years the average length of time which boys spend in school, while the number of girls graduating from high school courses—those courses which include United States history and civil government—is almost double the number of boys who graduate in the same courses. Thus at the present time largely more than one-half of the moneys spent by the governments, local and national, in support of free schools is used in the education of girls.

By what authority does the government tax its citizens to support schools for the benefit of millions of women, to whom, after they have received the education necessary to citizenship, citizenship is denied?

It is urged that the government gets its return upon its investment in the education of women in the increased intelligence with which women rear their children, manage their homes and conduct the larger social affairs outside the boundary of their home life. I have no disposition to diminish or abate the government's recognition of such return, but no one has ever justified the governmental maintenance of schools and an enforced attendance upon them on the theory that the government has a right to compel men to be agreeable husbands and wise fathers and that it is responsible for teaching men how to conduct their own business with discretion and judgment. Quite in another tone it is urged that the schools are the fountains of the nation's liberties and that a government whose policy is decided by a majority of the votes cast by its men is not safe in the hands of uneducated voters.

Not only does the government expend millions annually to give a primary and secondary education to the girls whom as women it disfranchises, but to these millions it adds others for the collegiate education of the same class. The whole number of colleges and universities admitting both men and women to their undergraduate courses of study are 395. While there are 99 colleges whose opportunities are for men exclusively, there are 161 colleges in our country devoted exclusively to the education of women.

It is the political life of our nation which stands in the sorest need. Yet this is the only department of our national life which rejects the aid of women.

Philanthropy profits by their culture; the church is supported not alone by their devotion, but by their intelligent and public spirited service; charity would languish without them. The greatest social reforms of the age are being carried forward, some of them through the efforts of women exclusively, others by the united support of the women with the men.

Woman Suffrage Essential to the True Republic.

By United States Senator George F. Hoar

A person to be entitled to share in the government of a state or country ought to love the state, ought to desire its welfare, and ought to be able to judge of the characteristics of the persons presented for their suffrage and of the wisdom or folly of the measures which are proposed from time to time before the people. Can you think of any other qualification than interest in the republic, love of the republic, capacity to choose its servants and capacity to judge of the measures upon which its welfare is to depend? It used to be said of a man who was a candidate for office that he had a "stake" in the country. Is there any stake in the country like that of a mother's interest in her children? Do not the mothers, the wives, the sisters, love the republic as well as their husbands or sons or brothers? Is there any doubt about that? Does any man claim that, in whatever other respect he may excel woman, in capacity of affection she is not his superior? Man values the objects of his affections for the dignity and comfort they can bestow upon him. Woman values herself only for the comfort which she can be to the object of her affections.

Then in regard to the capacity to judge of character, is not that woman's peculiar forte and characteristic and trait? How often does it happen that the husband receives his word of warning from the wife, or a brother from the sister, in regard to the character of a person in whom he is likely to place undue confidence?

The object of the republic is not strength, not wealth, not glory, not empire—it is the aggregate worth of the people. It is personal, not material. You value your neighbor not for his money, not for his physical strength, not for his genius, but for the qualities of courage, generosity, love, honor, truth; and you value your state just so far as it is an aggregate of persons possessing these qualities and just so far as it is the means to promote and increase them.

Now, will anybody deny that it is women on whom we depend to educate and foster the moral qualities of children and who possess the faculty of fostering and educating children so largely that it is admitted that it is rarely a child who loses his mother in early life grows up possessing them? The loss of a father is unimportant in comparison with that of a mother, who instills all these qualities into a child. Will anybody deny that she is equally capable with the husband and father in determining what measures and what policy in the state will result in the increase and promotion of these qualities in the aggregate of families and individuals that go to make up the republic?

So I say, judging by these tests—and no other or better test has ever been stated by philosopher, statesman or jurist—that the womanhood of America should have its choice recognized and weighed just as that of American manhood is recognized and weighed in governing the state.

It is said that there are many offices in the state for which woman is unfit. If this be so, all you have to do is not to elect her to them when she has the ballot. "What sort of chief justice would you get if you had a woman on the bench?" That is a question which is put as a difficult and an impossible question to answer. A great part of my life has been spent in studying and watching the administration of justice in this commonwealth and trying to learn, if I could, something of the qualities which fit men to take a part in the administration of justice, and I declare that the longer I live the more thoroughly I am convinced of the superiority in arriving at the truth of what we call the intuitive and instinctive judgment, which is the faculty of women, over the logical method, which is the quality of the masculine intellect. The training and discipline our lawyers go through, in my judgment, tend after a time to unfit a man for an accurate determination upon a fact. The value which you place upon the institution of the jury is not merely or chiefly because the judge is not supposed to be as honest or as impartial or as just as the 12 jurymen, but it is because the experience of men has found that the gift of the practical man who looks into the witness' face, though he can never tell you why he believes or disbelieves him, is often better than all the reasoning of a Parsons or a Marshall in getting at the truth.

Then it is said that the exercise of this function of voting by the women will destroy her purity and innocence, that it will expose her to the mob and the ruffianism and vice of great cities. We are asked how we would like to have our wives and daughters go down to the Battery in New York and try to put their ballots in the midst of one of those crowds through a hole in the shutter of a beershop. I do not see that this method of voting which men have after their own fashion adopted is the essential thing. I think the ingenuity of the Yankee nation can contrive methods enough of voting rather than go down in those crowds and put their votes through the window of a New York beershop.

No, my friends, this is prejudice and not reason with which we are contending. We must carry out our republicanism to its logical results. Women must stand by your side in the church, equals, or the church must go back to the time of the inquisition. She must stand by your side in the family, or you must go back to the time when she was a companion only for the beast that was in you. She must stand by your side in the school or college, or you must go back to the days of the Jesuit school and the monastery. She must stand by your side an equal in the states, or you must go back or, what is worse than going back, you must remain where you are.

I believe that every step in human civilization has been marked by the nearer approach of woman to her just and equal place of influence in the state. I believe that every such approach has at some time purified the home and rendered womanhood sweeter and more feminine. Everywhere she has "moved with us to our good." No nation, no city, no household, ever took a lofty place where the influence of woman did not inspire it with the heroic temper. And when she takes this new and final step, bringing to the service of the state her purity, her devotion, her insight, her faith, she will not only ennoble the state, but will elevate also

ABOUT SLEEP WALKERS.

How Two of Them Were Cured of the Habit Before It Had Become Unalterably Fixed.

Somnambulism is a phenomenon that has not been solved, either its cause or cure, and the stories related about sleep walkers are never ending. Usually the eyes are wide open, but it is frequently agreed that the somnambulist cannot see at those times.

A gentleman relates that when he was a young man an acquaintance was badly given to the habit, and he would often go out into the yard and wander about. One night a number of his friends lay in ambush for him just to watch his operations. By and by the door opened in a business-like way and out came the young man. He went straightway across the street into a lot where there was a nut tree and proceeded to pick up nuts and put them in a pile. A few moments at this task, then he started toward the house. In getting over the fence he made a misstep and fell. This awakened him, and while he was in the first act of collecting his thoughts he saw in the darkness the young men who were watching him. Just at that time their appearance so startled him that he fled like a deer. The circumstance was so impressed upon his mind that he never afterward indulged in the habit.

Another gentleman tells an amusing incident that happened in his early life, when he was not more than six years old. He often found himself at the far end of the long, unfinished chamber where he slept, and usually could not awake sufficiently to find his way to bed again, so one or the other of his parents would hear him crying and come to his rescue. Naturally they got a little tired of the bother and no one should be blamed for what followed. As stated, the chamber was an unfinished one, and in place of the guard rail at the danger end of the stairway a number of barrels had been placed. When the night's somnambulistic tour culminated that left a lasting impression on his mind, as well as his body—he was near those barrels and it seemed had been struggling to get through between them when he must surely have been killed by falling down the stairs. The noise aroused the parents, and on this memorable occasion the father visited the chamber and just in time to save the lad from getting through. He was on his hands and knees pushing through and the opportunity for administering the usual punishment of those days could not have been better arranged to order. "Talk about spanking," said the relator; "why, that must have been 40 years and more ago, but I can feel the sting as if it was last night! But it cured me, you may be sure."—Golden Days.

THE SCISSORS PUZZLE.

It Requires Time, Patience and Ingenuity to Work It Out, But Is Very Entertaining.

Here's a new kind of puzzle, one that will afford many hours of amusement, and at the same time tax the ingenuity of those who make it or guess it. Draw the picture of a pair of shears, putting the numerals from 1 to 5 at the points shown in the diagram. Divide the blades and handles into sections, as shown there, and the plan of the puzzle is ready.

HOW TO DIVIDE THE SHEARS.

There should be 37 spaces in all. Each one of the spaces is to be filled with a letter, so that words can be spelled from the numbers. The two words from 1-3 and 2-3 will, of course, end with the same letter, which is the first letter of the two words running from 3-4 to 3-5. The way to offer the puzzle is this: There are 2a, 2b, 2c, 8e, 1f, 2g, 2h, 3i, 1k, 4n, 1o, 1 p, 1r, 3t, 1u, 1v, 1x, 2y in the spaces. Arrange them so that 1-2 is used in weighing; 2-3 is necessary for religion; 3-5 is necessary to success in all undertakings; 3-4 is another word for hope; 5-5 is the age of greatest promise; 4-4 is the part of intelligent men. If the letters have been arranged correctly, you will read 1-3, balance; 2-3, believe; 3-5, energy; 3-4, expect; 5-5, youthful; 4-4, thinking. To make new puzzles for your friends, work backward from words with the proper number of letters to fill the spaces, and describe them so that they are guessable. The necessity for having two words end with the same letter that begins two others, of the proper number of letters, will afford endless enjoyment.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

Sachem's Plain.

In 1642 a battle occurred on this plain, located near Norwich, Conn., between the Narragansetts and Mohegans. Miantonomoh, the chief of the Narragansetts, after whom one of our war vessels is named, fell mortally wounded during action, and in 1842 a granite monument was erected to his memory.

A BAD COINCIDENCE.

The Operator Sorry That He Rushed Across the Street with the Message.

"The strangest thing that ever happened to me," said the old operator, who was in the reminiscent mood, according to the Detroit Free Press, "occurred a good many years ago, when I was a young man holding down a night office in a little town in the west. I was half asleep one night when I was called to the key to receive a rush message. I took it off the wire without realizing what it meant, as a man will do at times when half asleep. But when I glanced at what I had put down I saw that it read: 'If you wish to see your brother alive you will have to come immediately.' The message came from San Francisco, and was addressed to an old man who lived across the street from the station, so I put on my hat and went over and delivered it, seeing that it was important that he should have it at once.

"The old man caught the train that left at midnight. While he was buying his ticket he told me that the message referred to his brother who had left home 20 years before, and from whom he had heard nothing during all that time.

"The next night a party called and asked if there were any messages for him, giving the same name as the old man who had left the night before. He must have noticed that I looked at him rather blankly, for he went on to explain that he had a brother in California who was sick, and that he was anxious to hear from him.

"Well, it turned out that the message that I had received the night before was intended for him. He was a stranger in the town, and chanced to bear the same name as the old man whom I had sent on a wild-goose chase across the continent. Fortunately for me, I was transferred to another town before the old man got back. That is all there is to the story, except that it is true."

WOMEN'S BRAINS.

They Shall Mutely Testify That They Have Lived—An Exploded Theory.

Women have brains and they have proved it. They have demonstrated that they are in commendable, appreciative working order, says Harper's Bazar. As a substance they have upheld a theory.

But this is not all. Once when men were weighing brains—that is, of course, dead men's brains—and were expressing congratulatory "Ohs" and "Ahs" with the dignity of masculine superiority, the women dug up the brain of a poor old washerwoman and, lo, it weighed the same as Daniel Webster's brain! That exploded the theory in regard to weight in its relation to quality. Calves' brains are valued by the pound.

But the end is not yet. Women demand recognition for their brain quality, so now they bequeath their brains to colleges that are making collections. Cornell leads in this idea, and Helen H. Gardiner's and Elizabeth Cady Stanton's brains are promised as soon as their present owners are through with them. In the future stone and water will not be the only substance upon which to depend for the perpetuation of merits and demerits—indeed, not while there are shelves in Cornell on which to place jars of alcohol labeled with names and containing the evidence that women have once thought thoughts. It will be a legacy of comparative value, of course, but what values are not comparative? Women's brains shall testify that they have lived.

STAY-AT-HOMES.

French and Chinese Lead the Nations of the World in This Respect.

Among westerns the French and among orientals the Chinese are the most stay-at-home nations of the world. Frenchmen are met with in all parts of the world, but their thoughts are always turning toward the happy days when they can once more return to La Belle France and breathe the air of the boulevards. The Frenchman never willfully expatriates himself for life. The Chinaman, on the other hand, is a stay-at-home by religion. He thinks that his hope of salvation depends upon ending his days in the Celestial empire, and he is careful to provide that if he dies in a foreign land his coffin with his remains shall be sent back to China. The frightful overpopulation of the Chinese empire has driven Chinamen into all quarters of the world, especially to Australia, but they all hope to return to their own land. The Hindu loses caste if he leaves his native country, but he is a member of a religion rather than of a race, and as a set-off the Mohammedans, who form a very large proportion of the Indian empire, are the most persistent pilgrims on the face of the earth.

In the Physiology Class.

The Bangor Commercial would have its readers believe that this incident happened in a Bangor grammar school: At a recent monthly examination one of the questions in physiology was: "What is the patella or knee pan?" The answer of one boy was as follows: "The patellas or knee pants is trousers, which extend from the waste to the knee, and were worn by grown up men during George Washington's administration. They are not worn by men in the present Time except bicycle riders and men who play golf, but are only worn by small Boys. Every Boy is glad when he is old enough to take off his patellas or knee pants and go into long pants which extend from the waste to the ankel."

The Government Weather Bureau at Washington

The Annual Reports Show Wonderful Accomplishments During the Past Twenty Years

THE government buildings at Washington are filled with valuable reports. This is true of all departments of the government service, and some of these reports date back to the time of the formation of the government. But among them all none are more interesting or instructive than the annual reports of the weather bureau, which now comprise a most creditable array of volumes, filled with interesting and valuable information regarding the administration of the work and the latest results of scientific investigations. Therein one may find an account of the gradual growth of the service; a description of all the severe storms experienced since 1870, whether cyclones, hurricanes, or tornadoes, together with marvelous incidents in the history of the latter destructive agents; statistics of the wreckage of vessels on the lakes and on the seaboard, showing a remarkable lowering of the percentages of wrecks in consequence of the obedience of navigators to the storm warnings; descriptions of the growing dependence of the railroads and other public carriers upon the information regarding heavy snowstorms, and floods, which endanger all perishable products during transportation; data of the gradual improvement on the part of small farmers and great agriculturists in the care of their stuffs in consequence of the frost warnings and the increased knowledge of the effect of seasons and climate upon the crops; also facts showing the almost complete reliance of the cotton, rice, corn, wheat and raisin industries upon the information regarding normal or abnormal temperatures and rainfall. There will also be found in these reports a description of the instrumental equipment of the meteorological stations, with the gradual evolution of self-registering apparatus of all kinds by means of electrical attachments, including barometers, thermometers; humidity, sunshine and cloud recorders; anemometers and vanes for the force and direction of the wind; self-measuring rain gauges, and kite and cloud-height apparatus of various kinds. Many of the self-registering pieces of apparatus display the greatest mechanical ingenuity in the devices employed, and their resulting records agree so closely with direct observations on the standard instruments as to be perfectly acceptable within the limits of accuracy required in current observations.

The practicability of such a service of course depends upon the telegraph for its efficiency in promptly collecting the observations taken simultaneously on the Atlantic and Pacific coasts, on the lakes and the Gulf of Mexico, and through the Rocky mountain region and the central valleys. The magnificent result of receiving at Washington, D. C., and at all the larger cities of the country at the same time the complete records from 50 stations within an hour after the observations are made is testimony to the skill and experience of the electricians of the weather bureau and the telegraph companies. This result depends upon special arrangements which have been slowly brought to perfection. The first of these arrangements is the cooperation of the telegraph lines, by which special wires are devoted to the government service during certain hours of the day, when the weather messages take precedence of all private dispatches; in 1870 there were six telegraph companies concerned in transmitting weather messages, but these have all been merged into one; in 1871 there was some controversy as to the financial terms of the telegraph service, but it was settled by the fixing of rates through the postmaster general, and later congress vested in the secretary of agriculture the power to make contracts with the telegraph companies; also to prescribe the precedence of all government messages. The second arrangement consists in the establishment of certain telegraph circuits, including groups of cities in an extensive territory, so regulated that the same message is recorded simultaneously at all the stations on the circuit; by an ingenious arrangement of the order of transmission of the circuit messages not only Washington, D. C., but many other cities have the exact weather records furnished for the hour of the observations; this has become quite necessary, because at many of the large cities weather maps are constructed and printed similar to the one in Washington, D. C., and which, though the latter is somewhat larger and more complete, practically contain the same important information; from many local centers the Washington forecast and the map itself are distributed to an enormous population and displayed in all the most important places of business and in the schools and private institutions. The third arrangement required was a method of reducing the expense of telegraphic messages to a minimum, since the actual cost of transmitting so many million words per year is an exceedingly heavy item; this has been done by constructing a compact and ingenious cipher code which can be readily translated, and in which five or six words give all the data which would otherwise require 25 or 30 words; the bill for telegrams alone under this cipher code is about $180,000 annually, and it may be readily inferred how great is the saving to the public in this direction.

Furthermore, the annual reports contain a complete statistical statement of all the important meteorological records made at the telegraphing stations, compiled so as to give the normal values of the pressure, temperature, precipitation, and wind movements. These statements have been continued from year to year in the same form, and it is now proposed to combine them into a complete scheme of normals based upon the work of the past quarter of a century. If such normals can be formed at intervals of 25 years, many questions regarding the long-range variations of the climate and weather will be finally answered for the benefit of future generations.

The discovery of the laws affecting the seasonal changes would certainly be of such benefit to mankind, in the complex civilization upon which modern life is entering, as to justify the expense and the patient labor involved in such a contribution from each generation to its successor. The crude method of tilling the soil common in these days will certainly give way to an exact economical procedure, based largely upon the result of meteorological research, increasing in precision with the lapse of time. There already exists in the archives of the weather bureau an immense quantity of valuable material calculated to serve these purposes. The great mass of weather observations, the collection of which is characteristic of this branch of science, is being systematically studied and condensed year by year in the records division, so that, before the original records are placed in the fireproof vaults, the central facts are extracted and appear annually in the report of the chief of the bureau.

The expert investigator must be intrusted with the work of discussing the results in special researches, and the annual report contains a series of valuable papers drawn up on these lines. Thus, there have been published papers on the laws of storms; the physical processes in the air; the climatic conditions; the relation of crops to the weather; atmospheric electricity; terrestrial and solar magnetism; auroras; eclipses of the sun; Ferrel's treatises; Langley's researches on the solar constants; Abbe's translations; instruments and cloud studies; Bigelow's reports on magnetism, storm tracks, and the international cloud observations; a series of professional papers containing reduction tables in all branches of the subject; scientific notices; and a set of scientific bulletins on a variety of subjects. The annual reports also contain the results of the great work of the international simultaneous observations over the northern hemisphere, which were inaugurated by Gen. Myer and published from January 1, 1875, to June 30, 1889. This vast series of observations has been compiled in a set of valuable charts and distributed in recent years, but it is believed that too little research work has been done to bring out the laws which are contained within these records. There is also an account of the international polar expeditions of 1882-83, when Gen. Greely had charge of the American expedition to Fort Conger and Lieut. Ray of that to Point Barrow.

S. D. DRAKE'S PLANS.

He Will Devote His Time Hereafter to Developing Dewey Park and Woodland Park.

A reporter of The Press attended the band concert given by Drake's Zouave Band at Dewey Park, last Saturday afternoon, and found a large and appreciative audience, among which were bankers, lawyers, editors and business men and a number of ladies from Plainfield, Westfield, Elizabeth, Bound Brook and other suburban towns. The Park is a beautiful piece of woodland occupying about six acres, one mile west of Plainfield, and is an ideal spot for picnics, concerts and public gatherings, being accessible by trolley. The reporter said to Silas D. Drake, who is the founder of Dewey Park: "Mr. Drake you no doubt count this another happy day in your life."

Mr. Drake replied that he felt honored to think that so many people had visited Dewey Park to attend the first band concert, particularly as it was only about ten days ago that it was dicided to give these concerts. "Mr. Drake," said the reporter, "Since you have brought this Dewey Park enterprise to a successful issue, and are known to be full of original ideas, what project have you in mind to spring next."

"My dear reporter, I wish to say that my ambition is fully satisfied now since I have succeeded in making Dewey Park possible, and I shall now rest on my laurels. In 1890 I secured 100 acres between Elizabeth and Roselle and founded the town of Lorraine, which shows for itself with its many beautiful houses, church and business places. After that I was the prime mover in building the Drake Opera House in Elizabeth. In 1895 I saw a great future for the property lying west of Dunellen and I secured 300 acres where Lincoln now stands, and it worked like a charm as long as I had the management of it.

"A little over a year ago I came to Plainfield, and secured the Denton Nursery, of thirty acres, now known as Woodland Park, which is recognized as an ideal section for those seeking homes in restricted property. Less than one year ago I secured 110 acres of land one mile west of Dunellen and named it Dewey Park. While it may look easy to many to see these vast enterprises carried out, it is no small task to secure the capital to pay for these properties, and I have never yet failed in securing the necessary capital to carry out an enterprise that I decided to undertake. I shall ever feel grateful for the confidence my friends have had in investing in my enterprises and I now propose devoting my time in locating factories at Dewey Park and in bringing out and developing Woodland Park and Dewey Park by offering home seekers rare chances of securing homes within their means. I am proud of the work that I am engaged in from the fact that while I act as a pioneer in opening up these waste places, it opens up a territory that will mean in the near future, the making of the greater Plainfield.

"I also feel proud of the fact that I have been in active business for 36 years, and that I have been successful, when so many have failed and in doing so have injured their best friends. One secret of my success is the fact that I have secured property in the line of all improvements at farm land prices, and with the immediate enhanced value, investors and home seekers are protected.

"While I have had many friends who have had faith and confidence in my operations. There have been many wooden men, who have thrown cold water on my efforts, and if I take up any other work in the near future, it will be to write a book and give the wooden man a prominent place. The foundation of my success rests in doing the right thing in the right way at the right time, and keeping everlastingly at it. I promise that from this date a very interesting programme will be given the public from week to week until snow flies at Dewey Park, such as picnics, political gatherings, camp meetings, band concerts, etc."

FIVE MILLION MEN.

That Is the Number Which China Could Put in the Field.

Why Veteran European Commanders Shake Their Heads Over the Question of Invading the Interior of the Empire.

The stiff fight put up by the Chinese forces about Peking and Tientsin, whether by Boxers or the regular troops, has opened the eyes of European and American writers, who, remembering the ease with which "Chinese Gordon" marched across the empire with less than 10,000 men, had imagined that the allied armies would have an equally easy time. We are now awakening to the fact that since the Gordon invasion German, Japanese and Russian officers, who have been timely employed drilling the natives have made good fighters out of the fanatics—always easy to do if you know the trick. In consequence of this the veteran commanders in charge of the various contingents of the powers on the scene are moving with great caution. If the few beleaguered foreigners in the coast cities can be saved, they will consider themselves exceedingly fortunate, while as to the proposal of an invasion of the interior the generals are dubiously shaking their heads.

The subjugation of the Chinese empire is not a matter of a moment, even if the powers come to any certain agreement as to apportionment and action. The empire will put up a good fight, and is overwhelmingly the stronger in point of numbers. Supposing that the Chinese empire armed in the same proportion as do other states, the army of the yellow men would be incomparably the largest in the eastern hemisphere. The relative strength of European armies, on a peace footing, Russia stands first; then come France, Germany, Austria, Italy, and, finally, the tiny standing army of England. Above them all towers the Yellow Giant—symbolizing an army of no less than 5,000,000, or the population of London. Fancy 5,000,000 fighting men! The idea is appalling. This is the size of the army which China would possess if she armed her population in the same proportion as do the powers. In France there is one soldier to every 80 inhabitants. A similar proportion in China gives the above.

IN FULL DRESS UNIFORM.
(A Chinese General of Division and His Chief of Staff.)

As for the United States our forces available in that quarter are insignificant. Under no conditions could we amass for an invasion such hosts as the European powers would assemble, and no matter how great the need, we could not compete alone with either England or Russia in any dispute over the division of the spoils.

Happily, the Chinese are not a warlike nation, as the pitiable performances before the redoubtable "Boxers" testify at the present time, repeating the lesson of the Chino-Japanese war. Mr. Harold Gorst, an English war correspondent of note, in his informing book on "China" refers to the Mongolian "army" as "a mere disordered rabble, who took to their heels and scarcely paused to fire a few pebbles out of their antiquated match-locks." This does not sound very formidable, and when we remember that the celestial soldier is in a chronic state of almost mutinous discontent, by reason of very much deferred pay, our contempt for the pigtailed heathen as a fighter becomes intensified. The Chinese army is really composed of peasants and laborers, who give their spare moments—if they have any—to military exercises. . . A thorough drill is under these circumstances out of the question, and the exercises which are indulged in are better calculated to develop a body of muscular athletes than an army of trained soldiers. Playing catch with heavy stones, shooting arrows at straw dummies, marching on parade, blowing calls and signals, bawling words of command, are the chief items of drill in the Chinese army. There is little target practice, because it is considered a waste of money to expend powder and shot in times of peace.

Yet, despite lack of discipline, the teeming millions of China, if armed, would be more formidable than at first sight appears, and recent events have proved that they are learning some formidable tricks from their teachers.

Sleep Between the Acts.

Dramas played in India generally require about seven days for their performance. The curtain goes up at 9 o'clock in the evening and remains hoisted until next morning. People who attend the play take their beds with them and enjoy a good, long sleep between the acts. The favorite pieces presented show the exploits of some gods. No price is charged for admission.

GOOD ORGANIZATION G. O. P.'S STRONG POINT

Republicans Expect to Keep the State in Line for McKinley and Roosevelt.

DEMOCRATS TO WORK HARD

THEY HOPE TO KEEP REPUBLICAN MAJORITY DOWN.

Even Republicans do Not Anticipate Duplicating the Majority Given Four Years Ago—Democrats in Better Shape.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Trenton, July 31.—A study of the vote for President in New Jersey four yours ago shows that over 40,000 Democrats must have cast their ballots for McKinley and Hobart. The Republican plurality then was 87,692. The total Republican vote was 221,367, and the Democratic, 133,675. Palmer and Buckner, on the gold ticket, received a total of 6,373; the Prohibition candidates, 5,614, and the Social-Labor, 3,695. Essex county gave the largest Republican majority, 22,078; Camden came next with 10,015. The only counties giving Democratic majorities were Hunterdon, 728, and Warren, 950.

It will be seen that in these figures even the good old Democratic county of Hudson went over to the enemy by a most decisive and phenomenal vote. And other Democratic counties were also recorded on that side, such as Monmouth, Middlesex, Sussex, Bergen and Somerset. At least up to that time all of those counties were considered Democratic, but since then most of them have apparently joined the Republican column. In over a quarter of a century this was the first real disruption that occurred in the Democratic party of New Jersey.

Even the most ardent Republican does not expect such a large vote for his ticket in this Presidential campaign, notwithstanding the defection of a large portion of the gold Democrats, as was recorded four years ago. Unless there is a landslide in favor of the party in power, McKinley's majority is not likely to go above 30,000. Some conservative Republicans make that prediction at the present time, but qualify it by saying that as the campaign progresses changes may occur that will either increase or decrease that majority.

The Democrats are in hope that the National leaders of their party will pay attention to the campaign in this State at the proper time and give the workers some encouragement by supplying sinews of war and eloquent speakers. With a red-hot campaign they say that if they can not carry the State they will be able to give the Republicans a good scare and make them work the harder, thus diverting their attention from other States and particularly those which are considered doubtful. And then by receiving such encouragement the Democratic leaders say they might stand a chance of gaining one or two Congressmen and perhaps elect a majority in the Legislature.

Still it is well to remember that the party was in even a worse condition in 1896 and then it polled 133,675 votes and that despite the great popularity of Mr. Hobart, the Republican candidate for Vice-President. The Republican majority of 87,692 was phenomenal of course, and the impression was then conveyed that the old party had received such a blow as to disable it for many years to come. The old leaders themselves felt that a miracle would be required to place the party on its feet again and the prospect for a rehabilitation was to their mind very remote. But lo and behold, in the Gubernatorial campaign of two years later the defeated Democracy waged a battle which came near electing its candidate for the Executive chair, weak though he was in many respects, and despite the great popularity of Foster M. Voorhees, the Republican nominee. The Republican majority then was only 5,499, a great falling off indeed in the brief period of two years from 87,692. This close vote at an election in which State issues alone were uppermost proved that the great majority of those Democrats who had voted for McKinley were willing to return to the party fold.

The Republican State committee is composed of campaigners of wealth, influence and experience. At its head is Franklin Murphy, who is in love with politics and who has leisure time enough to devote to the thorough running of campaigns. Ever since he has held the position of chairman of the committee he has met with a round of success which, perhaps, has never been equaled by any of his predeces-

MISSED HIS CHICKENS.

When Patrick Cahill Looked for Them in John Ward's Coop the Latter Resented the Intrusion With Blows.

There has always been friendly feelings between the two families of Patrick Cahill and John Ward, who live on West Fourth street, near Rock avenue, until a few days ago the former missed some chickens. Cahill was not angry then, but he wished to satisfy his curiousity that the missing fowls were not among those belonging to Ward.

Yesterday he proceeded to the Ward residence and informed Mrs. Ward of his purpose. She protested but to no avail. Patrick looked, but while he was doing so Mrs. Ward dispatched a message to the Pond Tool Works, where her husband works, and informed him of Cahill's doings. He immediately hastened home and going to Cahill's house called him out and struck him in the face, as Cahill says, several times. The latter went to Justice Storms, of New Market, and swore out a warrant for Ward's arrest. He will be given a hearing before the justice today.

CAME BY TROLLEY.

New Brunswick Endeavorers Paid a Visit to Trinity Church and Took Part in the Meeting.

The Christian Endeavor Society of Trinity Reformed church held its regular consecration service last evening, at which time a delegation of about thirty Endeavorers from the First Reformed church, New Brunswick, came to Plainfield by trolley and attended the service. The visitors arrived in this city at a little after 8 o'clock, and as they passed through Front street they sang familiar hymns. They were given a cordial welcome at Trinity church, and after the roll-call the meeting was thrown open. A number of the visitors took part making the service one of special interest to all.

The social committee from the society had been at work and after the meeting refreshments were served and a a general social time was enjoyed. The visitors left on the 10:30 o'clock trolley after thanking the Trinity members for their cordial hospitality.

Bound Brookers Going Along.

Inasmuch as the various Sunday-schools of Bound Brook have decided to dispense with the annual combined excursion to Asbury Park, the Congregational church and Sunday-school has arranged to unite with the M. E. churches of Plainfield and Dunellen next Thursday when they will go to Asbury Park. It will be necessary for the Bound Brook people to reach Dunellen before 7:36 o'clock in the morning, as that is the hour the train will leave Dunellen. The train will leave this city at 8 o'clock, and will not stop at Clinton or Grant avenues in the morning. Returning the train will leave Asbury Park at 6:10 o'clock, and will stop at Clinton and Grant avenues. The Bound Brook people will have to return by another train or trolley.

Chemical Engine Repainted.

The wheels to the chemical engine belonging to the Plainfield fire department, have peen repainted without stopping the use of the engine. There are two extra wheels with the engine and they are substituted while the others were painted two at a time. In a short time, however, the engine will be temporarily laid off from active duty while it is repainted and varnished and the working parts given a thorough overhauling. This is the first time that the chemical engine will have been off duty since it was purchased by the city.

Important Bridge Work.

The Pond Tool Works is playing an important part in the construction of the new East River bridge. They are at present planing and finishing off eight of the steel cable anchors, and more are expected. The castings are not made here, but are given the finishing touches previous to their being placed on the bridge. They weigh sixteen tons each when completed and are to be placed on the piers.

Mountain Avenue Improved.

Mountain avenue has been resurfaced from Somerset street clear through to Scotch Plains. Part of the distance the improvement was hardly needed, as the roadbed was still in fair condition. There were some bad spots in it, however. At present the top dressing of fine stone needs to be rolled in, and that thoroughfare is consequently dodged by wheelmen.

At Fresh Air Camp.

The Christian Endeavor Society of the First Presbyterian church will proceed in a body by trolley tonight to the Westfield Baby Camp. The start will be made from Watchung avenue at 7 o'clock.

CONGRESSMAN DALY DIES SUDDENLY.

He was Stricken with Apoplexy at Far Rockaway, L. I., Early This Morning.

A PROMINENT JERSEYMAN.

SERVED IN STATE LEGISLATURE FOR MANY YEARS.

Active and Influential in the Democratic Party, and Especially Prominent at Present—Sketch of His Life.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Far Rockaway, July 31—Congressman William S. Daly, of Hudson county, died of apoplexy here early this morning. The Congressman left his home, in Hoboken, last night for a trip to the seashore, intending to return at midnight. He missed the last train and went to a hotel where he was stricken.

Congressman Daly was born in 1851, in Jersey City, and he has always resided within the limits of Hudson county. His early education was acquired in Public School No. 1, in Jersey City, and among his schoolmates were some who have since become prominent, as, for instance, Mayor Wanser, Samuel D. Dickinson, City Treasurer of Jersey City, and the late City Clerk John E. Scott. At the age of fourteen he went to work in Cory's iron foundry as an apprentice, and later he was employed in the foundry of the Erie Railroad Company and at Blackmore's. Among his shopmates in Blackmore's was Mayor Fagan, of Hoboken. But the legal profession had always offered an attractive field to Mr. Daly and in 1870 he entered the office of Blair & Ransom in Jersey City. Four years later he was admitted to the bar as an attorney, and later he was made counsellor.

Mr. Daly entered upon the practice of law with the tact and energy peculiar to self-made men. He has practiced law in all the courts of the State and has represented the defense im more capital cases than any lawyer in the State, and now stands in the front rank of criminal lawyers in the State of New Jersey.

In appreciation of his legal ability President Cleveland, during his first term, appointed Mr. Daly Assistant United States District Attorney, and this office he held for three years, handing in his resignation to an incoming administration. In 1888 he was made alternate delegate to the National Democratic Convention at St. Louis, and again in 1892 to the Chicago Convention. In 1881 he was urged to accept the nomination for member of the House of Assembly from the Eighth District of Hudson county, and was elected. This office he resigned upon his election to the Senate in 1892.

Mr. Daly was nominated for Congress in the Hudson county district in 1898, and though the district went Republican two years before that Mr. Daily was elected by a big majority. He has served with credit in Washington, and was assured of renomination and probably re-election this year.

For the past ten years Mr. Daly has been prominent in party affairs, and of late had been looked upon as one of the leaders of the New Jersey Democracy. At the Kansas City convention he made quite a reputation and was bound to be prominent in the Presidential campaign. His death will be a serious loss to the New Jersey Democrats.

Mr. Daly was well-known in Plainfield, where he has spoken many times. Mr. Daly and James E. Martine were great personal friends and the latter was shocked at the news of the sudden death of the Congressman.

Bridge Repaired.

As a result of a conference between the bridge committees of the Freeholders of Union and Somerset counties the passage for pedestrains has been replanked. The planking in the carriage way was only recently renewed.

Promoted to Conductor.

Frank O. Webster, of 74 Duer street, for a long time baggagemaster on one of the Royal Blue Line trains has been promoted to conductor, and is now in charge of a Long Branch train.

Mrs. L. H. Everitt, of Park avenue, who has been stopping at Lynn, Mass., has gone to West Newbury for the remsinder of the summer.

NO MORE NEW OPEN CARS

TROLLEY COMPANY WILL HAVE NEW BOX CARS, THOUGH.

Part of Them will be Here by September 1st, and the Rest by Time Cold Weather Comes.

There will be no more new open cars on the line of the Westfield and Elizabeth Street Railway Company this season. Last winter ten of the modern double truck open cats were ordered for use on the main line between Plainfield and Elizabeth. Nearly a month ago five of these cars were delivered. Four were put on the line between Picton and Boynton Beach as the company was short of proper cars on that branch. The other one has been used principally on the short line connecting Westfield junction with Picton, but occasionally make runs over the main line.

Superintendent Adelmann is authority for the statement that the trolley company has revoked the remainder of its order and is going to have ten new double truck box cars for use in cold weather and on stormy days. It is intended to have a complete set of motors for the summer and for the winter equipment.

Five of the new double truck box cars are expected here by September 1st and possibly before. The remainder will be on hand, it is stated, before the cold weather begins. The trolley company claims that last season's experiences with the "Pneumonia Expresses" will not be repeated this fall and winter.

It is expected that the Westfield and Elizabeth Company will soon establish another car house, probably at Westfield, where the cars can be stored. When the new cars arrive the company will be utterly unable to house them all together with the present equipment of the road.

WON'T TELL THE PRICE.

BOROUGH BOARD OF EDUCATION AWARD THE COAL CONTRACT.

Fred J. Harris the Successful Bidder—Somerset Street Schoolhouse Improvements to be Started Soon.

The Borough Board of Education met last evening in regular session chiefly for the purpose of receiving and opening bids for the furnishing of coal for the coming fall and winter. There were a number of bids received, and after due consideration the contract was awarded to Fred J. Harris, of South Second street. The amount to be furnished will be about 150 tons, of which about 100 tons will be the large size, and the balance in buckwheat or pea. The Board is not willing at this time that the price which they are to pay for the coal shall be made public.

The question of installing the new heating and ventilating apparatus in the Somerset street school was discussed, and just as soon as possible the work will be started. The Wills Heating and Ventilating Company, of New Jersey, has the contract for the work. No doubt the Board will order the present closets taken out of the Watchung school and a more sanitary apparatus installed. It will be remembered that the Board of Health has decided that the present system is dangerous and unhealthy, and they will probably insist on a change.

REBUILDING BRIDGE.

Central Railroad Commenced Work Yesterday Strengthening Bridge Over Newark Bay.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Elizabeth, July 31—The work of practically rebuilding the long Jersey Central Railroad bridge that spans Newark Bay, from Elizabethport to Bergen Point, began yesterday morning. The pile-drivers and a big force of men are engaged on the job, which will take the remainder of the year to complete. All the Western Union poles and wires which were on the bridge have been taken down, and the wires, together with the railroad company's wires, have been placed in two cables, which are laid along the centre of the bridge under the ties, to which the cables are bolted. There are forty-three wires in one cable and thirty-one in the other. The work of rebuilding it will be done in sections, so as not to interfere with the running of trains. A telegraph office, in charge of an operator from the Elizabeth station, has been opened on the bridge, so as to take all necessary precautions against accidents while the work is in progress. The job has been started at the Elizabethport terminus of the bridge, the eastbound track for some hundreds of feet being cut out. The piling in some parts of the old bridge is in bad condition, being nearly rotted away, and the work of replacing it with new material could no longer be delayed.

YOUNG GIRL TRIED TO END HER LIFE.

Belle VanNest, Sixteen Years Old, Drank Nearly an Ounce of Laudanum Last Night.

"I WANTED TO DIE," SHE SAID

FOUND IN A SOMERSET STREET DOORWAY NEAR MIDNIGHT.

Drs. Pittis and Clawson Worked Over Her for Four Hours Before She Was Out of Danger—Now Confined to Her Home.

With no other apparent reason but that she wanted to die, as she said, Belle VanNest, a girl not not yet 17 years old, attempted to commit suicide last night by drinking nearly an ounce of laudanum, and but for her timely discovery and subsequent hard work on the part of two physicians she would have been successful. She was brought to Dr. Pittis' office about 11:30 last night by Fred Meeker, a young man living on Pearl street, who stated that he found her seated in a doorway in the Thorn block on Somerset street. He saw that something was the matter with the girl and that she was in need of a physician. The nearly empty bottle by her side told at a glance the cause of her condition.

Dr. Pittis immediately applied a stomach-pump, but the deadly drug had already made considerable headway and it was of little use. The laudanum had been taken at least an hour before her discovery. Dr. Pittis then called Dr. Clawson and they decided the girl should be moved, if possible, to her home on Monroe avenue. Being unable to convey her in a carriage, for fear of her falling asleep, and as the walk was too far, she was taken to the home of her uncle, Lewis VanNest, on Duer street. She was still in a precarious condition and it required every effort on the part of the physicians to keep her from falling into a deathly sleep.

From midnight until 4 o'clock this morning both doctors walked her about the lawn, never leaving her. She drank at least two quarts of strong coffee between times.

When at last she recovered sufficiently to speak, she was questioned by her aunt as to the cause of her rash act, and she replied:

"I wanted to die; what made you wake me up? I want to go to sleep."

Further questioning failed to reveal her true reason as she refused to say anything else.

She was taken to her home in a carriage about 8 o'clock by her father, George VanNest, and placed in bed. She is not allowed to sleep any length of time as the danger is by no means passed as yet. It will be three days before the effects of the laudanum wears off.

Belle, who is only sixteen years old, has always resided with her parents, neither one of whom can assign any reason for her wanting to die as she has always seemed content with her home surroundings. This is not the first time she has taken laudanum as she drank some about a week ago while suffering from some ailment. The nearly-empty bottle from last night is in the possession of Dr. Pittis and bears the label of a local druggist.

CRANFORD SCHOOL TROUBLE.

Effort Made in School Board Not to Re-Engage a Principal.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Cranford, July 31—The Cranford Board of Education held a lively meeting at the Grant schoolhouse Saturday evening last, when a resolution of Trustee Warner caused red hot discussion. Mr. Warner's resolution was to the effect that the Board reconsider its action at the last meeting in re engaging Supervising Principal Richard E. Clement for another year.

Principal Clement's acceptance was received in writing by the Board previous to the offering of Trustee Warner's resolution. When it came to a vote four voted in favor of the resolution and three against, Messrs. Plume, Warner, Everett and District Clerk Brundage voting in the affirmative, and Messrs. Naylor, Park and Ellsbre, the Democratic trustees, voting in the negative. In the absence of President Ferguson, Trustee Plume presided and ruled the vote lost.

No Lights There.

A number of persons are wondering what has become of the electric lights that the Plainfield Electric Light Company were going to place on the public drinking fountain on North avenue. The fountain is wired for the lights, but they fail to shine.

THIRTEEN CARS OF THEM.

Seven Hundred People Go To Seashore With Trinity Reformed Church Excursion.

After due consideration the weather decided to clear off and give the postponed excursion of the Sunday-schools of Trinity Reformed church and Marconnier chapel to Asbury Park a good day after all. There was much anxious discussion at the North Avenue station this morning, however, as to whether or not the day promised to be a fair one. There were clouds, plenty of them, but an occasional peep of the blue suggested clearing later in the day. The excursionists turned out in holiday array, the young women in white and the boys in outing costumes. Here and there an umbrella was closely grasped.

Thirteen cars, one of which was a baggage coach, carried the excursion away from the North Avenue station promptly at 8 o'clock. The cars were all well filled and probably carried some seven hundred excursionists. They will leave Asbury Park on the return at 7 o'clock.

DANCED ON THE LAWN.

Pleasant Party Given to 100 Young People by the Misses O'Keefe, of West Sixth Street.

Not to be outdone by the two previous lawn parties given by the young ladies of the West End recently, the Misses O'Keefe, of West Sixth street, gave one last evening. Although the weather was rather threatening it had no effect on the attendance, and the affair was a complete success. There were about 100 people present, all of whom enjoyed themselves during the evening tripping the light fantastic toe to Prof. O'Beilly's ever-popular selections. At the conclusion of the dancing the guests seated themselves about the spacious lawn, where by the light of scores of fancy Chinese lanterns cooling refreshments were served. After a farewell dance the young people reluctantly departed amid the strains of "Home, Sweet Home."

A Phonograph Party.

A pleasant phonograph party was given Saturday evening to Miss Florence Windham, of Fairview avenue, in honor of her fifteenth birthday. Besides the phonograph selections, dancing and singing were the features of the evening. At a late hour a bountiful supper was served to the guests among whom were Mrs. Dentz, Mrs. Smith, Miss Julia Philpitt, Miss Mamie Philpitt, Miss Carry Dentz, Miss Nettie Humbert, Mrs. Henry Windham, Oscar Philpitt, Franklin Dentz and Werner Philpitt.

Aged Man Critically Ill.

John Stine, of Greenbrook road, who is eighty-two years old, is confined to his bed in a serious condition suffering from gangrene in the foot. The affliction is the result of a kick which was administered by a cow some time ago. The injured member became very painful and swollen, afterward developing the gangrene. On account of his age it is a difficult matter to contend with.

NEGRO BABE LEFT TO DIE IN THE WOODS.

Mrs. Rudolph Wueergler, of Webster Place, Found Infant While Picking Berries.

IN THICKET OF BUSHES.

CHILD HAD EVIDENTLY LAIN THERE OVER FORTY-EIGHT HOURS.

No Protection From Rain and Cold—Vermin Had Begun Their Disgusting Work—Child Taken to Muhlenberg Hospital.

Deserted by his inhuman parents, a little negro boy baby was left to die in a thicket of berry bushes in the heart of Minford's woods near Putnam avenue and Webster place. For several days—only the would be murderers know exactly how long—the tiny child lay exposed to the elements. Vermin began their disgusting work under the little arms. Mrs. Rudolph Wueergler, of 453 Webster place, found the abandoned one early this morning while out blackberrying. The police took charge of the baby and took it to Muhlenberg Hospital where every effort is being made to save his life.

At the northest corner of Putnam avenue and Webster place there is a grove of trees that extend nearly out to LaGrande avenue on the north and Woodland avenue on the east. The place is now called Minford's woods after its owner, Thomas Minford, of Watchung avenue. It was formerly a part of the old Evan Jones estate and was called Jones' woods. There was a small pond there where many of the young people used to skate. Of late years the water had drained off leaving something of a swamp. The black berry bushes are quite thick and the neighbors often take advantage of the opportunity to gather a quart or two of berries.

Mrs. Rudolph Wueergler started out this morning at 8 o'clock. She went into the thickest of the bushes after the large berries. There is a thicket in the heart of the woods which is fully two hundred yards from either of the neighboring thoroughfares. Mrs. Wueergler heard a faint moan and, peeping through the bushes, saw the nude form of a little colored baby lying on the ground.

Mrs. Wueergler hurried away and notified police headquarters. Chief Kiely and Boundsman Flynn pressed a passing butcher wagon into service and went after the child. They found the little one lying there with nothing to protect it from the cold or dampness. The tiny hands were shrivelled up and turned partially white from long exposure to the rain. The vermin had eaten the flesh under the arms and on the back. Judging from appearances, the child must have been left there at least forty-eight hours ago and lay there throughout all of yesterday's rain.

A temporary bed was made of a blanket and the child was wrapped up in some cloth. He was apparently about three months old. He was evidently very weak from exposure and only uttered a feeble moan at intervals. He was taken to police headquarters in the wagon and then transferred to the Muhlenberg Hospital in a hack.

This is the most heartless case of desertion that is known in local police annals. It is usual in such cases to leave the child in close proximity to some house where the deserted one is quite certain to be discovered in a short time. Two years ago the body of a young colored baby was found in Cedar Brook, near LaGrande avenue. The child was dead when found.

The police have no clue to the people who deserted the babe. There was no clothing of any kind found on or near the little one.

Improving County Road.

The Freeholders are making some improvements to the Springfield county road in the vicinity of Locust Grove. The gutters have been cleaned out and the roadway turnpiked and rolled. Wheelmen are dodging that road at present until it gets in condition for riding again.

Church Closed.

The Congregational church is now closed until the second Sunday in September. During the interval, new heating and ventilating apparatus will be installed. At the morning service yesterday, Rev. A. E. Main, pastor of the Seventh-Day Baptist church, preached.

Enjoyed an Automobile Trip.

Henry L. McGee, of Orchard avenue, had one of the Riker electric automobiles in Plainfield Saturday and Sunday and covered many of the favorite drives on this section in it. He is in the employ of the Riker Vehicle Company of Elizabethport.

ITALY'S DEAD RULER

Particulars of the Assassination of Humbert.

SLAYER CAME FROM AMERICA.

Declares He Had No Accomplices. Affecting Scenes at the Bedside of the Murdered King—Queen Overcome With Grief.

MONZA, July 31.—The body of King Humbert of Italy lies in the great bed chamber of the royal palace here.

Soldiers are on guard at the portals, the windows are shuttered, and from the flagstaff the royal standard flutters at half mast.

Outside the palace great crowds are gathered. They talk in whispers or stand silently watching the royal palace and the distinguished visitors who have been arriving here.

Under guard in a cell in the little town is the assassin, Angelo Bressi. He is proud of his work. His was the third attempt made on the life of the king, and he feels a thrill of horrible satisfaction at his success.

Three bullet wounds in the king's body testify to the accuracy of the assassin's aim.

One is in the king's heart. It was this that killed him.

It appears that when King Humbert was wounded he exclaimed, "It is nothing!" The royal carriage covered the distance between the Gymnastic society clubhouse, where the crime was committed, and the royal villa at full speed, requiring but three minutes. The king expired on the way and, though placed on a bed, was dead when the doctors arrived.

The assassin's name is variously given as Angelo and Gaetno Bressi. He was born in Prato Nov. 10, 1869, and is a weaver by trade.

He comes from America, where he had resided at Paterson, N. J. He says he had no accomplices and that he committed the crime because of his hatred of monarchical institutions.

The assassin on reaching the guardroom of the carabineers was in a pitiable condition, his hands and arms being lacerated and bloody and his clothes torn by the angry crowd. Replying to questions, he hissed through his clinched teeth:

KING HUMBERT.

"Tell them I came from America on purpose to kill Humbert. I have only just arrived from America and know no one. I spent a day at Bologna and then came on to Milan."

A search made at his home at Prato resulted in the finding of several compromising letters from New York. One, signed by a woman, was dated June 25. In this letter the writer asks whether all is ready and expresses a hope that he will return soon.

Bressi has been absent from Prato for six or seven years. His parents live there, and he has a brother in an Italian infantry regiment.

After his arrest he appeared wakeful and nervous until about sunrise, but from that time he slept soundly until midday.

When Queen Margherita arrived at the villa, it was still hoped that the king would survive, and when the truth was broken to her a heartrending scene ensued. Bursting into tears, she exclaimed:

"It is the greatest crime of the century. Humbert was good and faithful. No person could have loved his people more. He was one who bore ill will to none."

When the queen's mother arrived, there was another affecting scene.

The assassin is strictly guarded in prison. He continues to preserve absolute indifference and took his meals without any sign of being affected by his position. A second revolver was found on the public stand in the gymnastic grounds.

Few additional details of the terrible tragedy are available. It happened so quickly and unexpectedly that the king was dead almost before the spectators realized what had occurred.

No special precautions had been taken. Very few police were in attendance, and only a small guard of soldiers was keeping the way for the carriage. The king, amid the cheers of the crowd, came out smiling, accompanied by his premier aide-de-camp, General Ponzio-Vaglia. He had entered the carriage and was just driving off when the revolver shots were fired in quick succession. Some witnesses assert that Bressi was seen just previously waving his hands and cheering. The first shot wounded the king in the neck; the second, the fatal one, pierced his heart, and the third broke the arm of the already dying sovereign.

The crowd was stunned by the unexpected scene, but speedily a rush was made toward the assassin. He did not attempt to escape and was roughly treated until the carabineers formed a cordon and secured him from the fury of the people.

An eyewitness says that immediately after the shots were fired the king fell back, pressing his hand to his heart. He was instantly supported by General Ponzio-Vaglia, who told the coachman to drive with all speed to the castle. After his exclamation, "It is nothing!" he did not utter a sound.

PLOT HATCHED IN AMERICA.

Humbert's Assassin Formerly Lived In Paterson, N. J.

PATERSON, N. J., July 31.—The fact that the assassin of King Humbert proves to be a former resident of this place occasioned a little surprise here. It has long been suspected that a plot of this sort and magnitude might be hatched among the Italian anarchists who have formed a settlement here.

These Italians are mostly employed in the silk mills and some are experts, having engaged in the same industry in Italy.

Numerous Italian societies are known to exist, though the Paterson police pretend that the objects of these secret organizations are unknown to them.

There is little doubt that the plot to kill King Humbert has been known for several months in the Italian settlements around New York. It was given world wide publicity two weeks ago by the suicide of an anarchist in Paterson who claimed to have been chosen by lot to do the killing. That his position was known is proved by the fact that his compatriots were only prevented from giving him a magnificent funeral by the police.

ALL ITALY MOURNS.

Queen Regent Proclaims Accession of the New King.

ROME, July 31.—Thousands of telegrams have been received from all parts of the country indicative of the deep sorrow of the whole nation. Everywhere work was suspended yesterday, and the bourses and theaters were closed. In the principal cities the municipal authorities are considering plans to honor the memory of the murdered monarch. At Messina a procession marched through the streets cheering for the house of Savoy and the young king. At Palermo an imposing demonstration proceeded in solemn silence to the municipal offices to express the sorrow and indignation of the population, after which a vast crowd cheered the new king. There were similar demonstrations in other towns.

A proclamation from the queen regent has arrived announcing the ascension of the new king and stating that parliament will be convoked after the funeral.

Several warships have started to meet King Victor. It is reported that Emperor William will attend the funeral.

The socialists and anarchists have issued a formal condemnation of the crime. The police have made several arrests of suspected persons on the theory that a conspiracy exists.

The socialist organ Avanta accuses the government of being the indirect assassin of the king because of a mistaken policy of dealing with socialists. In consequence of this tirade the police seized the Avanta.

The pope's grief was unmistakable. Assurances have been conveyed to the government that the Vatican will discourage any attempt to embarrass the ministry. This is the outcome of a rumor that a dangerous coalition exists between the extreme papal party and the Republicans for the overthrow of the monarchy.

TALMAGE SEES THE CZAR.

Great Friendship and Interest In the United States.

NEW YORK, July 31.—The Christian Herald has received the following cablegram from Dr. T. De Witt Talmage at Moscow:

"Since arriving in Russia I have had the honor of three interviews with the emperor. He told me that Russia is at peace with all the world, notwithstanding the present troubles in China.

"He expressed the greatest interest in our coming presidential election and talked as one who was a close observer of American events. On speaking of the Indian famine the emperor recalled the great distress in Russia in 1892 and said that he could never forget the kindness of America in sending relief on that occasion. The emperor believed that good results would yet come of the Hague peace convention.

"The emperor mentioned the Spanish-American war and called over the names of our most distinguished naval and military heroes. He spoke cordially of the international friendship that had existed between Russia and the United States and mentioned in illustration the presence of the Russian fleet in the harbors of New York and San Francisco during the civil war for the purpose of protecting us from possible interference from foreign nations."

Mysterious Tragedy.

WACO, Tex., July 31.—A mysterious double tragedy occurred at the residence of M. C. Kingsbury, a leading citizen of this city. Duncan G. McLennan, Jr., and Myron C. Kingsbury, brothers-in-law, were found dead in Kingsbury's bedroom. Their throats were cut from ear to ear. Neither body was bruised except about the throat, indicating that no struggle took place, and it is the general opinion that the men were murdered.

A Blind Wedding.

FORT ATKINSON, Wis., July 31.—After a courtship extending over 20 years, during the last 12 of which they have exchanged letters three times a week, Carrie M. Anderson of this city and John H. Cummings of Janesville have been married, but without having seen each other. They are both blind. The minister who performed the ceremony was blind, as was the maid of honor.

Troops Reach San Francisco.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 31.—The tent field at the Presidio is rapidly filling up with troops en route to the orient. Four companies of the Fifteenth infantry arrived yesterday from Governors Island, N. Y., and one from Omaha. Two troops of the Third cavalry also arrived from Fort Meyer.

Killed by Train.

CANAJOHARIE, N. Y., July 31.—Thomas Riley, aged 55, was struck and instantly killed last night by the Southwestern limited on the New York Central railroad near St. Johnsville. He resided at Canajoharie and was employed by the railroad company.

BOERS SURRENDER.

Roberts Reports That Five Thousand Yield to Hunter.

LONDON, July 31.—An official dispatch has been received from Lord Roberts saying that 5,000 Boers under Commandant Prinsloo have surrendered at Naauwpoort, in the Orange River colony.

A previous dispatch, dated Pretoria, July 29, tells the story of the fighting as follows:

"On July 26 MacDonald fought a rear guard action with the enemy from early morning until dark nine miles outside of Naauwpoort, in the Bethlehem hills, resulting in his effectually blocking Naauwpoort nek to the Boer wagons.

"Hunter reports that the enemy twice checked his advance by holding strong positions on two neks, one of which was taken before dark by the Scots, the Royal Irish, the Wiltshire and the Leinster regiments. Our casualities were only five or six. The second nek was taken during the night by the Scots and guards without opposition, the enemy retiring closely to Naauwpoort.

"Prisoners taken stated that 1,200 burghers would surrender if guaranteed that they would be treated as prisoners of war and not as rebels. To this I assented. As a result of these operations Prinsloo, commanding the Boers, asked under a flag of truce this morning a four days' armistice for peace negotiations.

"Hunter replied the only terms he could accept were unconditional surrender and until these were complied with hostilities could not cease. I expressed my approval and told Hunter on no account to enter into negotiations.

"As I am writing a telegram has come from Hunter saying that Prinsloo had written a second letter expressing willingness to hand over himself, with his men, rifles, ammunition and other firearms, upon condition that the horses, saddles, bridles and other possessions of the burghers be guaranteed them and they be free to return to their homes.

"I have replied that the surrender must be absolutely unconditional, that all rifles, ammunition, horses and other possessions must be given up and that the burghers will be considered prisoners of war. I added that Prinsloo's overtures will not be allowed in any way to interfere with Hunter's operations, which must be continued until the enemy is defeated or has surrendered."

NOME A PEST HOLE.

Captain Tuttle Reports Very Unhealthy Conditions.

WASHINGTON, July 31.—The official reports of Captain Tuttle of the revenue cutter Bear, dated July 6, at Nome City, Alaska, and of Captain Roberts of the revenue cutter Manning, dated July 14, at Dutch Harbor, have been received at the treasury department. They contain many interesting details of the arduous work of the revenue cutters in relieving distress along the Alaskan coast. The Bear went to the assistance of two wrecks and straightened out a controversy over the ownership of a steam launch at Nome. Captain Tuttle reports an epidemic of measles and pneumonia at Sinerock, Port Clarence, Cape York and Cape Prince of Wales. In concluding Captain Tuttle says:

"The situation along the whole coast I regard as very serious. It is estimated that at present there is within a radius (taking the United States postoffice as a center) of ten miles 25,000 people. Most of them are living in tents either on the beach or tundra. The sanitary condition of the portion of the city where houses have been erected is simply frightful. Typhoid fever is raging and smallpox steadily gaining. All possible efforts are being made to stamp out the smallpox, but with so many thousands of tents scattered over miles of territory it is impossible for the health authorities to keep track of all cases. As nearly as can be traced the disease was introduced from the steamer Oregon. Afterward the steamers Ohio and Santa Anna were found to be infected and were placed in quarantine. The Oregon had left before her cases were discovered. General Randall is commanding with a firm hand and having troops at his disposal will maintain order until such time as civil government is organized. I understand the natives all along the Siberian coast are suffering from influenza and pneumonia and not disposed to trade for reindeer at present."

Reunion of Spanish War Veterans.

CHATTANOOGA, July 31.—An official call has been issued for the annual reunion and encampment of the Spanish-American war veterans in this city Oct. 8 to 12 inclusive. In the call "all organizations of ex-soldiers of the Spanish-American war which have for their object the perpetuation of fraternal relations of the late members of that army and the inculcation of patriotism are invited to send representatives to discuss such matters as may be of mutual interest and if possible to unite all such societies into one organization."

Two Boys Drowned.

MUSKEGON, Mich., July 31.—Two boys were drowned at Mono lake. Harley Whelpley and Earl Harris, aged respectively 15 and 16, were the victims. The boys were in bathing, and Harris, who could not swim, got beyond his depth. Whelpley was drowned while trying to save his companion.

BRIDGE WORK
In Dentistry is the best substitute for nature's work that can be done. Sound roots may be built up and crowned and thus fill up an unsightly space. It has to be made of a material that has strength and durability and one that will not discolor. Gold is the one that stands the test. That is the secret of the expense. But the advantages of a bridge over a plate are many times more than the cost of one compared to that of the other.

HOPE AGAIN REVIVES

Important Message From Consul Fowler.

DIRECT NEWS FROM CONGER EXPECTED

Letter From Peking Dated July 22 Says Part of the Legations Are Safe—Attack Stopped the 17th. News Considered Authentic.

WASHINGTON, July 31.—The effect of late news from China is to freshen the hope that the government can soon get in direct communication with Minister Conger. The mass of testimony as to his being alive as late as the 22d inst. is now so great as to warrant the department in resuming the consideration of projects for the future.

With all of its anxiety to get Mr. Conger and the Americans in Peking safely away the department is proceeding with proper caution and is by no means disposed to accept any proposition that would unduly jeopardize their lives. Such might be the result of an offhand acceptance of the proposition to have the Chinese government deliver the foreign ministers at Tien-tsin, for it is realized that the escort might be overpowered by superior forces of Boxers on the way to the sea.

The state department has come to the conclusion that Mr. Conger himself is the best person to judge of the conditions under which his deliverance shall be effected, and therefore it is again looking to the Chinese government to place it in communication with Mr. Conger in order that it may be advised by him. That requirement was the first of the conditions laid down by President McKinley in his answer to the appeal of the Chinese emperor, so that the situation diplomatically cannot be said to have been materially changed by the developments since.

The state department was inclined to regard Consul Fowler's communication as the most valuable piece of confirmatory evidence yet received touching the safety of the Peking diplomats. Up to a late hour no answer had been received to the second Conger message, but in view of Consul Fowler's news the officials were inclined to look forward to an early reply.

The following is the message from Mr. Fowler, American consul at Chefu, dated noon, July 29:

"A letter from the German legation, dated 21st inst., received at Tien-tsin. German loss is 10 dead and 12 wounded. Chinese ceased their attack on the 12th. Baron von Ketteler's body said to be safe. The Austrian, Italian, Dutch and Spanish legations destroyed and the French partially.

"A letter from the Japanese legation, dated 22d, arrived at Tien-tsin on 25th. Ten battalions of Chinese shelled the legations consecutively from the 20th of June and stopped on the 17th of July, but may renew. The enemy are decreasing. The German, Russian, American, British and half the Japanese and French legations still defended. Japanese say they have food for six days, but little ammunition. The emperor and empress are reported at Peking."

General Chaffee reported his arrival at Taku in advance of the expected time.

MACDONALD'S DISPATCH.

Envoys Well—Women and Children In British Legation.

LONDON, July 31.—Sir Claude Macdonald's welcome dispatch, dated Peking, July 21, and received in cipher, is accepted on all sides as dispelling any doubts that might still have existed regarding the genuineness of previous dispatches. Owing to an error in transmission the message fails to show the number of wounded. David Oliphant and Warren were two student interpreters.

The message fails to mention the other legations and other matters of pressing importance to know, but it should be borne in mind that the British minister may not be aware that all his previous dispatches have been suppressed. He may be under the impression that the government is fully posted regarding all recent occurrences.

Apart from this dispatch there is practically no fresh news, although a special from Tien-tsin asserts that the British and American forces are getting ready to advance within 48 hours.

Li Hung Chang remains at Shanghai. He says that the great heat prevents his continuing the journey to Peking.

The admiralty has made public the following dispatch from Rear Admiral Bruce at Tien-tsin:

"Following message from Peking:

"'British legation, Peking, June 20 to July 16 repeatedly attacked by Chinese troops on all sides. Both rifle and artillery fire. Since July 16 an armistice, but a cordon is strictly drawn on both sides of the position. Chinese barricades close to ours.

"'All women and children in the British legation. Casualties to date 62 killed, including Captain Strouts. A number of wounded in hospital, including Captain Halliday. Rest of legation all well except David Oliphant and Warren, killed July 21. MACDONALD.'"

Sir Chih Chen, Chinese minister in London, has been notified by telegraph that Li Hung Chang, conjointly with other viceroys and governors, has memorialized the throne to urge the immediate sending of the foreign representatives under escort to Tien-tsin or the restoration to them of free telegraphic communication with their governments.

The Chefu correspondent of The Daily Express, telegraphing July 25, says: "I have received a dispatch from Peking, dated July 10, saying: 'All silent. Bullets and shells occasionally fired from streets, causing but few casualties.' It is reported that 18 foreigners have been murdered at Tungchou, on the Pei-Ho."

Fighting In Manchuria.

ST. PETERSBURG, July 31.—The Russian general staff has received dispatches from various commanders indicating a serious state of affairs throughout Manchuria. The revolt in the neighborhood of Mukden and the district northward has assumed such proportion that the Russian column has been compelled to retreat from Mukden southward. Fighting continuously, the column with difficulty reached the station at Ajasandzian, where on July 8 it was surrounded by Chinese troops. Re-enforcements were sent, and the withdrawal of the column was effected to Daschizao, with 48 casualties, killed, wounded and missing.

All Ministers Safe.

BRUSSELS, July 31.—A dispatch from Shanghai, dated yesterday, says that, according to the governor of Shang Tung, an imperial decree announces that all the ministers are safe. The rebels attacked the British legation on July 8, but were repulsed with a loss of 1,000. Through the intermediary of the governor of Shangtung a telegram from the Russian Admiral Alexieff has reached the ministers at Peking. Chinese sources say that the Europeans were holding out on July 24 in the Catholic cathedral.

THE INDIA FAMINE.

A Quarter of the People In Central Provinces on Relief List.

LONDON, July 31.—The following dispatch from the viceroy of India, Lord Curzon of Kedleston, to the secretary of state for India, Lord George Hamilton, has been received:

"Considerable anxiety is felt owing to the weakness of the monsoon. The situation is serious and critical in Gujarat, Baroda and Rajputana West, which are not sown. No fodder whatever is available in the southwestern part of the Punjab. Sown crops are in imminent danger, as rain continues to hold off. Fodder is scarce and cattle are dying in the central provinces of Therar and Hydera bad. Good crops are possible only in case the monsoon improves.

"A quarter of the inhabitants of the central provinces are on relief. The total number receiving relief is 6,266,000, with incomplete Bombay figures."

The governor of Bombay telegraphs that there were 8,607 cholera cases in the famine district during the week ending July 21, of which 5,703 resulted fatally. In the native states there were 8,246 cases, 5,710 proving fatal. The total deaths in the relief works of the British district were 6,753, or 4 2-5 per 1,000.

CONDENSED DISPATCHES.

Some 250 persons were killed by the eruption on July 17 of Mount Azuma, Japan.

The British ship Sutherlandshire was wrecked at Kiaochau, and 13 of her crew were drowned.

Nearly all the striking fishermen on the Frazer river, British Columbia, have returned to work.

A slight accident occurred to the machinery of the Russian cruiser Variag, and she abandoned her speed trial.

French expeditions in the Sudan united and defeated the forces of Sultan Rabah, the sultan himself being killed.

The defense of Caleb Powers, on trial for the murder of William Goebel, Democratic contestant for the Kentucky governorship, was opened.

The comptroller of the treasury has decided that no government funds can be expended in connection with the opening of the new immigrant station at Ellis island, N. Y.

Fatal Explosion.

BALTIMORE, July 31.—The steam tug Templar, owned in Alexandria, Va., blew up in the harbor here last night and killed Jeremiah Moore, the engineer, and C. E. Wood, a fireman. The balance of the crew, including Captain Oliver Crowder, were more or less injured, but it is thought all will recover. The Templar had in tow the schooner Nellie P. Morse and was just rounding into port at Canton Hollow when the boilers burst and she literally disappeared from the face of the water, leaving nothing but a mass of splintered wood to show that she had ever existed. Those of her crew who survived the disaster were picked up by the police tug. Up to a late hour last night the bodies had not been recovered.

Put In Asylum by Fraud.

HARTFORD, July 31.—George H. Dickinson of the Atlanta Journal, a friend of Charles H. Hoyt, the playwright, has employed Judge William F. Henney to protect the interests of Mr. Hoyt, who is confined against his will in the retreat for the insane here. Judge Henney made application before Judge of Probate Freeman yesterday afternoon for a revocation of the decree committing Hoyt to the institution on the ground that his incarceration had been obtained by fraud and deceit. Some sensational testimony is expected at today's hearing.

Wolcott For Draper's Place.

WASHINGTON, July 31.—The president has tendered the appointment of embassador to Italy to former Governor Roger Wolcott of Massachusetts. The Italian government has been asked whether Mr. Wolcott would be acceptable to it in such a capacity, a form always observed in international relations. So far no response has been received to either of the inquiries. Mr. Wolcott is supposed to be in France, and the president has communicated with him by cable, so that an early answer is expected.

Bad Season For the Windward.

ST. JOHN'S, N. F., July 31.—Owing to the continued prevalence of icefields along the Labrador coast, which detain the mailboats considerably, the Peary exploring steamer Windward is expected to make but slow progress to the north. Navigators experienced in northern voyaging think the present season most unfavorable for reaching high latitudes. A general strike among the fish handlers here is expected. The men ask for $1 a day, instead of 80 cents, which they are now receiving.

Steel Workers Resume.

JOLIET, Ills., July 31.—Two hundred men resumed work yesterday in the merchant mill of the Illinois Steel company. The wage scale has not been signed, but the men go back on certain conditions. A general suspension of the steel mills in Joliet is not looked for. The mill of the Independent Joliet Wire company also resumed operations after a long period of idleness.

New Hall For Hobart College.

GENEVA, N. Y., July 31.—Ground was broken yesterday for a new building at Hobart college. It will be known as Coxe hall, being a memorial to the late Bishop Arthur Cleveland Coxe of the diocese of western New York. The building will cost about $30,000.

Baseball.

NEW YORK, July 31.—Rain caused the postponement of all National league games yesterday save the Boston event, where the Cincinnatis defeated the home team by a score of 4 to 3.

Duke of Saxe-Coburg Dead.

COBURG, July 31.—Prince Alfred Ernest Albert, duke of Saxe-Coburg, died at 10 o'clock last evening at Rosenau castle from paralysis of the heart.

FORGERS CAPTURED.

Had Swindled Trust Company In Cuba.

RATHBONE ADMITTED TO BAIL.

Spanish Flag Raised Over the Consulate In Matanzas—Cubans Join In Celebrating—Colonel Humphrey Honored.

HAVANA, July 31.—Three forgers, among them a woman, who swindled the North American Trust company out of $10,000 last week, were arrested last night. The chief of the gang to which they belong escaped to Cardenas, but his arrest is expected. All are Spaniards and operated here under the old regime. The chief, who was released from jail in January, had an office near the offices of the trust company, and the gang had made preparations to pass various forged checks, particularly one on the engineers' department that had been raised from $60 to $6,000. Counterfeit American money was found in the possession of those arrested.

Mr. Estes G. Rathbone, former director of posts, now under arrest on a charge of fraud, furnished bail last evening. Senor Lopez, a wealthy Spaniard, going on his bond. Several Spanish merchants came forward and magnanimously offered to provide the necessary security.

The raising of the Spanish flag over the Spanish consulate in Matanzas was made the occasion of a general fraternization between the Spaniards and Cubans of the city. It was the first time a Spanish flag had been unfurled there since the American intervention. The Spanish consul said the flag was no longer the symbol of sovereignty, but the sign of friendship, and the secretary of the Spanish club declared that the Spaniards would uphold the doctrine of independence. Prominent Cubans spoke in a strain of similar cordiality.

The Spaniards in Havana have promised to join the combination understood to have been made between the Union Democratic and Republican parties. A conference will be held with Governor General Wood on his return in order to get a better idea of the future policy of the United States regarding the recent decree, and afterward a platform will be drawn up and a mass meeting held.

On the eve of the departure of Colonel C. F. Humphrey for China, where he will serve as assistant quartermaster general on the staff of Major General Chaffee, his American and Cuban friends here have presented him with a sword and Mrs. Humphrey with a watch, the presentation taking place at a reception given at the palace.

McFadden Whips O'Brien.

NEW YORK, July 31.—George McFadden, the local lightweight boxer, administered a severe drubbing to Jack O'Brien, formerly of Halifax, but now a resident of this city, before the Twentieth Century club at Madison Square Garden last night. The pair met for a 25 round bout at the lightweight limit, 133 pounds, but there were only 12 rounds of fighting. O'Brien was so badly punished in the twelfth round that he, much against his will, was forced to give up when the bell rang for the beginning of the thirteenth, and instead of putting up his hands for attack or defense he extended his gloved right hand to McFadden, giving McFadden the bout.

Police and Negroes Fight.

TAMPICO, Mexico, July 31.—In Donace Citida, a suburb of Tampico, 58 Bahama negroes, contract laborers on the Mexican Central railroad, started a riot over one of their number being arrested. Many negroes took the part of their countryman, severely beating a policeman. The Mexican populace took sides with the policeman, a pitched battle ensuing. The negroes entered their cabins and opened fire with pistols on the Mexicans. Two negroes were mortally and 20 seriously wounded. A company of the Ninth infantry, stationed here, was called out to quell the riot.

New German Cable.

WASHINGTON, July 31.—United States Consul Hughes at Coburg informs the state department that the work of laying the new German-American cable from Emden to New York is now progressing. By the end of the summer it is expected that the entire 4,984 miles of cable will have been laid, so that the new cable may be formally opened October next. The section from Emden to Berkum island is laid partly on land, but from there to New York it is an all sea cable. The cable will cost in its entirety about $4,866,500.

Globe Wheelers Reach Washington.

WASHINGTON, July 31.—Alexander E. Spiro and bride and Mr. and Mrs. Claude A. Bigelow, the globe circling bicyclists, have arrived here from New York. They left New York last Tuesday morning to wheel around the world on an alleged wager of $5,000, the trip to be completed in 30 months. They are traveling without funds, relying upon their own labor and such aid as they may receive en route for their maintenance on their long journey.

Big Sale of Coal Lands.

WASHINGTON, Pa., July 31.—The biggest coal land deal in recent years was completed yesterday when John Kerr of Greensburg closed the sale of 50,000 acres in the southern end of Washington county and part in Green county. The purchase was made for the river combine. The sale will put in circulation among the farmers about $1,000,000. The territory is new, and the Pittsburg vein of coal has never been tapped.

Mr. Bryan's Plans.

LINCOLN, Neb., July 31.—W. J. Bryan announces that he will leave Lincoln next Monday night for Chicago, leaving that city Tuesday for Indianapolis with the Chicago escort. At Indianapolis he will be in the hands of the local Democratic committee.

Postmasters Appointed.

WASHINGTON, July 31.—The following fourth class postmasters have been appointed: Connecticut—Wolcott, A. M. Woods. New Hampshire—Middleton, F. A. Horne. Pennsylvania—Hazlebrook, John Weber; Mendenhall, Alfred Thayssen.

Severe Hailstorm.

BINGHAMTON, N. Y., July 31.—The heaviest rain of this season and the hardest hailstorm for several years occurred here at 6 o'clock last evening.

Need of Organization.

As dwelt on in an article printed in the news columns of today's Press, one of the strongest points in favor of Republican success in New Jersey is the fact that that party has a thorough organization of its workers throughout the State. Enthusiastic individual belief and advocacy of a party's principles and candidates are essentials to political success, but unless supplemented with a vigorous and aggressive organization they usually meet with rebuff and defeat at the polls.

The Republican leaders in New Jersey recognize this condition of affairs and as a consequence they have been working along this line of action until they find themselves intrenched as firmly in the State as the Democrats were a few years ago when they, too, maintained organization thorough and energetic in all sections of the commonwealth.

Facing this political condition, the Democrats, if they are to succeed, must have organization equal to the Republicans. Those who take an active interest in Democratic affairs recognize that one of the greatest drawbacks to party success is the lack of united front and action. While the workers are personally anxious for success, they find themselves at a serious disadvantage in the midst of campaigns because—while the Republicans are acting with the force and harmony due to their party coalition—they are striving to accomplish results without organization when experience of the most dear sort has emphasized the fact that it is an up-hill job.

And so it has come about that wherever you meet Democrats who take more than a passing interest in their party you hear the talk of better organization being needed. At a meeting of the Democratic State committee, to be held in Newark Saturday, it is expected that organization plans will come in for prominent consideration. William B. Gourley, chairman of the State committee, realizes more than any Democrat in the State the need of organization. Mr. Gourley says that, as the head of the party in the State, his greatest efforts from now on will be to build up a thorough organization in all sections. In this work he will undoubtedly have the support of every Democrat who earnestly desires party success.

Although Summit is the youngest city in Union county, she has put on a municipal frill that might be patterned after by other towns her senior. It is the organization of a Committee on Recreation in the Common Council. The especial work of this committee at present is to arrange for a series of open air band concerts, but it is to be presumed that in the future its functions will lead it into varied channels in the effort to provide amusement and recreation for the public. The work of such a committee can be made eminently practical, even though what it plans and consummates may not be absolutely essential for the government of the town. There is nothing that adds to the attractiveness of a town more than moderate and clever efforts at entertaining in public, and along this line a Committee on Recreation should find plenty to do.

Our foreign trade for the fiscal year ending June 30th, has now been tabulated by the Treasury experts and shows a total of $1,304,186,371 of exports and $849,714,670 of imports, an aggregate foreign trade exceeding two billions, surpassing by $319,729,250 the total of any previous year. The total exports of manufacturers was $432,284,366, against $339,675,558 in 1899, an increase of $92,608,808.

Property which is now exempted would be taxed and the finances of the city better managed if men of business ability were elected to office, the Newark Call thinks. The difficulty, however, seems to be that most of the men of business ability hereabouts, who are considered eligible for office, hold blocks of stock in the corporations which are not taxed, adds the Newark Advertiser.

When the American people want to know a thing they want to know it right away; hence their reliance upon good newspapers, which are ever at hand, says the Philadelphia Record. Advertisers understand this, and they are right in assuming that a timely and inviting fact placarded in the advertising columns of a reliable journal will catch a thousand eyes.

As one reads the testimony given in the Goebel murder trial the idea is forced upon them that Former Governor Taylor knew he was well off when he departed for Kentucky.

Plainfielders are gradually, but liberally, responding to the appeal for funds to carry on the open air free band concerts. The more money the more concerts.

When it comes to exercising the right of censorship, the Chinese can give all other Nations cards and spades and then beat them all combined.

WHAT THE SHEARS FIND.

Editorial Comment From Other Papers of Interest in Plainfield.

It is not very creditable to the thirst for knowledge on the part of the denizens of the backwoods hamlets of New Jersey that there is likely to lapse and be turned back into the State Treasury $1,000 available for traveling libraries. It costs the village or hamlet which wants one of these libraries of fifty assorted volumes for six months not one penny. Many of the libraries have been applied for, and they have proved very popular, but it is surprising that there is not a larger and more general demand.—"Trenton" in New York Herald.

Things that Are Not Exactly News but Just as Interesting.

The probable advent of automobile stages in city and borough promises to make things decidedly exciting for many of the drivers of this vicinity. The average horse, possessed of any spirit at all, has a decided objection for automobiles. They are even worse than bicycles were when the latter first appeared. At present only two of the horseless vehicles make their home in this city, but both of them cause lots of trouble wherever they go. In time the horses, or most of them at least, will calm down somewhat and not go through all kinds of stunts at the mere sight of one. For a while, however, there is every likelihood that runaways will be numerous along the line of the electric carriages.

Three young ladies on West Front street Thursday evening were the victims of a sudden fright which, under the circumstances, was pardonable, but amusing nevertheless. One of the large windows of Woodhull & Martin's store is tastefully decorated with an assortment of ladies' shirt waists surmounted by a number of wax figure-heads. Just about dusk Joseph Martin, the firm's window-dresser, stepped into the window for the purpose of altering some of the figures before the lights were turned on. Standing among the different colored waists, with his coat off, at first-sight, it would be hard to distinguish him from one of the wax heads. For a moment he stood still studying an effect when, unnoticed to him, the young ladies approached. They stopped to gaze at the goods displayed, not for a moment thinking that Mr. Martin was anything but one of the figures. But when he stepped back suddenly the surprise was so complete to all three that they fell back with a shriek, and one exclaimed, "Oh, my! it moved." It was some time before they regained their composure and were able to see the joke. Mr. Martin, the unconscious cause of their fright, was forced to laugh heartily.

Gentlemen:—I must say in regard to GRAIN-O that there is nothing better or healthier. We have used it for years. My brother was a great coffee drinker. He was taken sick and the doctor said coffee was the cause of it, and told us to use GRAIN-O. We got a package but did not like it at first, but now would not be without it. My brother has been well ever since we started to use it.

DUNELLEN.

(Special Correspondence to The Press.)

Dunellen, July 31.—Charles Vail, the man who was injured by falling from a trolley car last Friday night, still lies in a semi-conscious condition at the home of his friend, M. B. Smalley. The man is able to open his eyes and stare, but does not recognize anyone. As soon as he recovers sufficiently to be placed on a stretcher he will be taken to Valley Station where he has a wife and family. From present indications it will be a long time before he recovers, possibly never.

Although the proprietor of the merry-go-round has been notified to move or pay back rent, he is still at the old stand. It is expected that a representative of the land improvement company will call on him today and make some kind of a settlement.

Those who acted as pall bearers at the services of Charles Wood, who was buried yesterday, were Martin Boyle, Frank Rinehart, Joseph Kelley and James Reedy. They were all acquaintances of the deceased during his residence in the borough.

'PLAINS AND FANWOOD.

(Special Correspondence to The Press.)

Scotch Plains, July 31.—Sneak thieves forced an entrance into the residence of Mrs. DeForest Thomas Sunday morning while the family were all at church. An entrance was effected by cutting the screen door wire and then forcing the inner door leading to the kitchen. The thieves appeared to be satisfied with a large melon which was on ice ready for the family dinner as nothing further was missed by the family. A certain party is suspected and if the evidence can be gathered to convict the party an arrest will probably be made in a few days.

HOUSEHOLD BITS.

A Variety of Small Matters That Enter Into the Domestic Economy.

When bead portieres are used in a doorway, it adds to the effect to have some rather sheer oriental stuff hanging straight at one side, as if pushed there for convenience. The portieres in themselves are rather characterless, and the drapery is a desirable addition.

To remove verdigris or other old discolorations from brass, the ordinary household ammonia will be found sufficent. For obstinate stains it should be applied with a soft brush, though usually a piece of flannel wet in the ammonia will do as well. Afterward the high polish of the brass may be restored by the use of the usual polishing paste or pomade.

If ermine fur is only slightly soiled, dry flour thoroughly rubbed into the fur and well shaken out will clean it excellently. A treatment advised by an English exchange for fur that is more soiled is to rub it thoroughly with bran dampened in warm water. The bran is applied with a flannel cloth. After the fur is rubbed thoroughly dry, a second rubbing is given with dry bran; the final treatment in the course being with magnesia.

The assertion has been made occasionally of late that the use of finger-bowls is to some extent decreasing. Inquiry of those most competent to judge proves that this statement is erroneous. On the contrary, more money is being spent for finger-bowls, and more artistic effort put into their manufacture, than ever before. A beautiful design in high-class bowls, new this spring, is a clear glass, the bowl and plate engraved in gold, with encircling wreaths of pendant grapes. The perfection of the glass itself and the exquisite grace and finish of the design combine to produce a most beautiful and expensive set. Color effects in reds, greens, turquoise and other blues, amber and mauve are to be had, of equal though varied beauty. The housekeeper of moderate income to whom these costly bowls are not possible will do well to put the price to which she limits herself, whatever that may be, into the quality of the glass. A bowl and plate of graceful shape in fine glass that is clear, except for some fleeing iris lights in its polished purity, may be had at a very reasonable price, and will be found more satisfactory than cheap cut glass or other inferior reproductions of expensive ware.

POISON PROOF POTATO BUGS.

Got So They Couldn't Get Along Without Paris Green as a Regular Diet.

"It's a bleak day when bleeding Kansas can't produce something a little ahead," concluded the old man, as he buttoned his beard inside of his coat before going out into the wind, relates New Lippincott. "Got all them things in my wagon, Henery?"

"All but the shoe-polish, Mr. Davis," said the storekeeper. "We hain't much call for shoe-polish in Waubunsee, and we sort of let ourselves run out of polish."

"Hold on a minute, old man," interrupted the drummer from St. Louis. "What's Kansas done since Funston happened?"

"Wall, my boy, Webster has kinder dabbled in science, you know, ever since he got that janitorship up at state university, and he writes me that up there they've discovered another thorn in the crown that's pressed on our brows, as Bryan tells the pops hereabouts. This time they've discovered that our great state has got to grapple with a potato bug that's become poison-proof. It warn't so long ago that every farmer could go out in the morning with a bucket of paris green and a light heart and a sprinkler and protect his patch. Every time a bug got a dose of paris green, his little hands grew cold, his feet curled around his stomach, his tongue turned black, and he was a dead bug. But gradually, says Webster, the constitution of successive generations of green-fed bugs have become hardened to the poison, till at last the bugs are born with a craving for paris green and cry till they get it. Nowadays a bug wakes up dull and listless, with jumping nerves and a gone feeling in the pit of its striped stomach, and hardly life enough to crawl to where the farmer has been sprinkling the morning poison. But one sip makes a new bug of him, and he gallops merrily around the vines, eating where he listeth. Webster, however, tells me that by next season it will be fatal to the bugs to stop using paris green, now that they have come to lean so on it. It's like a man with the morphine habit—stop the drug and he is a goner in horrible agony. Some morning I am going to lie in bed till nine o'clock, and let every bug in the patch have a fatal paroxysm."

MUSKRAT AT SUPPER.

The Little Creature Is Particularly Fond of Rushes, Which He Eats in a Peculiar Way.

In the department of "Nature and Science" in St. Nicholas, we find this account, by William J. Long, of the doings of a muskrat:

If you know where there is a colony of muskrats—and if you don't know you can easily find out; any farmer or hunter will show you their village of green houses by the river—you can have no end of enjoyment by going there at twilight and calling them out. Squeak like a mouse, only louder, and if there is a pointed nose in sight, making a great letter V in the water, it turns instantly toward you. And if the place is all still, you have only to hide and squeak a few times, when two or three muskrats will come out to see what the matter is, or what young muskrat has got into trouble.

If you go often and watch, you may see a good many curious things; see Musquash" (that's his Indian name) digging a canal, or building his house, or cutting wood, or catching a trout, or cracking a fresh-water clam, or rolling a duck's egg along on the water's edge, so as not to break it, to his little ones in the den, far below. And if you like bananas, you may sometimes smack your lips at seeing him eat his banana in his own way. This is how he does it:

First, he goes to the rushes, and, diving down, bites off the biggest one close to the bottom, so as to save the soft, white part, that grows under water. Then he tows it to his favorite eating place. This is sometimes the top of a bog, sometimes a flat rock on the shore, sometimes a stranded log; but, wherever it is, he likes to eat in that one place, and always goes there when he is not too far away, or too hungry to wait.

Crawling out to his table, he cuts off a piece of the stump of his rush, and sits up straight, holding it in his fore paws. Then he peels it carefully, pulling off strip after strip of the outer husk with his teeth, till only the soft, white, luscious pith remains. This he devours greedily, holding it in his paws and biting the end off and biting it off again, until there isn't any end left—exactly as a schoolboy often eats a banana. Then he cuts off a second piece, if the rush is a big one, or swims and gets another, which he treats in the same way.

And if you are a boy watching him, your mouth begins to "water," and you go and cut a rush for yourself, and eat it as Musquash did. If you are hungry it is not very bad.

A Hint to Stamp Collectors.

Did you ever hold a sheet of white paper to the light and notice white letters or a figure of some kind in it? That is called the water mark. Most postage stamps are water marked, some with letters, some with figures, while others have some simple little character. Very few stamps will reveal a water mark when held to the light, but a simple way to detect them is to procure an old "tintype" picture. Lay the stamp upon the back of it, face down, and drop upon the stamp a few drops of gasoline. The water mark, if the stamp contains one, will be readily discernible.

AN INTERESTING PLANT.

It Is Called the Indian Pipe and Is Quite Unique Because It Keeps a Servant.

Did you ever hear of a plant keeping a servant to do work for it? asks George F. Atkinson in St. Nicholas. Well, the Indian-pipe keeps one. Some time when you are in the woods where this plant is growing, dig one up, and you will see that its roots are short, thick and all in a bunch. Now, the servant lives in these roots, and it is a plant, too. But it is a very minute plant called a fungus, and this fungus is so small that we cannot see it without the aid of a microscope. This fungus servant is like tiny threads, and it grows into the roots of the Indian pipe.

At first one might think that the Indian pipe had no leaves, but by looking closely we see that it has small pointed scales, white or pink in color, attached where we might expect the leaves. In fact, these are the leaves, though they look so different from the green leaves which we are accustomed to see on most trees and flowers. Some one may ask what these funny leaves on the Indian pipe are for. Well, we do not know that they are of any use to the plant—at least we do know that the leaves of the Indian pipe cannot do the work for it which the green leaves of trees and flowers do for them.

Plants with green leaves can make their own starch. With the help of sunlight they make starch from one of the gases in the air, which becomes mixed with the water in the leaves. The Indian pipe plant needs starch food, just as all plants do; but since it has no leaf-green, it cannot make its own starch. The fungus servant in its roots can get the starch food very easily from the decaying leaves in the ground. Some of this it turns over to the Indian pipe, and perhaps takes some other food in return from its master.

Very few green plants can take starch food through their roots without help. Many of these also have these fungus servants in their roots, the same as this Indian pipe, so that they get their starch food in two ways. This is so with a large number of the orchids, with the oaks, and other trees at times. These plants have not yet lost their green color. Others—for example, pine-sap, the pine-drops, coral-root orchid, etc.—have lost their leaf-green, and at the same time have fungus servants in their roots, or can take the starch food through their roots without any help.

House with Round Rooms.

When small Harry did anything naughty his mother punished him by making him stand in the corner for five minutes. One day after an experience of that kind he said: "Mamma, when I get big I'm going to build a house with round rooms in it." "Why are you going to do that, Harry?" she asked. "Because," replied the little fellow, "then there will be no corners for my children to stand in."

Wanted to Be an Angel.

"Oh, dear!" sighed small Tommy, as he gazed at the flaming posters across the street, "I wish I were an angel!" "Why do you wish that, Tommy?" asked his astonished mother. "'Cause," answered the little fellow, "then I could see all the circuses at once."

Home of LINCOLN'S ANCESTORS

IT IS LOCATED IN EXETER TOWNSHIP, BERKS COUNTY, PA.

It is not generally known that the ancestry of President Abraham Lincoln, before their emigration to Virginia and then to Kentucky, lived in Berks county, Pa., and that the ancestral home still stands in Exeter township, eight miles below the prosperous city of Reading. Here Mordecai Lincoln, the great-grandfather of the famous president, settled about 1725, and built a stone house, which the ravages of a century and a quarter have not destroyed, as is evidenced by a glance at the picture herewith presented. He had a son named Mordecai, and the latter had a son named Abraham, who became prominent in the affairs of Berks county during the war of the revolution. Another son of Mordecai, Jr., John, settled in Virginia. The latter had a son named Abraham, who was the father of Thomas Lincoln, father of President Lincoln.

Numerous Lincolns still reside in Pennsylvania, and the old home in Exeter of the progenitor of the greatest of latter-day American presidents is an object of interest to many; and should, in the opinion of scores of patriotic Berks county people, be bought by the government and converted into a museum.

FACTS AND FANCIES FOR LADS AND LASSIES.

POLE-CLIMBING DOG.

"Jack" Is a Mongrel, But His Firemen Owners Are Justly Proud of Their Pet.

"Jack" is only a plain, ordinary mongrel dog, but his accomplishments are unlimited; he can do all manner of clever things, and the every-day tricks of the cute pug and lap dog have been discarded by him long ago as too easy for consideration, even.

"Jack" is the house pet of the fire laddies attached to Hook and Ladder company 15, at Front street and Old Slip, and the paces he is put through for the amusement of the casual visitor would put to blush many a high-salaried and pampered canine star of the vaudeville stage.

One of Jack's accomplishments is to climb up the side of a house after a stick or any other such object which has been elevated by human hands, and to see the dog mark off a distance necessary for the required momentum is indeed marvelous. But his great feat is to climb a lamp post. This is Jack's "head-liner," as the theatrical press agent would put it. He is always especially applauded for this act, and the other things he does are merely incidental to the great windup.

One of the firemen in some peculiar way communicates to "Jack" the fact that the time for the lamp post performance is at hand and the dog immediately jumps around, seemingly to warm up for the great triumph of his art. All hands then repair to some near-by post devoid of letter boxes or any other projection foreign to the lamp post, and Jack is told to prepare for his performance. He indulges in a few short runs back and forth, and takes a sight on the pole, and "makes for it" full tilt. A short distance from the post he "takes off" and leaps for the goal. A few pawings upward of the lamp post and he is at the cross bar. A momentary pause, and down he jumps again to the sidewalk, happy in the applause he receives. — N. Y. Times.

A LIVE COAL TRICK.

How to Put a Red-Hot Coal on a Handkerchief and Still Not Burn the Cloth.

No one would suppose that it is possible to hold a glowing coal on a piece of linen or cotton without burning the cloth, but that such can be done is easy for anyone to prove, and at the same time the experiment teaches an important natural law.

Every child knows that the telephone and telegraph wires are made of copper because that metal conducts sound well. It is also a good conductor of heat and electricity, which is only another form of heat. If a poker is heated in the fire you pick up a cloth to hold the outer end, although it has not been in the fire, because experience has taught you that the heat is connected through the metal from the fire to the outer end.

This experiment with the flaming coal is based upon this principle, and the additional one that linen and cotton are poor conductors of heat.

Take a globe of copper and draw a piece of cloth tightly over it, so that there is not a wrinkle at the top. If the linen or cotton is closely woven, the trick is all the more certain. Then holding the clothing tightly in place you can safely put a glowing coal on top of the cloth, and while it burns fiercely the cloth will not even be scorched. The reason is that the great conductivity of the copper draws the heat of the coal before it can burn the cloth.

Do not try this experiment with a good handkerchief first, for if the cloth is not tightly drawn it may burn; but take some worthless piece of linen or muslin, and after you are certain of your experiment you can astonish your friends who do not know the secret.—Cincinnati Commercial Tribune.

"What is the difference between one yard and two yards?" asked the teacher of a small pupil. "A fence," was the prompt reply.

CANINE CIGAR SIGN.

"Cap," a Chicago Dog, Advertises His Master's Business and Does Other Wonderful Things.

The wooden Indian's nose will shortly be out of joint. Rapidly live and accomplished dogs, cats and other pets, are taking the place of the carved aborigine as tobacco signs.

For instance, John Dalton, who has a cigar store "'way down 'south" on State street, Chicago, has a dog that joyously answers to the military title of "Cap," if he happens to be on speaking terms with the person who addresses him. If the relations are strained the captain is as haughty as any other martinet, and repels familiarity.

This Cap. Dalton is possessed of a military cloak with his name and the insignia of his rank embroidered thereon, and he has a staff belt and sword that he wears with much dignity while he sits on guard at his headquarters smoking his favorite pipe, or cigar, as his inclination may suggest.

The captain, aside from his military accomplishments, has many social acquirements. He answers a question in the negative by a vigorous shake of the head and one in the affirmative by an acquiescent nod. He takes up a newspaper and holds it knowingly before him, while in the serious aspect that a large pair of spectacles gives him he pores over the columns with apparent deep interest.

These are mere samples of the captain's capacities and perspicacities. He is, moreover, the owner of a picturesque chalet for a residence, which is constructed entirely from the material of cigar boxes, and therein he takes much comfort on a luxurious couch. The captain is only nine months old at this writing, and if he continues to gather knowledge and general cleverness as he approaches maturity he will be the most erudite and skillful high dog in the municipality.—Radford Review.

Mice Add to His Wealth.

A man in upper Michigan has a novel source of revenue. While in his barn attending to his horse he found a rather mangled two-dollar Canadian bank note on the floor. It was sent to Ottawa and redeemed. A few days later he found a ten-dollar bill, and later two five-dollar bills. Since then he finds bills every three or four days. They are all chewed or crumpled, and the theory is that mice are bringing them from some place in the neighborhood, perhaps a cellar, where they have been hidden for years. The neighbors are much agitated for fear the secret hoard is in their houses, but the finder will allow no one to enter the barn and scare away his bonanza mice.

Good Thing for Thompson.

A building contractor having heard that his men did not start work as promptly as they should, thought he would drop around some morning and see. As he came to the building in course of erection he saw a man with his hands in his pockets, smoking, while a carpenter's kit, unopened, lay at his feet. Simply asking his name, which he found to be Henry Thompson, the angry contractor counted out four days' pay, gave it to the man and ordered him to leave at once. Then the contractor went to the foreman and told how he had made an example of Thompson for loafing. "What!" exclaimed the foreman. "Why, that man Thompson was only looking for a job!"

Skunk Pursued by Sparrows.

While hunting on the flats of the lower Ohio a man saw a polecat attacked by at least 200 sparrows. He did not discover the animal's offense, but the sparrows were exceedingly angry. The skunk had taken refuge in a thicket, badly frightened, and was dodging from one side to the other of a log, trying to escape the savage attacks of the feathered tribe. At last the persecuted animal took to the open and ran, but the birds kept pace with him and fairly riddled his hide with their beaks. The last he saw of them they were still pecking away, and the hunter thinks they killed the skunk.

Proceedings of the Board of Chosen Freeholders of Union County.

[OFFICIAL.]

Regular meeting of the Board of Chosen Freeholders of the County of Union, N. J., held on Thursday, July 5, 1900, at 2:30 p. m.

Roll-call showed all members present except Freeholder Wahl.

The minutes of the previous meeting were on motion approved as read.

PETITIONS, COMMUNICATIONS, ETC.

From Local Union, No. 41, of Rahway, N. J., painters, decorators and paperhangers, asking that all contracts and other work in their line be done by none but union shops.

On motion received and placed on file.

From James W. Fink, County Road Inspector, as follows, viz.:

Westfield, N. J., July 2, 1900.

To the Honorable the Board of Chosen Freeholders of Union county, N. J.:

Gentlemen: The undersigned would respectfully report to your honorable body that the repairs on county roads for the year 1900 to this present date are as follows:

The Boulevard has all been repaired with 1½ inch stone and screenings 10,368 lineal feet.

This work varies in depth from 1 to 4 inches, and in width from 8 to 14 feet. The gutters were also cleaned 10,268 feet. The cost of this work is $1,423.69 on Morris avenue, from Elizabeth city line to Lehigh Valley R. R., near the Hammock at Spring Lake in Deantown, and at West Summit 16,085 lineal feet of road repaired with 1½ inch stone, 5,160 feet of road top dressed with fine stone, 38,673 feet of gutters cleaned. The cost of this work is $4,946 78; the cost of all repairs to date, $6,370.47. The work of repairs is now in progress in New Providence.

Signed,
Very respectfully submitted,
James W. Fink, Inspector.

On motion of Freeholder Robison received and placed on file.

From John C. Moore, Benj. L. Lawrence and others, property owners and taxpayers on Orchard street, petitioning the board to pave Orchard street with asphalt from the curb to trolley tracks on either side of the street.

Said street had been adopted as a county road and prior to the advent of the trolley a good pavement was on said street.

The trolley company was allowed to lay its tracks in the centre of the street, and which had destroyed the main part of pavement paid for by property owners, leaving them virtually without any pavement.

While pleased with the trolley road yet they felt that the pavement should be restored, and with asphalt, also that the street should be sprinkled, if their charter so required.

On motion of Freeholder Miller received and referred to county road committee, and the county attorney's report to be made at the next meeting of this board.

Whereas, It has been found to be impracticable at present to widen the streets on which it was proposed to build said street railroad, which lie to the west of the line dividing the township of Union from the township of Cranford; and

Whereas, This board has caused commissioners to be appointed for assessing the damage for the proposed widening of the streets to be traversed by said railroad to the eastward of the line dividing the township of Cranford from the township of Union, and the said commissioners have completed their work, and are about to file their report, and the said Elizabeth City Horse Railroad Co. is willing to pay to the board a sum not exceeding $73,000, to be used for the payment of damages assessed by said commissioners, and to construct its proposed railroad from the easterly terminus thereof to the said line dividing the township of Union from the township of Cranford; now therefore be it

Resolved, That the said Elizabeth City Horse Railroad Co. be permitted to construct that part of its proposed line of street railroad lying east of the dividing line between the township of Cranford and the township of Union, in the manner provided in the said proposition, and that it be released from the obligation contained in the said proposition of August 4th, 1898, and guaranteed by the said bond, dated August 30th, 1898, except as herein provided to pay to this board any sum or sums of money on any of the accounts referred to in the said proposition, or the said bond, on the said act, in excess of the amounts already paid to this board by the said railroad company, and of the said sum of $73,000 to be used in the payment of damages found by the said commissioners to be done to property owners by the widening of the streets over which the said railroad is to be constructed to eastward of the said dividing line between the township of Cranford and the township of Union, and also from each and every the other obligation created by the acceptance of said proposition and said bond; and be it further

Resolved, That the time in which the said Elizabeth City Horse Railroad Company shall be required to pay the said sum of $73,000 to this Board is hereby extended until the 15th day of July, 1901. Said payment, however, shall be made with interest at 5 per cent. per annum on the said sum from the date of this confirmation of the commissioners' report by the Circuit Court of this county.

Provided, however, that these resolutions shall not become effective unless the Elizabeth City Horse Railroad Company and John Kean shall, within ten days from the passage hereof, file with the clerk of this Board a stipulation in writing to build and complete the said railroad from the easterly terminus thereof, as stated in said proposition and the contract made in pursuance thereof, to the said dividing line between the townships of Cranford and Union before the 15th day of July, 1901, and also to pay to this Board on or before the same date the said sum of $73,000, with interest for the period aforesaid.

GREAT BARGAINS MISSED.

Opportunities for Making Large Sums of Money That Have Been Overlooked.

Some short while since a jeweler, when starting in business in one of the northern towns of England, sought to attract notice, and consequent custom, by displaying in his window a dozen silver brooches, each worth ten shillings, and 12 similar articles in gold, which, though costing two pounds two shillings apiece, were offered at the same price. The former, says a writer in London Tit-Bits, had a quick sale, but not until the tradesman had considerably raised the amount originally demanded for the latter did they find purchasers. A gold brooch for two shillings! You don't catch us with that chaff, thought everyone, and to their subsequent regret they refused to bite.

In the winter of 1898 a dealer in curios and antiques who carried on business in Seymour place, Marylebone road, exhibited in his window, for a wager, a heap of coins, among which, in a prominent position, were a number of English sovereigns, surmounted with a ticket inscribed: "These coins 15s. 6d. each. For a few days only." Although there were many curious gazers, there were no buyers, and the tradesman won his bet.

Last summer a Paris shopkeeper, either for a wager of for advertisement, offered for one month only a number of 20-franc pieces at five francs each. They were placed prominently in his window, and at times attracted a small crowd, curious, but suspicious. None went beyond jocular inquiry until the last day of the stated period, when a man entered, and, to the tradesman's horror, insisted on buying the lot, some 50 in all.

An hour later another man appeared, and, handing over the 20-franc pieces to the wondering tradesman, requested the return of the 250 francs, stating that the purchaser was a gentleman of weak intellect, who had managed to elude the vigilance of his friends, and as such was not one of whom advantage should be taken. Needless to say that the other was entirely of this opinion.

About the beginning of the present century a Mr. Whaley, an Irish gentleman noted for his eccentric wagers—on one occasion he won £20,000 by walking to Constantinople and back within a year—gained no small sum by offering some very valuable diamonds for sale at a guinea each. Although by the terms of the agreement he was obliged to guarantee the genuineness of the stones, his words found no credence, and by declining to give the price demanded for what they considered worthless crystals the public enabled Mr. Whaley to win his money.

In the early '80s a most eligible house in one of London's southern suburbs was to let. There were several applicants, but one and all on being told the rent, for the ridiculous lowness of which no explanation was vouchsafed, declined to come to terms, suspecting drains sors in office. For seven successive years, while filling his high position, his party has been victorious in every campaign. His associates on the committee have always given Mr. Murphy much praise for his zeal in managing affairs and for the tact and wisdom he has demonstrated in all matters affecting the welfare of his party. Should his party continue in the ascendancy it is very likely that Mr. Murphy will be rewarded for his services by his elevation to the Governor's chair. He is a man of large wealth, and consequently can well afford to enjoy the pastime of politics. Just now Mr. Murphy is abroad, and the campaign is in charge of Senator E. C. Stokes, who is Governor Voorhees' alterego and one of General Sewell's most capable lieutenants, and who is now vice-chairman of the State committee. With these are such keen and influential politicians as Major Anderson, William Biker, Jr., William Bettle, Congressman Fowler, David Baird, "Bob" Hutchinson, Henry M. Doremus, Congressmen Loudenslager and Gardner, "Dick" Reading, General Skirm, Senator Kean, Former Congressman Hires and E. W. Woolley.

WHALEN A STICKLER.

He Didn't Like the Way a Case Was Tried in Justice Mattison's Court.

The landlord and tenant case of James Whalen against Harry Bennett was called in Justice Mattison's court this morning. The defendant was represented by Lawyer W. S. Angleman, while the plaintiff was satisfied to plead his own case. The trouble soon came to an end, however, for the defendant's lawyer proved that his client had offered his landlord $5 recently, and Mr. Whalen had refused to accept it. This was sufficient evidence for the court to dismiss the case, which he did.

Mr. Whalen took exception to such proceedings and could not seem to understand why the defendant should not be put under oath the same as he was. This, he claimed, was rank injustice, and especially so because the defendant had a lawyer, and the Justice allowed him to converse quietly about the case with his lawyer.

He admitted that Bennett had offered him $5, but he felt that his tenant could not afford to pay it, and besides, it was not so much the money he wanted as the property. He claimed to know much about law, and interrupted Justice Mattison frequently. Whalen did not lose his head, however, and he left the court to think the matter over and determine what course he would pursue.

She has been a resident of Dunellen for many years. A husband and two children survive her. The funeral services will be held Thursday afternoon at 12:30 o'clock from the late residence, and at 2:30 o'clock from the Springdale M. E. church. Interment in the cemetery adjoining the church. Rev. S. K. Doolittle, pastor of the Dunellen M. E. church, will officiate.

LIVELY AT NETHERWOOD

GUESTS TO PLAY PROGRESSIVE EUCHRE FOR CHARITY'S SAKE.

Plainfield Society Will be Asked to Participate in the Affair—Late Arrival of Guests.

What with progressive euchre Friday evenings, an informal hop the next night and concerts Sunday evenings, there is plenty of life at the Hotel Netherwood these summer days. Quite a throng of guests have assembled at that well-managed hostelry, and there is promise of greater activity as the season progresses.

With a worthy charitable object as the beneficiary, arrangements are now being made for a big progressive euchre party to be given at the hotel Tuesday evening, Aug. 7th. Plainfield society people are asked to assist in making the affair a success and a number of tickets have been mailed to prominent Plainfielders with the request that they be disposed of and the money forwarded to the committee.

The little camp on the mountain, where the City Union of King's Daughters send sick babies, is to receive the proceeds of the affair. It is a worthy charity, particularly appealing to Plainfield folks. Besides aiding the suffering little ones, there is an opportunity to spend a pleasant social evening at the hotel.

The party has been arranged by a committee of guests composed of Samuel Garre, Frank Witzler, E. C. Sterling and S. B. Carson.

The Sunday evening concert last Sunday was rendered even more than usually enjoyable by the delightful singing of Mrs. Edith B. LeJune, soprano. Her selections included Coomb's "Galilee," Reinike's "Spring Flowers," and "Stars of the Earth," by Raff. She was accompanied by the hotel orchestra.

Among those present were Mr. and Mrs. David F. Harbaugh, A.S. Haugh, U. S. A., Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Hall, Mr. and Mrs. Radcliffe Baldwin, Mrs. E. H. Lightner, Mrs. M. Lewis, R. A. Clarke, R. H. NO BAGGAGE CAR.

Somerville Man Insisted on Having His Trunks Go Along With Him and Were Put in Passenger Car.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Somerville, July 31.—As the result of a novel experiment on the part of the New Jersey Central Railroad in running some of its local passenger trains without baggage cars there was an animated discussion at the Central station here last Saturday afternoon between Captain Thomas Woodward, of New Orleans, and the officials of the company.

Captain Woodward and his family drove to the station with their baggage to take the 3:20 p. m. train to New York, en route to Fall River. Captain Woodward is a man of spirit and wide travel, and when the trainmen refused to take his baggage because there was no baggage car on the train he denounced it as as act unprecedented in all his travels, and he threatened to bring action for damages against the company. He informed the stationmaster that the failure of the company to allow his baggage to accompany him would cause him to miss the Fall River boat and require his family and himself to remain over a day in New York.

The trouble was finally adjusted by loading the Woodward trunks in one of the passenger cars. There are many residents along the line of the Central who have been seriously inconvenienced and who threaten to make a test case of the compny's right to run its trains without baggage cars.

ASKED THE WRONG MAN.

Pat. McGinnis Urged Chief Kiely to Give Him a Little Cash.

Patrick McGinnis, hailing from Philadelphia, didn't know the town very well. While passing through here last night he suggested to Chief Kiely, who happened to be in citizen's clothes, that a little cash would be very acceptable. McGinnis begged from several others until the Chief instructed Patrolman Myers to lock him up.

McGinnis appeared before City Judge Runyon this morning and sentence was suspended on his urgent plea to be allowed to depart at once and never return.

Miss Blume, of Washingtonville, entertained company from New York Sunday.
